

FOR OREGON.

J. W. Phalon, representing the Great Northern Railway, was in Cottage Grove this week, and in conversation with a Nugget man, made mention of the fact that this section of Oregon, meaning the Willamette valley, would probably receive at least 40,000 eastern people who are now on their way, and arranging to come, this season. He estimates that a large per cent will make permanent location here providing that they can find what they are looking for in the matter of land and get it at prices within their reach and reason. "But," said Mr. Phalon, "the property owners here who have many hundreds of acres of land to sell, will make a mistake if they adopt the plan which has always been in vogue here, that of jumping up the price as soon as they hear that a few people in the east are thinking of coming here." He says these people are wide awake. They have been studying the country, in some cases for years, and in many instances, are well posted on the price of land in the Pacific coast states, and that they will not be found paying unreasonable prices for real estate. Here is a good chance for the owners of some of these large farms to cut them up and do something for Oregon.

LECTURE

A very interesting discourse was delivered at the M. E. Church on last Monday night, by the Rev. Tout of Eugene on the subject of temperance. Mr. Tout is organizer for the Anti-saloon League and is a practical and very sensible talker on this question and his speech has the ring of a fair and reasonable man who finds good in everything. He says he believes something may be accomplished by effort and the enforcement of law. He does not believe the whole country has gone to the "demonstration how wows" simply because the majority of the people license saloons. About 31 names were secured for membership in the League.

REMINISCE

Jenkins and Lawson have this week completed the refitting of the Cumberland Presbyterian church of this city. The design used was selected by Mr. Jenkins and the work is attracting much attention. The ceiling is pranzied and artistically decorated, while the walls now present a splendid appearance in a beautifully figured paper. Sliding doors were put in between the auditorium and the class room, and the woodwork refinished in cherry. It is said to be the nicest finished building in the city on the inside. All it needs now is finishing on the outside.

PUBLIC SCHOOL

On Friday evening March 14, at Martin's Hall, Dr. Robert C. French of the Normal training school at Monmouth, will deliver his illustrated lecture on Europe. Mr. French has traveled in Europe for sixteen months studying and the views were prepared under his direction. This is pronounced one of the best stereopticon lectures ever delivered in the state. The school is in need of dictionaries. Come and enjoy an evening in Europe and help your school.

PURCHASED CIGAR BUSINESS

Last Saturday O. O. McClellan purchased the fixtures and cigar business of A. B. Atkins. Mr. Atkins's son, Byron, who has been in charge of the business on the night run, has secured a position at his trade in his old home, and will leave soon. Mr. Atkins did not feel like running the business alone, hence the sale. Mr. McClellan has had considerable experience in the line and his friends wish him success.

IN THE BLACKSMITH BUSINESS

John W. Miller is again found presiding over the anvil in his old shop on River street. One of his first pieces of work turned out is a neat horse shoe made of steel and polished which will adorn the bar of the Exchange saloon.

LOST IN BOHEMIA

CY BINGHAM'S NARROW ESCAPE

He Went Up Against The "Real Thing" For Three Days--Bewildered and Alone.

Cy J. Bingham, who has been a familiar figure in Bohemia for the past three years, and who has a host of friends in the district and in Cottage Grove, had an adventure the latter part of last and the first part of this week, that will be impressed upon his memory to his dying day. In company with A. B. Woods, the railroad surveyor, and Bird Farrier, he started out Saturday morning on a hunt. Mr. Farrier became separated from Messrs. Woods and Bingham early in the forenoon and returned to the Warehouse, from whence they started. About noon Messrs. Woods and Bingham separated in an effort to get their bearings, for their return home. Mr. Woods reached the Warehouse about four o'clock, but Mr. Bingham did not get in. Sunday search was made but no trace of Cy could be found. Monday morning a phone was received here, announcing the facts, and a phone was sent to I. H. Bingham, brother of Cy, of Portland, who arrived here that afternoon and in company with H. V. Behne, started immediately for the scene. Monday the mountains were full of miners and woodsmen in search of the missing man, and when the searches reached the Warehouse Monday night, they reported having found his tracks in the Lang Creek canyon, but were unable to follow them. Tuesday searching parties were sent out in all directions; and one went up Lang Creek, while another started at the head to come down. Shortly after noon a phone was received at the central office this city, that Mr. Behne had just arrived bearing the news that Mr. Bingham had been found and was alright.

WHAT HAPPENED.

Wednesday Mr. Bingham called up a Nugget man on the phone just to say "Hello." It seemed good to hear the familiar voice again, and to know that the clever young mountaineer was in the land of the living after so thrilling an adventure. Mr. Bingham says he lost his bearings immediately after leaving Mr. Woods, and wandered, no one knows where, but in all probability over the big ridge into the Johnson Meadows country. Here he realized that he was entirely off and put back and it took him all day Sunday to get back to his starting point. Then he struck down into the canyon to the water course of Lang Creek. He took this course and although tired and weak, he plodded along down stream with the only hope that he would hold out until he came to the settlement. He was within about five miles of a rancher's cabin when he was met by the searching party. Mr. Bingham says he was completely turned around and had no idea where he was when he was met by his rescuers. He had been three days without food, but had taken extremely good care of himself having built fires and dried his clothes twice a day and always making a camp at night. This method coupled with his good judgment in staying with the water course and his splendid physical strength is what saved him. While building a camp fire he cut his hand badly, but aside from that and a kind of "tired" feeling, Cy's O. K. and his friends are happy.

RUNAWAY

Mr. Ernest of Latham had the misfortune to have his team run away Monday noon. They were left standing in front of Gale's harness shop, and becoming tired of waiting, started for home. In their dream of home and oats and baled hay, etc., they increased their speed, and at Stone's mill they lightened their load by leaving the wagon bed and hind wheels. When last seen they were still hitting the high places near Latham.

ENTERTAINMENT

The benefit given at Martin's Hall Wednesday night for the band boys was fairly patronized by the public, with the view of helping the organization. The cause was a worthy one; but the show, well

Sir Andrew Clark was accustomed to define old age as the period of life at which a man no longer adjusted himself to his environment.

THE VESUVIUS SOLD.

The sale of the Vesuvius and Milwaukee claims, on last Monday, consummated a very important mining deal in the Bohemia district. This property was located and developed by the Graber Bros., and from the present showing will, evidently, prove one of the most valuable pieces of property in the district. The mine was bonded several weeks ago for $17,000 and shortly afterwards a ledge, of immense value, was brought to light, which has greatly increased the worth of the property. While the Graber Bros. only received $7,000 for their mine it is safe to say that it could not be purchased today for ten times that amount. Mr. F. J. Hard is the promoter of this big deal and is deserving of congratulation.
