FARMERS' OPPORTUNITY.

Complaint has often been made in the past of the scarcity of farm produce to be had in this market, and the wonder is that with all the resources at hand that there is not an over production instead of a deficit. With the splendid agricultural section surrounding Cottage Grove, it is indeed a peculiar circumstance that there is not more produce to be had than the demand would warrant, but, nevertheless, such is the case. Products of the farm are always in demand and command a high price with ready sale, and yet a great quantity of produce has to be brought here to satisfy the demand. In the near future the demand will be far greater than it has ever been in the past. When a few years back all consumers were producers there was an abundance and to spare. In the past few years a gradual change has been taking place and today the non-producer but ready consumer outnumbers the actual producer; and in the next two years the ratio will be in excess of 10 to 1. With the opening up of the vast timber and mineral interests that are tributary here the consumers will multiply very rapidly and the producer will have at his door a cash market for every product that he can raise. The farmer who does not begin to realize this must indeed be in a trance or a Rip Van Winkle sleep. Now that a railroad, telegraph and telephone line is surely to be built into the great timber and mineral belts of the east end of the county the effect will be to bring into the timber and mineral camps hundreds, yes thousands, of men to develop those rich and vast fields. These men will extract wealth from the woods and rocks, will be large consumers and will buy and pay well for plenty of the best that can be produced. This being the case, it is high time, for the farmer who desires to become a participant in the new order of things to bestir himself to the end that he may have that to dispose of which entitles him to an equal dividend in the general wealth that is near at hand. Poultry, pork, beef, butter, eggs, potatoes, vegetables and fruit, everything that the farmer can raise will be consumed in this new market. At present there is a woeful lack of these necessary commodities and much that is offered for sale here has to be brought from the outside. Our farmers never had a brighter future in store and now is the time to make preparations and raise the products that will be demanded in a few months when hundreds of busy men in the hills will be ready cash consumers of every kind and all the produce the farmers in this section can raise.

In striking contrast to the delightful autumn weather being experienced in Oregon the news from across the Atlantic is designed to make us feel that we are indeed happily situated: A tremendous storm with torrents of rain is sweeping the north of Britain and Ireland. There have been serious floods in Yorkshire. Several of the suburbs of Dublin are flooded and elsewhere in Ireland great damage has been done by floods. Several fatal accidents have occurred and railway communication is delayed. In some parts of the country the rain has continued for 36 hours. In the Manchester district, although there has been much damage, the floods have been rather welcome than otherwise, as the mills had long suffered from the unusual drought. The seas are so high off the Tyne that shipping movements have been stopped. Even river traffic is partially suspended. Hundreds of shipyard men are idle on account of the abnormal rains. There have been a number of wrecks on the Sunderland coast.

At the meeting of the City Council on Monday evening among other routine and general business transacted, it was unanimously decided to enforce the ordinance against gambling. The immediate cause of trouble is the nickle-in-the-slot machines, but the term gambling covers a wide range, and runs from a church fair grab-bag to a back room crap game. The marshal has got a big contract on hand now. It is his bonnden duty as an officer to make arrests if he knows the law is being violated. He has so far failed to make arrests and insists that warrants be drawn for the persons supposed to be violating the law. The Recorder has several warrants drawn, but so far no one has been found willing to swear to the charges. Several who were under suspicion have appeared of their own volition and paid a nominal fine.

EXPLANATORY

In our issue of November 1st appeared a local notice in reference to the revival meeting then in progress at the Presbyterian Church. In the construction of the language we thought and intended that notice to be commendatory and most complimentary, but have since learned that some of the members of that church, after analyzing the language used, seemed to think that it contained a covert thrust at their efforts in the line of soul-saving, which was and is fartherest from our thoughts. We had not then or now any intention to roll a stone into the garden of reformation, for the observant person in this community can readily perceive a crying need of it. It is the aim of this paper to be fair, courteous and impartial to all, no matter whether they be professed Christians or members of the worldly band of sinners. It never has been the province of a paper to please everybody and it never will be, but all well-intending papers try to render the greatest good to the greatest number. On account of the notice above referred to one of our patrons this week discontinued his patronage of this paper. That patronage was not large, but it was appreciated. In so doing he perhaps has shown a creditable Christian spirit. This paper in the past has ever praised the preachers, the churches and their members, and thought by doing so it was helpful in building up the moral status of this community, and we now so believe. We can only add: Let him who is least righteous among you cast the first stone.

COMING AND GOING.

The increase in population of our town is very noticeable of late. There are so many strangers on the streets every day that some of the old boys appear to be getting lost in the shuffle. Men going and coming all the time, some being interested in looking up business locations, others with an eye to timber interests and many looking up to the great Bohemia mecca. Those who have been negligent in the past to the interests they held in that camp are now taking a most lively interest and are losing no time in doing or having done the necessary development work on their claims to prevent their loss on January 1st should the law not be complied with. All who have claims in Bohemia and care to retain them should attend to the matter now, for there will be men in that district who will gladly avail themselves of the work already done by making a relocation of all the neglected claims. Things are going to boom in that camp in the near future and those who have in the past worked hard to acquire a foothold there should now be doubly interested in making their claims secure.

DIED.

STINNETT—Near Wendling on Thursday, November 7, 1901, John Stinnett, aged 28 years.

Mr. Stinnett came to his death by drowning after being struck by a log in the pond of the Booth-Kelly Company on Mill creek, above Wendling. He was engaged as head hook-tender at one of the donkey logging machines. At the time of the accident the crew was flushing a jam of logs. Stinnett was standing on a log at the edge of the stream when the water in rising set the log to rolling, precipitating him into the stream. The water in the creek is very swift, especially during the flushing process, but he succeeded in swimming down about 150 yards and clambered upon a log near the shore. Again he was thrown off and again he swam about 100 yards and succeeded in grasping some brush along the bank, but before assistance could reach him he was hit by a log, which crushed in his ribs, and he sank to his death beneath the swift rushing waters. The body was recovered about an hour after the drowning occurred and taken to Wendling. Mr. Stinnett was aged about 28 years and leaves a wife and family. He was one of the oldest employees of the company, having been with them ever since they commenced operations in Lane county, about five years ago. He was also one of the most reliable men the company had and was strong and active. The remains were taken to Eugene and then brought here for interment. He was buried from the Cottage Grove Hotel on Saturday afternoon under the auspices of the L. O. O. F. Lodge here of which he was a member. Besides the escort of some fifty members of his lodge his funeral was attended by a large gathering of friends and relatives, and he was laid to sleep in the quiet hillside west of town under a great profusion of flowers, and amid the sorrow and prayers of those who will long cherish his memory.

M. W. OF A. TO THE RESCUE.

On Nov. 7th a number of the members of the Modern Woodmen of America, Messrs. Wm. Johnson, Geo. Comer, A. Emmerson and Messrs. McDele, accompanied by Mr. Clow, and armed with saws, hammers, etc., proceeded to the home of their less fortunate brother Eugene Miller, who had his leg broken on Oct 18th, and with hearty good will shingled and completed the construction of his new barn. The time passed pleasantly for all, for what can give more pleasure than an unsolicited deed of brotherly love and neighborly kindness. The favor was an extraordinary one and was very much appreciated by the recipients.

CARD OF THANKS.

We herewith extend our sincere thanks to the kind friends who assisted in the death and burial of our beloved husband and son. It is a token of sweet charity that can never be forgotten.
