SUNDAY CLOSING.

The Sunday Closing Law Interests a Bohemian—He Comments on Articles Published in Bohemia Nugget and Sides in With "Observer"

Bohemia, Ore.,
Sept., 17, '03.

Editor Bohemia Nugget:

In your issue of Sept. 4th appeared an article by "an Observer" and in the issue of Sept. 11 an answer by C. H. Wallace; now it seems to the writer that he did not make a very careful perusal of the article by "Observer," or else he does not know what the antecedent of "this" is; now the article in question says: "He (God) calls and pleads:" Give me now thy heart, but he does not make a machine out of a man and force him to do his bidding.

Now, Sunday laws do this very thing.— Now what does the Sunday law do! Does it as Mr. W. says, Mr. O. says, try to control the individual conscience, or does it try to force [or to force] him to do his bidding?" Now it seems to the writer that "Observers's" language means Sunday laws make a machine out of a man to force him [a man] to do His [God's] bidding. Now the difficulty with Mr. W. is, that he cannot see that Sunday legislation tries to control the conscience indirectly: for he says, "All Sunday laws is for the government of conduct, human action, not conscience;" well and good, but if a man kills another he is immediately arrested,—if possible—and if it happens to be Sunday he is "thrown in" till next day; but he is not arrested because he did it on Sunday but because it is a crime toward his fellowman: but if a man opens his store he is arrested and taken care of, because it is Sunday, and a crime against some ones' God.

It is a crime to kill at any time, but not to open a store—except on Sunday. Now it seems that a man's conscience could dictate to him what was a sin against his God and not some other person.

So Mr. W. says. "A man with a thimble full of brains knows you can no more control the individual conscience by statute law than you can control a cyclone with a hand bellows".

Then why does he advocate the trying of it? Or hasn't he that much brains? For it—Sunday legislation—certainly does try to.

But if it is not clear to him yet, let him make another examination of "Observer's" article. It says, "Sunday laws do this very thing," that is tries to "make a machine out of a man;" but let us ask, how? Read on. "It—Sunday legislation—interferes with the right of the individual conscience to worship how, when and where he pleases, or not to worship at all if he so chooses." And still more he quotes from Hon. I. S. Ewart, K. C. Winnipeg, of Manitoba, saying, "I believe legislation to enforce Sunday observation is not only determinal to the best interests of society, but is an improper and unwarranted interference with the great Protestant right of private judgement in all matters pertaining to religion." So by Mr. W's. statement we must conclude that Mr. Ewart has not as much as a thimble full of brains.

And, as Hon. R. M. Veatch said, in his oration at London, Ore., July 4, 1903. "All men are born equal and shall remain so before the law. We must conclude that one man's opinion would be as good before the law as another's".

So if it is some ones opinion that such and such a person should be made to refrain from doing business on a certain day, because they think he should worship God, and he does not think so, his opinion is just as good before the law as their's. So we see that no matter how we look at the Sunday question we find that it does conflict with the right of the individual conscience to worship God, when they please.

QUARANTINE.

In view of the fact that there has been some discussion of late regarding the quarantine law the Nugget herewith publishes the following, as published under Rule XII of the Rules and Regulations of the Oregon State Board of Health published July, 1903, for the benefit of all interested:

DIPHTHERIA OR MEMBRANOUS CROUP.

For the patient, isolation for fourteen (14) days after complete recovery, and disinfection of the premises. For persons associated with, or in the house with the patient: adults, quarantine until after death or recovery of patient and disinfection of selves and premises Children: quarantine for seven days after disinfection of premises, unless antitoxin has been given for the purpose of rendering such child immune; then quarantine three days after disinfection.

SCARLET FEVER.

Isolation of patient and quarantine of children associated with or in the house with the patient for ten (10) days after complete desquamation or scaling of patient, and disinfection of premises.

SMALLPOX.

For the patient, isolation until after all crusts or scales have fallen off, and the disinfection of the patient's body and the premises. For exposed persons: Quarantine for fourteen (14) days from date of last exposure; or in case of thorough vaccination, they can be given their liberty at the discretion of health officer, on their promise to report to health officer or physician, satisfactory to him, every forty-eight hours after exposure until all danger is over, for at least fourteen days.

For all other contagious diseases for such period of time as is deemed best by the State Board of Health.

It is urgently advised by the State Health Board that all municipalities of one thousand or more population, should secure a cottage of at least four rooms, and upward, in proportion to their population, in which could be promptly isolated patients suffering from any form of contagious disease, together with a trained nurse, or member of their own family to serve as such, thus avoiding the necessity of quarantining the entire family, or detaining from his occupation the breadwinner of the family, permitting the house to be fumigated at once, and avoiding the exposure to continued danger of infection of other members of the family shut up with the patient in ordinary house quarantine.

QUESTION ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers' and grandmothers' never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and had with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. You can get this reliable remedy at Garman & Hemenway Co. Price 25c and 75c.
