

THE MINERS' WELCOME.—

When the stage from here pulls up in Bohemia at the Musick mine, it is always given a hearty welcome by a big crowd of fun-loving, large-hearted, happy-go-lucky and open-handed miners, who receive the new arrivals with such warmth and variegated announcements of unlooked for and unexpected home comforts, that the traveler for the moment is completely nonplussed. There is but one hostelry, that presided over by the genial Jones, and the bunkhouse of the hale, hearty and hardy miners. The stage usually gets there at early twilight, so the traveler has at best but a hazy view of his immediate surroundings, and for the moment he is completely carried away by the vociferous yelling of the hundred-and-one hotel runners who greet him with their blandishments and importunities for the favor of his patronage. The name and advantages of every hotel the boys ever heard of is hurled at the newcomer, and it often has the effect of so confusing and bewildering him that indecision takes a complete hold and for a moment or two he is so undecided that he is unable to leave his seat. When he finally does gain a landing and recovers his equilibrium he is approached by the courteous and suave Jones and politely and earnestly informed that he must choose between the Hotel de Jones and the bunkhouse. Jones is always a winner and triumphantly guides the stranger to a sumptuous meal and a downy bed, and the calm stillness of the afternight lulls him into dreamland.

A TROUPE.—

A party of four wandering minstrels under the high-sounding name of the Cissie Kelton Company, came to town last Friday morning, posted up their flaring bills, tooted their horns up and down the wide avenues and broad isles of this flourishing burg, and gave a one-horse entertainment that evening at Martin's Hall to a full house. Some say the exhibition pleased them, while others, who have traveled and know what acting ought to be, say the performance was very snide and that the troupe was another of those barn-storming aggregations which periodically swoop down on an unsuspecting public and steal away their hard-earned dimes. Be this as it may, these nomads sought to repeat the dose on Saturday evening, and received a cold frost, not a dozen people occupying the benches for pay. They went north.

AN OLD TIMER.—

Somebody shouted "Santa Claus is here!" on Friday last, and looking down the street could be seen approaching something that for a moment looked like a dromedary on wheels. It proved to be an ancient Columbia bicycle piled high and strapped about with the effects and trappings of an equally ancient mariner. The outfit had come through from Crescent City and was headed for Portland. Crowds gathered to look the old-time bicycle over, while the owner laid in a fresh stock of crackers and cheese. It was indeed a curiosity and was so dilapidated that one instinctively thought of the once "wonderful one-horse day," that was owned by the deacon gray and went all to smithereens one summer day.

FRUGAL.—

The over frugality of some men not infrequently bring about unlooked for results, as happened the other evening to a piano agent. He desired to go north on the night train and had grips and luggage to handle and it was necessary to have a call in time for the train. He, however, was too frugal to pay 50c for his bed and prompt and reliable service at the Hotel Sherwood, where a night clerk is always on hand, but hunted up cheaper lodgings, was not called, missed the train, was thrown back 24 hours in his dates, had added expense piled up, and must have felt somewhat chagrined. It is not always well to be too frugal.

CAMP MEETING.—

For the past two weeks a protracted meeting has been in progress in a large tent pitched in the grove just east of town and presided over by Rev. W. E. Good, assisted by Rev. W. B. Graham, Rev. C. H. Percell and Rev. Mr. Green. These several gentlemen have labored long and earnestly to bring within the fold of Christ the weary wanderer in the paths of sin. Though not realizing all they hoped to accomplish in this particular field, they were the instruments through which some twenty repentant ones came forward to seek in a contrite and humble supplication the soothing balm of salvation. Among this number several found the solace they sought and the remainder got far enough on the road to resolve for all future time a strict adherence to the Golden Rule. Last Sunday evening being the close of the endeavors in this field an audience of about 400 filled the tent and listened to the discourse by Rev. Percell, who pictured in no uncertain speech the deep hole of despair wherein the sinner dwells and the shining heritage fitted up for the emancipated soul. The gathering has been a success financially, the Cottage Grovelles having generously contributed funds enough to defray all expenses. The conference, which travels by wagon route, left on Wednesday for the south. They will hold forth at Reschburg next Sunday, and will then journey on to Grants Pass, where a two week's season of prayer and praise will be held.

KEEP HIS WORD.—

It is a well known axiom that fishermen are proverbial prevaricators, but it is our pleasure to record one instance that redounds to the great credit and manifest devotion to truth of our worthy fellow townsman John Sherwood. He and several boon companions spent last week in the Bohemia district scouring the woods for game and whipping the streams for trout. Now hunters, as a rule, make promises with a proviso, but the "lone fisherman" always knows his catch will be abundant and makes his promises off hand in advance—never or seldom ever to be kept. To know Mr. Sherwood is to appreciate the fact that he is the embodiment and real personification of truth, therefore one can easily imagine the savory deliciousness of the feast of speckled beauties he did not bring us. John, they tasted fine and hit the right spot, and you have our heartfelt thanks—not.

DEED.—

In Harrisburg, Linn county, Oregon, July 30, 1900, Mrs. E. Eby, aged 60 years. In the death of Mrs. Eby, another one of Oregon's pioneers has passed to the beyond. She had made her home in Lane and Linn counties for over forty years, and by her exemplary living and loving kindness had endeared herself to a large circle of friends and neighbors who deeply regret her taking off, and sincerely sympathize with the bereaved ones of the home circle. She was the mother of seven children, who, with her husband, survive her. Attorney F. G. Eby and F. M. Eby the well known blacksmith, two of Cottage Grove's worthy citizens, mourn the loss of an affectionate and loving mother, whose gentle kindness will be cherished while memory lasts.

BORN.—

On Monday, August 6, 1900, to the wife of Frank McKibben, a 14 pound daughter. Frank McKibben lives off Mosby creek a short way, and since the advent of the little miss he has been shouting the glad tidings from the hilltops. Mother and baby are doing fine.

TO DRY PRUNES.—

Alex Croall, the very efficient gardener and pruner of this city, has gone to San Jose, California, where he will dry prunes this year for a former employer. Mr. Croall is a capable fruit dryer as well as a splendid gardener.

BADLY HURT.—
D. W. McGee, an organ agent, while driving to Drain last Friday morning met with a serious accident. Some miles on the road from here repairs were being made to a bridge and it was in an impassable shape. Temporarily a road had been slashed out through the brush around the obstruction, and in going over this cutout the wagon upset, throwing Mr. McGee out with such force that for quite a while he was unconscious and it was feared that he was mortally hurt. The top of his rig was badly wrecked. He was subsequently taken to his home in Salem, and it is since learned that he is well on the road to recovery.
