FRIDAY, APRIL 10, 1001.

According to the Oregonian the has increased since January 1. 1892, a period of fourteen months, over 44,000. This is said to be the Oliver Veatch and J. M. Durham. heaviest increase during a like In June 1900, Oregon's population fought, although little ill feeling was trail it was up to him to put a curb of 413,256, in figuring the natural increase of 2% per cent, and adding the immigration for the nineteen months from June 1900 to Jan. 1, 1902, which was prohably 15,000, it is estimated that the present population of the state is $10,000. This is a remarkably good showing. It shows that Oregon is now thoroughly introduced in the east. For years people of the middle states were little acquainted with Oregon, in fact had little knowledge of the Pacific coast, and for years the immigration, especially to Oregon, has been comparatively few. At the present time through the efforts of railroad, realestate men and boards of trade literature, not fiction but facts, has been circulated east. Today our state is receiving a goodly proportion of the easterners. They are scattering from one end of the state to the other, engaging in various occupa- April 10th at s.p. m. tions, bound to be to their gain and to the state's. For years the county convention has been flooded with tickets short, long and medium, while those who have won out by this system are naturally pleased, the system is wrong in the primaries. A ticket composed of a liberal number of names should be presented to the convention and "short" tickets left out. A man that is not willing to take his chance on a proposition of this kind is not fit to represent his county in convention. The resolution adopted last . Saturday, if religiously followed, will do away with much of the clash and bitter feeling that always exists at such times, and that should not exist. It may be more difficult to be fair and honest in the resolution being fathered by a ton, E. Matlock, I. Bilyeu, E. R. but it should not be, and those who talk purity of the ballot, should encourage every move calcalated to bring about such a condition. A particular reason why ernment does not legislate in any manner against the weak, because of weakness. In the past, outside trains and unawares to the railroad of weakness. In the past, outside precincts have had unjust represen-tation by reason of their small delegations and inability to organ-ize, while the larger places, like Rugene for instance, being on the ground, have had every opportunity to control and elect a delegation desirable.
