March of Modern Improvement Re-Very few of Dickens' houses remain One after another of the quaint old buildings described in his novels or in which their scepes were laid are being torn away to give room to modern of fice buildings. "The Old Curlosity Shop," the home of little Nell, can still be identified in an old paper and junk warehouse in Portsmouth street, near the courts, and near by, at No. 58, is the home of Mr. Tulkinghorn, the law-yer in "Bleak House." It was occu-pled for a long time by John Forster, the biographer of Dickens. Oliver Goldsmith lived and died in No. 2 Brick court, Middle Temple Lane, up two flights of stairs, and is buired in the adjoining churchyard. Blackstone wrote his commentaries in the next building, and his room may be seen to-day. Thackersy and Tom Taylor lived at No. 10, and Milton spent several years in the same locality. Nearly every one of the old buildings is identified with historic characters.

Over on Holborn, one of the great arteries of trade, several of the Dickens houses may be easily found by the use of the Dickens Dictionary. bey & Son are real people and have a tailor shop in the city. Mr. Dombey's house, which Dickens says "stood on the shady side of a tall, dark, dreadfully genteel %treet," may be one of a dozen or more answering that descrip tion. Admiral Lord Nelson, Lord Byron and Turner, the celebrated painter, fived in the same block. A GENTLE PROFESSOR

Two Anecdotes of an Old-Time Yale Instructor.

Dr. Dwight, in his "Memories of Yale Life and Mon," gives many a glimpse of the gracious men who made for themselves a good name at the same time that they built up the reputation of the university. College life half a century ago was as unlike the life of to-day as the instruction now given is unlike the work of the old recitation room. Dr. Dwight tells two stories of Professor Silliman, one of which illustrates the educational and the other the disciplinary spirit of the

"To Young Works:—I suffered for six years with dysmenor-rhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it means three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by reposted and neglected solds.

"If young girls only realized how dang rous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine which helped me any. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerable. ably.
