

BOHEMIA NUGGET.

C. J. Howard - Editor
Barton C. Y. Brown - Business Mgr.
Entered the postoffice at Cottage Grove, Oregon as second class mail matter.

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 9 1903.

The spirit of progress is taking root in this city. Everyone is awakening to the realization that the opportunities for a city of many thousand population is within the province of Cottage Grove.

The attack upon and the robbery of Mr. James Kerr, on Row river, one day last week, should convince anyone that it is not policy to carry any considerable sum of money on one's person nor should it be kept in one's house.

Gov. Chamberlain, it is announced, will probably leave Salem next Saturday for Washington to confer with President Roosevelt regarding land matters.

Through the efforts of Professor Briggs a course of lectures and entertainments will be given in this city this season, by some of the brightest entertainers before the American public.

It is announced that President Roosevelt will touch upon the "Postoffice and other government scandals" in his message, and will express the intention of the administration to prosecute all offenders to the bitter end.

The recent heavy rains should be hailed with gratitude throughout the inland of Oregon. In many towns in Oregon the sewerage is anything but good, and during dry falls more or less sickness appears.

The public schools of this city opened last Monday with a heavy increase in attendance. A splendid staff of teachers has been secured and the season's work is now well under way.

HAWATHAS' SONG OF GOLD.

(A Parody.)
As unto him the staff of life is,
No unto him is the gold that lures it;

There are other things besides this
For which the soul of man is yearning—

Years for love—the love of woman;
And to gain this priceless jewel—
Jewel when 'tis pure and Holy.

While he pondered o'er the picture,
'Posed of his love succeeding,
Hawatha bent his efforts,

As he sat there 'neath the shade trees,
In the shades of fir and hemlock,
Ate his venison, the "How-wich,"

He learned a great truth,
It is said of John Wesley that he once said to Mistress Wesley: "Why do you tell that child to think over again?"

FOUND.
