

G. A. Lewis.

G. W. McQueen
PROPRIETORS OF

The Fashion Stables

ALSO OFFICE OF THE

Bohemia and Black Butte Stage.

First Class Turnouts, Double or Single.

LEWIS & MCQUEEN

COTTAGE GROVE, ORE.

BOHEMIA NUGGET

BOHEMIA NUGGET PUBLISHING COMPANY.

Wm. B. Root, Editor and Manager.

Entered at the post office at Cottage Grove, Oregon as second class mail matter.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

6 months.....	$1.00
1 year.....	$1.50
18 months.....	$2.00

I paid in advance.

THIS PAPER is kept on file at E. C. Drake's advertising Agency, 44 and 45 Marchant Exchange, San Francisco, California, where contracts for advertising can be made for it.

FRIDAY, AUGUST 12, 1904.

THE LEWIS & CLARK CENTENNIAL
PORTLAND - OREGON - 1905

Editor Nugget—

"I am pleased that you are giving us the mining news from Bohemia. It is the mining news that we are interested in back here. The Nugget is all right."

The above is taken from a letter received from Mass. Monday. There was a money order accompanying for two yearly subscriptions.

The Bohemia district ores exhibit at the coming mining congress at Portland will attract deserved attention. But if the delegates want to see the real thing in Oregon, they must not fail to inspect the Sumpter district - Blue Mt American.

We hope the delegates to the Congress will find time to visit all the mining districts of Oregon. The real thing can be found in not only one, but in many districts.

CLOSE TO THE FRONT.

At the meeting of the Oregon Development State League recently held in Portland many good things were said about the resources of some of the counties. There were so many to be heard from and so much business to be transacted that by the time Lane county's representative was called many of the delegates having become weary were leaving the room and delegate Williams of Eugene who had been chosen to present the resources of the county, did not have the opportunity to do either himself or the county justice.

Lane county has no feeling of jealousy towards any other portion of the state and is proud to be numbered among the great counties and to be a part of the state of Oregon.

Yet it does believe it is second to few if any in its natural resources both developed and undeveloped, and in a modest way, the Nugget will refer to some of them:

Classification of lands in Lane county:

	Square miles.
Total area.....	4,380
Merchantable timber area.....	2,956
Cut area.....	33
Burned area.....	801
Open country.....	531
Barren.....	59
Amount and classification of timber in Lane county:	Million feet B. M.
Red fir.....	27,827
Red Cedar.....	471
Yellow pine.....	236
Noble fir.....	636
Hemlock.....	3,736
Lovely fir.....	1,100
Total.....	34,000

Average stand of timber per acre of timbered land, 17,900 feet B. M.

Outside of the timbered lands mentioned it will be noticed there are 531 square miles of open lands suitable for agriculture and horticulture besides a large area suitable for stock raising.

It has outside of these resources two prosperous mining districts besides a large amount of mineral land not yet prospected to any extent.

The Blue River mining district is receiving the attention of the mining men and several mills are already working at a profit the ores of that section.

Bohemian mining district is also presenting a great field for those who desire to mine it, having passed the development stage and has now many thousands of tons of ore on the dumps and exposed in the workings awaiting the mills for treatment. Three mills are under construction and within a short time will be at work upon the ores.

Besides all of its varied resources the climate of Lane county is unexcelled in the state or the Pacific Coast for that matter and with its schools, churches and social advantages, Lane feels disposed to claim a position very close to the front in the procession of counties of the state of Oregon.

WOULD BUY THEM ALL.

Very few, whether farmers or otherwise, realize the value of the hen to the United States. They talk of big crops of wheat and barley, but seldom stop to reflect that the little four-pound hen will bring them nearly half as much as a hundred weight of wheat, and it does not take teams and plows, wagons and harvesters to raise her, either. Now many are there that know that the product of the hen would buy not only the wheat crop of the country, but the cotton crop also? How many are there that know that the yearly proceeds of chickens and eggs would buy all the gold, silver and other minerals that are produced in this country during the year, and would pay all the interest on the farm mortgages besides? A large number of California farmers, however, think it does not pay to raise poultry.

