CHINESE EXCLUSION

BENATOR MITCHELL MAKES THE OPENING SPEECH.

Measure Is on the Same Basis as the Existing Law-Though Its Provisions Are Drastic They Are More Liberal in Some Respects Than Those of The Geary Act Which It Is to Replace

Washington, April 7 .- The senate has begun the consideration of the Chinese exclusion bill, Mitchell making the opening speech. He pointed out forcefully the necessity for the exclusion of Chinese laborers, and carefully and elaborately analyzed the bill. He said that it had been constructed on the basis of existing law, in the light of experience and of the decisions of The city tonight is guarded by a comthe courts. No radical departure was proposed from the statutes now in oper tion, the bill being a virtual codification of the existing laws and regulations concerning the admission to this country of Chinese persons. The aim of the framers was carefully to avoid anything which might give just cause for offense to the Chinese empire, and to an extent at least, it was a more liberal measure, so far as the exempted class were concerned, than that which is now on the statute books.
