THE CHATTANOOGA ADVERTISING

The Chattanooga Medicine Company, with laboratories and general offices at Chattanooga, Tennessee, and branch houses at St. Louis, Mo., and San Francisco, Cal., has become one of the largest proprietary medicine concerns in the world. In the growth of this great business two factors have been dominant: The merit of its products—Wine of Cardui and Theodor's Black-Draught—has been widely recognized and the original advertising methods adopted have excited great comment. The publicity for these medicines does not consist of the catch phrase and extravagant statement, too often employed in advertising today, but instead the plain story of experience with the medicines given in the plain language of the people themselves. The following letter is a fair sample of the thousands of Wine of Cardui testimonials published during the past twenty years.

Sunday afternoon the Divide baseball nine played its first matched game since its organization. The nine was matched against the Latham nine both strong teams. The score was rather high 21 to 21 in a game of 10 innings, but the game was the best ever played at Divide. Divide appeared in uniform and they made an excellent showing. Divide expects to play Drain next Sunday and a return game with Latham the Sunday after.

LONDON BRIEFS.

May 11, 1904.

The readers of the Nugget will note we trust with pleasure that the revival services at Liberty hall, London, is doing well under the management of the elders and Elder W. Bales of Tillamook county, who is conducting the meeting with his old time preaching. Come up and listen to him he will do you good. The past Sunday we had two sermons in the forenoon one by Rev. Mr. Woodley of the Divinity school at Eugene and one by Elder K. Bales in the afternoon, and between the two we had a sumptuous meal—well, say, such an aggregation of chicken pie and cake, in fact after everybody had eaten there was just plenty left, and such an old-fashioned social time we had was grand. The people of this community are fraternal and kind and if you happen this way you will always be welcome to share the liberality of this people. The meeting will continue over next Sunday, and last Sunday's program will be repeated. Come one and all. The roads are fine now; the mineral springs are turning out their sparkling waters; the campus is fine, come and refresh both the inner and outer man.

T. K. Campbell passed by this way in company with some stranger, we presume he was looking after his milling interest.
