

NEARLY RECOVERED.

Herman Rudolph, the surviving victim of the dreadful explosion at Saginaw Mill No. 1, which occurred on the 2nd day of last May, can thank his God, kind and painstaking doctors and gentle patient nurses for his recovery. Last Saturday a Nugget man accompanied Dr. Wall to the home of Mr. Rudolph—a cosy and picturesque place two miles southwest of this city, in the edge of the foot hills. One who gazed upon the suffering man on the day of the terrible accident, which sent Frederickson and Enloff to their graves without a moment's warning and left Rudolph crushed and gasping, with scarcely a chance in his favor, can hardly realize that the healthy, clear-eyed man which greeted the doctor at the door Saturday morning is the same person who lay crushed and burned on that fateful May morning. When one remembers that Mr. Rudolph lay in a semi-conscious condition for nearly a week after the accident, and that his doctors, Drs. Job and Wall, were not successful in finding his pulse until 5 o'clock the next morning after the accident, and that both doctors looked for him to die any moment, it is not hard to conclude that he was terribly hurt. Mr. Rudolph was not only fearfully burned on his face and neck but his chest was a mass of raw flesh, while his arms were burned, in many places, to the bone, the right arm being broken above the elbow. During the two months of suffering Dr. Wall has been at his bedside nearly every morning, looking after his comfort to the best of his medical and surgical ability; and the condition of the sufferer today indicates that he has not only had splendid medical and surgical care, but that his nurses have not shirked the duty entrusted to them. The fact that everyone thought, should he survive the accident, would be a mass of scars, is as clear as a child's—not a mark of a burn being visible. The arm, which was not only broken but badly burned, is gradually healing, while the left breast, which was so severely burned that the doctors could see the pulsation of the heart-beat, is now entirely healed and not a scar will mark Mr. Rudolph's body or face. The new skin is, of course, red, and will be for perhaps a year, but such good care has been his that not a scar will form. Mr. Rudolph is now able to be about the house, and expects to be able to attend the celebration here on the Fourth.

WALKED IN ON A SHOT.

Frank Patterson had a narrow escape from instant death last Monday, at the Lake property on Adams mountain, now operated by E. S. Adams. Frank put in three shots of giant powder and "spit" two of them, leaving the third for lack of time. He went out of the tunnel and after the two shots went off he returned to "spit" the third one. As Frank approached, the shot, which was, no doubt, ignited by the explosion of the other two, exploded. A portion of the rock struck Frank on the head, inflicting a severe wound and otherwise disfiguring his face, while another chunk struck him in front of the left shoulder, penetrating and ranging down almost to the elbow, where it lodged. As soon as possible Mr. Patterson procured a horse and started for this place for medical assistance. He arrived Monday night at 12 o'clock and Dr. Wall dressed his wounds, and will search for the rock now in Mr. Patterson's arm Friday.

The doctor I called on said at first it was a slight strain and would soon be well, but it grew worse and the doctor then said I had rheumatism. It continued to grow worse and I could hardly get around to work. I went to a drug store and the druggist recommended me to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. I tried it and one-half of a 50-cent bottle cured me entirely. I now recommend it to all my friends.—F. A. BARCOCK, Erie, Pa.
