FRIDAY, APRIL 19, 1901.

It is now the beginning of the winter season in South Africa, but reports state that the British are still having a hot time of it.

More than one criticism has been made of the jail facilities of Cottage Grove, and not without just cause. If a man should happen to sober up while in there, he would turn sick at the stomach.

The city council and street commissioner is respectfully asked to take notice of the sanitary condition of Cottage Grove. The council should order the streets, alleys and back yards cleaned up.

While the Boers continue to "open peace negotiations" with the British, they are also energetically opening up their garrison doors and driving in the British on a regular rabbit drive basis, 500 a drive.

The approach on the west end of the bridge in this city is badly in need of repair. If it is the county court's business, said authorities should be promptly notified. There is danger of serious accidents arising from this neglect.

Creameries are becoming more numerous all over Western Oregon and will eventually prove a blessing to this section. They are already showing lucrative investments for local capital. The Willamette valley section is pre-eminently a dairying country.

Some night the old shack, which is known by the name of City Hall, will go down when a good sized crowd gets into it. It should be substantially braced and tied, the rear entrance way changed so as to go up from the walk, and a respectable coat of paint applied.

Marshal Nunn is busy these days fixing the sidewalks and crosswalks. It is a good idea and should be continued from time to time until we have the endorsement of the traveling public that we have as good if not better walks than any other city in the valley. Advertisements of this kind are always beneficial.

A Salem little boy seeing the picture of Aguinaldo in the papers next morning after his capture and being told that he had been taken by the soldiers, said, "Mamma, what will Bryan do now?" Upon being asked what he meant, he replied, "Why isn't Aguinaldo Bryan's boy?" The little fellow is but seven years old but he had heard enough during the campaign last year to form a conclusion not very far wrong, figuratively speaking.—Statesman.

The Mohawk correspondent to the Guard, by way of fixing the location of the "Ping Yang" neighborhood in the minds of the readers, states that Ping Yang is located about 12 miles east of Eugene, and mentions the fact that it is going to be a great wood depot. At this seeming "flood" of Ping Yang's "tide" which some one said leads on to fortune, the Guard's correspondent was, indeed, charitable in not locating Eugene by designating that it is 12 miles west of Ping Yang.

Geo. Lea expects to commence work on the streets again next week, with the view of completing the contract commenced last summer, and which he was obliged to discontinue on account of the deplorable condition of the county road leading into the city from Saginaw. The fact that street improvements must stop owing to the unfit condition of the county roads over which material must of necessity be hauled, does not speak very well for the county court, but then we will look forward, to a substantial improvement this season.

The council should call the attention of wheelmen to the recklessness displayed in riding upon the walks. Someone will get seriously hurt one of these days.

The recent frosts have occasioned some little speculation as to the amount of damage done. Thus far reports do not establish the fact that any serious damage to fruit has resulted.

With Bohemia and the Blue River District in active development this season, occasionally bringing to the surface rich ores, there is little doubt of the future wealth of Lane county. Timber and mines backed up by splendid farming and stock raising advantages, will make this county known from East to West throughout the United States.

Governor T. T. Geer has appointed Judge J. W. Hamilton, of Roseburg, a regent of the University of Oregon for the term of twelve years, beginning April 1, 1901, to succeed his father, Dr. S. Hamilton, of Roseburg, time expired. Dr. Hamilton has served the state faithfully as a regent of this grand institution for 24 years.

An ordinance is up before the city council of Eugene to change the name of Charnelton street to Jackson. Charnelton street was named after one of Lane county's early sturdy pioneers, Charnelton Mulligan, and he gave to Eugene the forty acres upon which to-day stands much of the wealth of the city. The city council of Eugene can be in better business than looking about for opportunities to entirely obliterate the old landmarks of the city which serve to remind one of the heroic men who gave to the county seat the ground it stands on, and who, long since, passed beyond the gloom of earthly night. Yes, it is to be hoped the council of Lane county's metropolis will have better judgment; if not the mayor. Better honor your "home" and the men who made it for you by changing the names of all the streets to bear names of those heroic old noblemen. If you did but this you would have to lay out some more streets.
