FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 18, 1903.

There are a few men in this section that are not only inhuman to themselves but to the beasts of burden that have been unfortunate enough to fall into their possession. One day last week, one of these men, who is, by the way, an habitual drunkard, came to town early in the morning and tied his horse to one of the public hitching racks. According to all reports, the horse stood there from about nine o'clock until way into the night. The writer is personally aware that the horse stood at the rack from eleven until into the night. Not a mouthful of water nor feed of any description was given the animal, and at the noon hour the horse was calling to the passerby for attention, and repeated the call in impatient and distressed tones at snapper time. The owner of the horse, was in the mean time, filling up his old carcass on booze, always his want, when in town. About 7:30 o'clock that evening, the owner, in the company of another drunken boozer, hunted up the horse and tried to bridle him, presumably with the view of one of them riding home. The men were so drunk that they could not get the bridle on the horse, and after much drunken profanity and indecent talk on one of the principal streets of Cottage Grove, gave the task up and returned the horse to the hitching post. Shortly afterward the marshal's attention was called to the matter and that official made the owner put the horse in a barn under penalty of being arrested for cruelty to animals. The owner of the horse is well known in this community—too well known—for his drunkenness and uncouth ways. He is a man of family, and were it not for the feelings of his family and relatives, he would have had some good newspaper advertising long ago. The next time, however, he mistreats his horse in like manner, and it comes to the attention of the Nugget, a warrant will be sworn out charging him with drunkenness and cruelty to animals, and besides he will get a good airing in the press.

There are two things that can be done by a father for his daughter, and that, if they were always done, would in the course of a single generation, make our womankind approach a level which they have never yet reached. The first is to gain the confidence of his daughter in her earlier years, and the second is to keep it unimpaired and to perpetuate it. If he be his daughter's friend and chosen companion, sharing all her little confidences and imparting to her much of what he knows, with the intuition of a woman and the breadth and sanity of a man, the girl will grow up with a mind unlike the minds of the many women in whom femininity verges upon fatuity. From close association with a father, the young girl quite unconsciously acquires something of the largeness of the man's nature and loses something of the pettiness and narrowness of the woman's. His tolerant, genial spirit will moderate her tense emotionalism. His sense of humor will rid her of sentimentalism and imbue her with a sense of true proportion. His fun, his good comradeship, his affection, and his knowledge of life, will help to send her forth into the world, strengthened and developed as no purely feminine influence could strengthen and develop her.—February Cosmopolitan.

When the poor American citizen starts out to take a timber claim and pay uncle Sam's prescribed price for the same, he is confronted by all sorts of leading questions and a great howl is made about the frauds that are being perpetrated. Secretary Hitchcock is so energetic in his efforts to unearth the little frauds, that he has overlooked some of the big ones. We should like to know Mr. Hitchcock's views on the Northern Pacific script proposition that plasters thousands of acres of the best timber land in Oregon, notwithstanding that that company hasn't a mile of track in the state.

It has been announced by Alfred Wallace that the earth is the only inhabited planet. This batch of startling news will be received with much apprehension by the citizens of the United States, since the government has gone into the wholesale reserving business.

The Nugget is fast growing in favor, and is becoming recognized as a responsible mining paper. The average extra edition per week for the past six months has been 200 copies. This speaks for itself.

DIVIDE ITEMS.

G. H. Miller went to Eugene the first of the week. Bert Lee and family were visiting friends on the Siuslaw Sunday. W. W. Tucker and family are spending a few days at their Siuslaw farm. Jack Tramel has sold his ranch here to P. Lindstrom and will go back to "old Missouri".

Frank Hull, of Coast Fork, is visiting friends here and looking for a position in the sawmill.

Steve Tonoto who lost his eyesight over a year ago, has gone to New York to see if he can be cured.

Rev Moore conducted church services at the school house Sunday. Owing to the uncertain weather but few people were out.

As the amount realized from the ice cream social to purchase an organ for the school was only $9.75. A subscription is being taken to secure the balance.

Married—Sept. 15, 1903, George Keifer and Miss Viola Tramel. The young couple are very popular and have the best wishes of the whole community.

STOMACH TROUBLE.

I have been troubled with my stomach for the past four years," says L. L. Beach, of Clover, Nook Farm, Greenfield, Mass. "A few days ago I was induced to buy a box of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. I have taken part of them and feel a great deal better. If you have any trouble with your stomach, try a box of these Tablets. You are certain to be pleased with the result. Price 25 cents. For sale by The Modern Pharmacy.

WANTED.

RAISED FROM THE DEAD.

C. W. Landis, "Porter" for the Oriental Hotel, Chanote, Kan., says: "I know what it was to suffer with neuralgia deed I did, and I got a bottle of Ballard's Snow Lament and I was 'raised from the dead.' I tried to get some more, but before I had 'deposited' my bottle I was cured entirely. I am telling the truth too." 25c, 50c and $1.00 at New Era Drug Store.

