U. S. Assay OFFICE.

The letter of A. L. Morris, secretary of the Oregon Miners' Association which appears on the first page of this issue shows that efforts are being made to secure a public assay office for the State of Oregon. It also shows the action of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce in attempting to prevent the American Mining Congress from lending its influence in this direction. We believe the Congress is justified in its action. If it can assist this or any other state in securing those things which are needed for the welfare of its industries, and especially in matters pertaining to mining, we believe it ought and will do so.

Any one at all familiar with the matter knows that a considerable part of the gold produced in this state is accredited to other states which have been furnished an assay office. Oregon's production of the precious metals will rapidly increase and it should have this recognition from the government. All should work to the securing of the office regardless of what portion of the state it may be located.

THE ESSENTIAL INDUSTRY.

Here is a large fact contained within a small compass: "During the year 1903 mine products furnished 52 per cent of the total railway haulage of the United States."

That is, indeed, a very large fact one that the railway companies and other business interests of the country should carefully note and remember, and in remembering, realize how largely dependent they are upon the mining industry for the profits they make in their respective businesses.

That they have, all of them, been slow to reach a full realization of this fact—it is doubtful whether they still fully comprehend it—is prominently in the mining world, says the Sumpter Miner; he who has through good fortune secured the backing of a few wealthy men, feels his oats, becomes irritatingly "chesty," and never overlooks an opportunity to sneer at "stock schemes." The average individual would much prefer to deal with a few men in securing money for mining operations than with hundreds, but it is far more difficult to secure money in large amounts than in many small "bunches," so the vast majority of operators must resort to the latter method, offer their stock for sale to all who will buy. A dozen promoters succeed in this way to one who interests large capital.

The State of Oregon has $4,000,000 of school funds drawing interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum.

Governor Chamberlain recently visited Roseburg and directed that new barracks be furnished at once, providing quarters for 46 veterans now on the waiting list.

Pacific University won the intercollegiate debate from the Oregon University in their recent contest.

According to reports of sales made in Oregon the past month nearly a million dollars has been paid for mining properties during that time.

The Millionaire mine in Jackson county, Oregon, has been sold to Indianapolis people for $40,000. A certified check for $10,000 was given as the first payment.

State Senator Booth of Lane county has arranged to give the class in animal husbandry of Corvallis College, a trip among the principal Jersey stock farms in the state.

IT IS A MATTER OF HEALTH

THE CHATTANOOGA ADVERTISING The Chattanooga Medicine Company, with laboratories and general offices at Chattanooga, Tennessee, and branch houses at St. Louis, Mo., and San Francisco, Cal., has become one of the largest proprietary medicine concerns in the world. In the growth of this great business two factors have been dominant: The merit of its products—Wine of Cardui and Dr. Williams' Pink-Drugs—has been widely recognized and the original advertising methods adopted have excited great comment. The publicity for these medicines does not consist of the catch phrase and extravagant statement, too often employed in advertising today, but instead the plain story of experience with the medicines given in the plain language of the people themselves. The following letter is a fair sample of the thousands of Wine of Cardui testimonials published during the past twenty years.

CLIMATIC CURES.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overdrawn. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectation in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweats. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer climate, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 75c; regular size, 75c. At all druggists. Garman & Hemenway Co.
