FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1901.

An occasional false alarm of fire is sounded in this city. It follows that some day the alarm will not be false, and that the closely built wooden blocks in this city will go up in smoke.

The present indications are to the effect that an early and favorable crop year for this section will be realized. It will be highly appreciated, as the last two years have been in many instances unfavorable.

The spars for the new boat which will participate in the international boat race are of Oregon spruce. The timbers will be from 50 to 80 feet long, and of spruce. Again Oregon will take part in another victory.

Senator John H. Mitchell has departed for Washington City, where he will soon be working in the senatorial harness again, to the satisfaction of his many friends in the capitol city. Senator Mitchell will do honor to the state from which he goes.

There are several sidewalks out of repair in this city—some through the effects of the back water and others on account of worn out plank. They should be fixed at once; and the streets and alleys should be looked after.

John Burnett, ex-supreme judge of Oregon, a democratic warhorse and who had resided in the state since 1858, died at his home in Corvallis March 1st. Mr. Burnett had also served as circuit judge and legislator. He was considered one of the most able criminal lawyers in the state. Death was due to heart trouble. He had been sick about two weeks.

The pioneers of Oregon have been melting away the last year like drops of tallow from a lighted candle. Few of us stop, in our mad rush for gain, to consider how much historical data and how many quaint stories of "adventurous boyhood" are going down into the grave with these sturdy men and women who have carried the burden of Oregon statehood for so many years. It is too late now to mend the broken bowl, but much data of interest can yet be procured. If the newspaper men of city and hamlet would organize themselves into a biographical-historical society and let it be the sense of this volunteer organization to procure as many biographical sketches and pictures of the early pioneers of the state as possible, such a collection would be invaluable to Oregon and her people in the years to come.

Here are some extremely well-put and truthful remarks by the editor of the Albion (Ind.) Era concerning a subject of the first importance to every publisher: "The publisher of a newspaper has one thing to sell and one to rent. He has the newspaper to sell, and the space in his columns to rent. Can any one inform us why he should be expected to give away either the one or the other? He can, if he so chooses, and he does, as a matter of fact, furnish a great deal of space rent free. But it does not follow that he ought to be expected to do so. It ought to be recognized as a contribution, exactly as would be the giving away of sugar or coffee by a grocer. But, strange to say, it is not looked upon in that light at all; and yet everybody knows that the existence of a newspaper depends upon the rent of its space and the sale of the paper, just the same as a merchant's success depends on selling his goods, instead of giving them away.

The bicyclists are mourning the condition of Main and Wall streets. It will be a rocky road to Dublin for them this season.

The legislature passed a bill providing for the adoption in this state of what is known as the Torrens system of transferring real estate. This system has been in use in Australia for quite a number of years. Efforts have been made to have it tried in several of the states, but only Illinois and Massachusetts have adopted it.

Under the new road tax laws every male over 21 years shall pay road poll tax each year of $3 cash, and if not paid on demand it may be collected from the employer or corporation employing such person with costs of suit. A bill that has already passed makes all taxes payable in cash. This poll tax may be worked out under certain conditions.

A contract has been made with the government by Chamberlain & Co., of Chicago to raise the battleship Maine. This company, which is in the wreck-raising business, figures that there is $1,000,000 worth of property in the wreck. They have offered the government three per cent of all the proceeds, and will bend and undertake the work on speculation. The scheme is to build a gigantic cofferdam around the Maine, and then pump out the water. If the vessel can possibly be patched up sufficiently, it will be floated to this country, but if not, all portions that can be transferred will be brought to the United States for exhibition.

DIVIDE ITEMS.

At the annual school meeting of this district held at the school house Monday March 4, John Veatch was elected director and Ernest McReynolds clerk.
Saturday morning while the section crew were at breakfast the station car at this place was broken into by an unknown person who stole some money, tobacco, and a few other things. He was followed by about 15 persons and chased over the hills toward the Coast Fork and was last sight of. It is said that he fired a few shots at his pursuers.