FOR SALE.

One horse, three years old in the spring. Inquire at Miller livery barn, West Side.

21 YEARS A DYSEPTIC.

R. H. Foster, 313 S. 21st St. Salt Lake City, writes: "I have been bothered with dyspepsia or indigestion for 21 years; tried many doctors without relief; recently I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough and Liver Tablets. One bottle cured me, I am now tapering off on the second. I have recommended it to my friends; it is curing them, too." 50c at New Era Drug Store.

WANTED.

Wood and country produce taken in exchange for photographs at Shanefelt gallery, West Side.

WHAT IS LIFE?

In the last analysis nobody knows, but we do know that it is under strict law. Abuse that law even slightly, and results. Irregular means the disorganization of the organs, resulting in Constipation, Headache or Liver Trouble. Dr. King's New Life Pills quickly readjusts this. It's gentle, yet thorough. Only 25c at Morgan & Brehant's Drug Store.

FOR SALE.

At a bargain, one thirteen hundred pound horse, 8 years old. Inquire of Miller Bros., West Side livery barn.

OWES HIS LIFE TO A NEIGHBOR'S KINDNESS.

Mr. D. P. Daugherty, well known throughout Mercer and Sumner counties, W. Va., most likely owes his life to the kindness of a neighbor. He was almost hopelessly afflicted with diarrhoea; was attended by two physicians who gave little, if any, relief, when a neighbor learning of his serious condition, brought him a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, which cured him in less than twenty-four hours. For sale by The Modern Pharmacy.

REDUCED RATES TO OREGON STATE FAIR.

"The Oregon State Fair will be held at Fair Grounds September 14th to 19th.

The Southern Pacific Co. will sell tickets to Fair Grounds and return, at one and one-third fare from all points on its Oregon Lines.

Special exhibits of fine cattle and horses and agricultural products have been prepared, and every effort will be put forth to make this the greatest fair in the history of Oregon. If you are interested in the development of the state (and of course you are) you cannot afford to miss the Fair this year."

A REMARKABLE RECORD.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has a remarkable record. It has been in use for over thirty years, during which time many million bottles have been sold and used. It has long been the standard and main reliance in the treatment of croup in thousands of homes, yet during all this time no case has ever been reported to the manufacturers in which it failed to effect a cure. When given as soon as the cough rough appears, it will prevent the attack. It is pleasant to take, many children like it. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by The Modern Pharmacy.

WANTED.

A good girl for household work. Apply at residence of T. K. Campbell.

EARTH IS THE ONLY INHABITED PLANET.

Alfred Russell Wallace, whose treatise on man's place in nature and the assertion therein that the earth was the center of the entire solar system excited so much controversy among scientists in the early part of this year, replies to his critics in the current issue of the Independent. In this contribution he repeats his belief that the earth is the only inhabited planet.

Professor Wallace admits that in his former articles he had written somewhat hastily, and said that he made "several suggestions and admissions which were of little importance to my general subject, but which laid me open to adverse criticism." He continues that the three more important criticisms of his work were:

"That I have given no proof that the stars are not infinite; that the sun's motion through space shows that our present central position can only be temporary, and that there is no advantage whatever in a central position."

In reply to the first of these objections, Professor Wallace cites the authority of many astronomers of repute in support of the theory that the stellar universe is limited in extent. As to the sun's motion through space and the world's central relation thereto, more astronomical evidence is presented.

"My chief astronomical critics," he says, "have misled their readers by setting before them the supposed motion of the sun as if it were certainly in a straight line and not in some orbit around a center, and also as if both its direction and velocity were determined by methods of observation as secure as those by which the distances of the sun and of the nearest stars have been measured."

His first article, he adds, has led him into a much deeper study of the whole subject, and the conclusions he has reached are to be embodied in a forthcoming work.

"The careful study of the whole subject during the preparation of this work," he says "has greatly strengthened the position I took in my first article. In the portion devoted to the biology and physics of the earth and solar system especially I have found that such delicate adjustments and such numerous combinations of physical and chemical conditions are required for the development and maintenance of life as to render it in the highest degree improbable that they should be again found combined in any planet; while within the solar system this improbability approaches very near indeed to a certainty.

In the astronomical portion of the volume also I have shown that a large body of facts due to recent researches have a direct question upon the question of there being other inhabited planets revolving around other suns. On this question, of course, there can be no direct evidence; but the facts that I adduce will, I think, satisfy those who come to the subject without prepossessions on one side or the other that the combination of probabilities against such an occurrence are so great as to lead to the provisional conclusion that our earth is the only inhabited planet in the whole stellar universe."
