ORCHARD PLANTING.

Plain and Practical Directions For Setting Out Apple Trees.

We first set what I call the sighting stakes, 152 in all for a double row all around a nine acre field, says W. I. Chamberlain in Ohio Farmer. We took for each stake two pine fence laths, ¾ by 1¾ inch by 4 feet; sharpened one, planed the other, nailed the two together with two shingle nails driven slanting, lapping the laths one foot so as to make the stakes seven feet long. The top half is planed so as to make it more easily seen forty rods off.

With good tape line begin, say, at the southeast corner of the field (see Fig.

LAYING OUT AN ORCHARD.

1), measure just one rod from the south line of the lot and set the first stake quite close to the east line; second stake two rods north of that, and so on northward across the east side, and so on for the other three sides, end trees one rod from line; other trees two rods apart. We set the planed side of the stake toward the field. Then I stand outside the first stake on the east line and sight across to the first stake on west side, with a man and a loose stake about four rods from each of these two line stakes. I wave with the hand, north or south, to the further man until his stake is set in exact line; then the same to the nearer man. Then all move north two rods and sight and set stakes as before, and so on until the sighting stakes are all set in the four inner rows, each two inner stakes in exact line with the two corresponding outside ones.

The tree stakes are made as follows: Saw old tree splitting pine boards into eight inch lengths and with a sharp hatchet sharpen each stake with one blow and then split it off with another blow, as thin as it will split well. For nine acres you will want 720 of these, two for each tree. Now take a basketful of these setting stakes and take for a sighting pole a straight rake handle, long enough to reach from the ground up to your eye and pointed at the lower end, and begin, say, at the southeast corner. Move and sight both west and north until you are in exact line with the three stakes west of you (one rod north of south line) and with the three stakes north of you (one rod west of the east line). Hold your sighting pole plumb, move it into exact line both ways, press it down and set a setting stake firmly in the hole made by the sharp end of your sighting pole. Drop one loose setting stake close by the one set in the ground, for future use. Now move two rods westward and sight west and north as before and set and drop two setting stakes, and so on to the end of that row of trees. Then move two rods northward along the west side (where you then are) and set the setting stakes for the second row of trees from the south, and so on for the entire field.

Let the setting board be about six feet long and six inches wide. Bore an inch and a half hole midway of the width near each end and in the middle of its length. Saw in to this last, making it horseshoe shape, as shown in Fig. 2. Place this setting board with the horseshoe toe against the setting stake, stick the loose stake into the ground at one end hole, pull the middle stake and stick it in at the other end hole, then remove the board and dig the hole for the tree about three feet in diameter and about a foot deep, and with its center just where the setting stake first stood.

When you are ready to set the trees place the end holes of the setting board over the two setting stakes, with the heel of the horseshoe toward the south, and move the trunk of the little apple tree up snug to the toe of the horseshoe, and the base of the tree will be exactly in line in all directions. The trees should be set leaning slightly toward the prevailing winds.

Concerning Corn Prices.

With a crop of corn 500,000,000 bushels less than that of last year in prospect many people are jumping to the conclusion that prices for that grain will be proportionately higher than they are now. Therefore, they reason, this will be a better year to sell corn than to feed it. Corn may be higher than it is now, for the crop is not safe yet, but the effect of the lessened yield has already been discounted in market, as is shown by the present high price level. Furthermore, it is very likely that much less corn will be needed than last year. Not so much stock will be fed, nor will so much of the crop be devoted to replenishing the reserves which were practically exhausted when the last crop was harvested. Under these conditions, unless there is great damage to the crop by early frost, it is well not to expect too much of corn prices, advises National Stockman.

Harvesting the Colorado Onion Crop.

The onion harvest is commonly begun by the 15th of September, and the crop is usually out of the field by the middle of October. Harvesting should begin promptly when the bulbs are mature, as is indicated by the withering of the tops and the yellowing of the necks. The onions are pulled by hand and thrown into windrows, where they are allowed to remain for several days to cure. After the curing process is complete the bulbs are topped, sorted and sacked. Topping is done by cutting off the tops about half an inch above the bulb, care being taken to make a smooth, clean cut and not to injure the outer coverings. If more is left on it detracts from the appearance and if cut closer the bulb is likely to be injured.

In Colorado the onions are sorted and sacked in the field, making but one grade. The small and unmarketable bulbs, together with the scallions, are left on the ground. Gunny sacks holding about 100 pounds are the only packages used. Ordinarily damage by rain is not feared after the onions are sacked, but if they do become wet they should be left in the field until dry. The sacks should be turned as soon as the tops are dry in order that the bottoms may have equal chance to dry out. This is especially true if the ground is wet. The growers do not usually attempt to hold their crop, but haul it directly to the car or to the dealer's warehouse. All onions should be out of the field by the 1st of November. —Wendell Paddock.

RENEWING THE RANGE.

The Various Merits of the Blue Joint and the Buffalo Grasses.

The value of grama, or buffalo grass, on the range is well known. Concerning two other grasses of great importance in the renewal of the ranges J. W. Blankenship of Montana says:

The blue joint (Agropyron spicatum and related species) is one of these, and its value for hay and for grazing is too well known to need mention. This is found throughout most of the plains region and occurs in low ground mainly, where there is not too much alkali, and forms the best native hay lands of this region. Where it is too wet it is drowned out and replaced by wire grass, rushes and sedges. In the drier situations its place is taken by other dry land species. This makes the best hay on the market, and the only thing that prevents it from becoming a leading grass in cultivation is its relatively thin distribution and consequently small yield. It spreads freely by underground shoots and can stand a good amount of pasturage, but a variety has not yet been found that will afford a growth sufficient to compete with timothy, alfalfa or clover. Its chief economic use is to afford a wild hay on uncultivated ground where irrigation is not possible. It is probable that by experimental cultivation we may find a variety or secure one by selection that will become one of the important hay crops for the arid regions.

There is a grass worthy of mention because its value has been long and well tested in the plains of Nebraska, Kansas and Texas and because its habits approach closely those of the grama or buffalo grass, with which it has been often confused. This is the true buffalo grass, or the "little buffalo grass" (Bulbilis dactyloides), as it is sometimes called to distinguish it from the grama. This is now spreading into the state from the southeast. It is smaller and even closer set than the grama grass, and its fruiting stalks are not half as high. It spreads in the same way, by runners lying close to the ground and rooting at the joints, but these runners are much longer than in the grama, and consequently its spread should be much faster.

These three grasses seem to offer a solution for the exhausted ranges of the state, for the last two at least cannot be killed by ordinary pasturage and furnish far more and better forage than the common range grasses.

DOES IT PAY TO BUY CHEAP?

A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a warmer and more regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the only remedy that has been introduced in all civilized countries with success in severe throat and lung troubles "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but allays inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle. Recommended many years by all druggists in the world. You can get this reliable remedy at Garman & Hemenway Co. Price 25c and 75c.

QUESTION ANSWERED.

Yes, August Flower still has the largest sale of any medicine in the civilized world. Your mothers' and grandmothers' never thought of using anything else for Indigestion or Biliousness. Doctors were scarce, and they seldom heard of Appendicitis, Nervous Prostration or Heart failure, etc. They used August Flower to clean out the system and stop fermentation of undigested food, regulate the action of the liver, stimulate the nervous and organic action of the system, and that is all they took when feeling dull and had with headaches and other aches. You only need a few doses of Green's August Flower, in liquid form, to make you satisfied there is nothing serious the matter with you. You can get this reliable remedy at Garman & Hemenway Co. Price 25c and 75c.
