And once, when he ass away on a holiday and a journal ist came to the door to inquire if it ras true that the poet was dead, she ndignantly answered: "I have not seard so, and I am sure my master is not the kind of a man to do such thing without letting us know."

Wallenstein, Wellington, never be able to find it in all that Von Moltke, Grant, Mariborough, Charlemagne, Hannibal, Caesar, all gave their orders in as few words as possible, and demanded like brevity from their subordinates, It is said that Marlborough never allowed more than minute for a verbal report, and it is old of Von Moltke that when an aidede-camp brought a written message that France had declared war, the great general simply ordered it filed in the "second pigeon-hole on the right, first tier." In that pigeon-hole were complete plans for the successful eampaign that followed.

Here is an anecdote which William Dean Howells tells of his first personal recognition as a writer: "Years ago, one evening after a day of lonely sight-seeing in Montreal, I returned to the otel where I was stopping, and conulted the register in the hope of finding the name of some acquaintance. I was disappointed, and, turning away, met two well-dressed young men who embraced the register eagerly, and, presently, one of them said, to my great surprise and joy: 'Hello, Tom'; Here's Howells,' 'Oh!' I excisimed, turning toward them, 'I was just looking for some one I knew. I'm glad to see you. I hope you're some fellows who know me? THEATERS OF OLD COUNTRY. In Many Cities They Are Controlled by the Government.

The recent theater horror in Chicago has turned the attention of the country toward theaters in general and numer ous cities are hurrying to "get their iouses in order" that such a catastrophe may not occur to them, says the Municipal Journal and Engineer. It would speak better for these cities if they did not need such prompting. In many cities on the continent the operation of theaters is not left to private concerns, but the municipalities bave erected the playhouses or subsidized them, and this idea is gradually spreading. In Vienna the court theaters were erected by the state on state lands and consist of two buildings for different phases of the drams. The opera house for operas, ballets and concerts, cost in the neighborhood of $2,548,975, while the Burg Theater, for the drama itself. cost $68,530. These theaters are the property of the Emperor's treasury and are maintained by the lord cham beriain's department, and whenever the revenue does not cover the expenses the Emperor's civil list makes up the difference. The chamberlain's department assumes no responsibility in extending the grant, which is looked after by the Hungarian government. Besides the state grants, the Royal Opera House and other theaters in Budapest receive different grants from the state and other smaller grants from the city. The provincial towns of Hungary assist theater managers by alowing free use of buildings and belpng to defray cost of heating and light-

Belgium grants substdies to composers, whose works are produced in Belgium theater, and, in addition. subsidies are given to composers pro ducing their works in French, Fiemish or Walloon. Most of the cities subsidize or own several theaters, some are given rent free, and in most of them the scenery and furniture belong to the town. At Sophia, Bulgaria, the city is to erect a theater as soon as enough money is accumulated from the state lot-

In France, the four national theaters occupy the buildings rent free, but they must pay the taxes, provide for maintenance and allow larger repairs to be made by the state without claim for damages through interruption. An annual subsidy is granted to each theater by the national parliament, ware-houses are provided for storing scenery. SS KILL THE SERPENT

The worst disease the world has ever known, and the greatest scourge to the human race, is Contagious Blood Poison. One drop of the virus of this most horrible of all diseases will pollute and vitiate the purest, healthiest blood, and within a short time after the first little sore appears the system is filled with the awful poison and the skin breaks out in a red rash;

the glands of the groins swell, the throat and mouth become ulcerated, the hair and eyebrows drop out, and often the entire surface of the body scovered with copper-colored splotches and sickening sores and erup-tions. Contagious Blood Poison is as treacherous and elusive as the serpent. You may be carrying it in your veins with no visible evidences of its existence; for while mercury and potash seem to cure and all external signs disappear, the disease is doing its destructive work within, or the patient is constantly harassed by returning symptoms and unmistakable traces of the blood poison. Thousands of physical wrecks and
