FRIDAY, JANUARY 24, 1902.

The quarterly report of Superintendent J. D. Lee of the penitentiary gives the number of convicts as 302, an increase of ten for the quarter.

The Oregon Timberman for January comes to our table this week with sixty-eight pages of descriptive reading about the great timber interests of the state and is highly illustrated. It is indeed a fine publication and deserves a wide circulation.

Secretary F. J. Hard of the Oregon Mining Stock Exchange, who intimated his intention of resigning the office of secretary some time since, will not be permitted to execute his plans. A storm of protest has been raised by the brokers doing business on the floor of the exchange, and a determined effort will be made to get Mr. Hard to reconsider his intentions. He is the right man in the right place and should by all means be kept in the position.

After many days of successful endeavor and crowned with ample success, the friend of the prospector, mining engineer, promoter of mines and mining, capable mining man and thorough gentleman, George W. Lloyd, is back again from his eastern tour and habituated with that which makes the wheel turn round. He has gone to Bohemia and will let a contract for extending the tunnel of the Gold Cross 100 feet. Other material things which interest us all is best given in his own voice: "The Bohemia Company has sufficient money in the treasury to develop their property extensively during the coming year. The officers of the company have gone over all the details of their property, and have decided to put in concentrating works as soon as the railroad is completed, not to cost less than $50,000. As soon as spring opens it is the intention to let a 350 foot contract in extension of the Boston tunnel, it now being in over 400 feet."

OREGON MINES KNOWN

So Reports George W. Lloyd,
Just Returned From Boston.

Evening Telegram.

George W. Lloyd of Cottage Grove, president of the Crystal Consolidated Mining Company, was a visitor at the Oregon Mining Exchange this morning, having just returned from Boston, where he spent two months:

"Eastern people are beginning to think well of Oregon mines as an investment," said Mr. Lloyd this morning, "especially as they realize that most of the mines in this state are tunneling propositions. They are afraid of sinking properties, both by reason of the expense of mining and overcoming the water difficulty. There are mines in Colorado that spent $1,000,000 pumping water alone. Gold mines are in strongest demand. This is due to the fact that gold values remain unchanged. Gold is not looked upon as a commodity of fluctuating value as is copper, silver or the other metals. I look for large eastern investments in Oregon mines during the next few years, and believe I am safe in the prediction that in 10 years Oregon will be ahead of Colorado as a mining state."

Frank Whipple is down this week from Bohemia and brought some fine specimens from the morning Star mine. The boys have something nice to tie to and they are steadfast to the tie.

REDEEMED

SATURDAY'S VOTE OPENS WIDE THE GATES OF LEARNING.

Nearly a Four to One Vote in Favor of the Five Mill Tax.

The meeting on Saturday last to reconsider the action taken two weeks previous, by which our public school was closed for lack of funds, was largely attended, bringing out in force the friends of education and progress. The school was closed on a refusal to raise a five mill tax by a vote of 61 to 22. It was opened by a vote of 152 to 44.

When the meeting was called to order it was addressed by W. M. Miller, county superintendent of public instruction. He went into a detailed explanation of the disposition of school monies for this year, and clearly showed that the board of school directors had not been in receipt of the amount of money that many of our taxpayers were under the impression the board had at its disposal, consequently there could not have been a waste or leakage of money through the board. All the money handled by the board was accounted for and the great trouble was that not a sufficient amount had come into the hands of the board to maintain the actual and necessary expenses of the school for a full nine month's term.

The sight of over two hundred children with bright and smiling faces going to school on Monday morning redeemed Cottage Grove from the dark and ominous cloud that hung over it for the two previous weeks. At no time in the history of this town could the clogging of the wheels of progress be so disastrous in the closing of our school as just now. Hundreds of families are looking to this section for settlement and homes and the lack of school facilities would surely divert them to other localities, for the first thought of the wise and loving parent is the education of the child, and this thought is not confined to the educated parent alone; it is equally shared by the illiterate one, for that one more than all others realizes how badly he has been handicapped in the life struggle by not having had the benefits of the schoolroom.

Now that this school is once again in active operation the earnest, energetic and progressive workers who are striving night and day to build up this commonwealth and make it what it can and will be can look the stranger again in the face and say with pride: Yes, sir, we have a school and a good one, and we invite you and your family to come among us.

Saturday evening, 8 p. m.—Lecture, Hon. J. H. Ackerman, state superintendent public instruction.

The committee appointed by the citizen's mass meeting to procure the right of way for the proposed railroad up Row river to Bohemia, met on Monday evening and reported progress, having met with much encouragement in their endeavors in that direction. There is a general good feeling toward the road along the proposed route and the committee hope ultimately to be most successful in the adjustment of existing differences.

MISS KNIGHT AND THE DUKE.

Dispatches from London say Miss Portia Knight of Salem has been paid by the Duke of Manchester 1000 pounds or $5000 and all legal expenses incurred up to the day of settlement for keeping her breach of promise suit out of court. Her father, Col. N. B. Knight, was employed by Secretary of State Kincaid in 1897 to defend him in the Supreme Court in the mandamus suits brought to compel him to issue warrants to pay claims for which the Legislature had not appropriated any money. He received a certificate of $300 for his services. Soon afterwards he became very anxious to have a warrant issued so he could sell it for cash, explaining that he must have money to send to his daughter, then in the east. After repeated failures to have his persistent and urgent requests complied with, it was reported that he sold the certificate at a very heavy discount. He is now in London helping his daughter worry the duke, and if the telegraph tells the truth they have done him up in great shape. Mr. Zimmermann, the Cincinnati brewer, whose daughter the duke married, is no doubt finding out that dukes, with all sorts of debts and breach of promise suits and other old things hanging over them to be liquidated, are expensive luxuries. Men who sell their daughters to worthless men of worthless titles usually get their medicine sooner or later and perhaps the sooner the better.—State Journal.

A UNION SOLDIERS' HOME

A remarkable soldiers' home will be that now building at Johnson City, Tenn., where both Union and Confederate soldiers in the Civil war and volunteers in the war with Spain are to be harbored. This home will comprise thirty-five buildings, among them a memorial hall, a mess hall, a chapel and a canteen. They will occupy a site a mile and three-quarters long and three-quarters of a mile wide in the heart of the mountains. The grounds will be laid out by a landscape gardener, and each barrack will have its own park. Congress appropriated $1,000,000 for the home.—Washington Times.