The farmer invests a lot of money in grain raising and waits a year and a half, if he summer fallows his ground, for the crop to mature and be marketed, and then it costs considerable to haul it to market, besides the cost of sacks, no small item and one which is a dead loss to him in this state, unlike the East where he can empty his sacks into the car or boat and use them over again. Cost of transportation for the hen and her eggs is comparatively light, and she almost picks up around the place her entire living. She is a benefit to the farm and orchard by destroying thousands of insects and noxious seeds. Why is it not profitable to raise poultry?

Let the farmer attend the state fair and look at the poultry show and talk with the breeders who exhibit there, and he will probably wish to buy some fine stock and begin making money from them.—The Pacific Tree and Vine.

OREGON ELK.

To those parties who may understand that elk may be killed at certain times of the year, State Game Warden Baker refers them to section 2011, page 6 of the Oregon game laws which is as follows:

"It shall be unlawful to hunt, pursue, take, kill, injure, destroy, or have in possession, or to sell or offer for sale, barter or exchange, any elk at any time between the date of the passage of this act and the fifteenth day of September, 1907; and from and after the said fifteenth day of September, 1907, it shall be unlawful to hunt, pursue, take, kill, injure, destroy or have in possession, or to sell or offer for sale, barter or exchange, any elk at any time between the fifteenth day of October of each year and the fifteenth day of September of the following year. And from and after the said fifteenth day of September, 1907, it shall be unlawful to hunt, pursue, take, kill, injure, destroy or have in possession, or to sell or offer for sale, barter or exchange, any elk at any time between the fifteenth day of October of each year and the fifteenth day of September of the following year; and it shall be unlawful for any person to take, kill, capture, destroy, or have in possession more than one elk in the open season of any year; and it shall be unlawful at any time to sell or offer for sale, barter or exchange, or to have in possession for sale, barter or exchange any elk meat. [L. 1903 Sp. Sess., p. 30, sec. 1.]"

These things are the material of prosperity. All that is needed is men and women to avail themselves of the approachable advantages. And they are coming. In tens and hundreds and thousands they are following the course of Empire to dwell in this land of plenty. There is room for all, and for millions more, for the productivity of this marvelous land has been hardly guessed.

Here is the promised land—prosperity's headquarters. Gird yourself, rise, and come to enjoy its blessings.—From The Pacific Monthly for August.

TAKEN WITH CRAMPS.

Wm. Kierse, a member of the bridge gang working near Littleport was taken suddenly ill Thursday night, with cramps and a kind of cholera. His case was so severe that he had to have the members of the crew wait upon him and Mr. Gifford was called and consulted. He told him he had a medicine in the form of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that he thought would help him out and accordingly several doses were administered with the result that he was able to be around next day. The incident speaks quite highly of Mr. Gifford's medicines.

Eldorado, Iowa, Argus.—This remedy never fails. Keep it in your home, it may save life. For sale by the New Era drug store.

PORLAND AND RETURN ONLY.

The Southern Pacific is now selling round trip tickets to Portland from Eugene for $1 good going Saturday P. M., or any train of Sunday, returning Sunday and Monday, giving all day Sunday and Monday in Portland. The same arrangement applies from Portland, giving all Portland passengers a chance to visit Valley of Columbia, reduced rates."—Parties desiring to take advantage of these rates can pay local fare to Eugene.

SUICIDE PREVENTED.

The startling announcement that a preventive of suicide had been discovered will interest many. A run down system or dependency invariably pre-disposes and something has been done to prevent the commission which makes suicide likely. At the first thought of self destruction take Electric Bitter. It being a great tonic and nervine will strengthen the nerves and build up the system. It's also a great Stomach, Liver and Kidney regulator. Only 50¢. Satisfaction guaranteed by Morgan & Breaham Drugists.

FIRE.

Don't neglect that home, but call at the express office and have Tom Aubrey write you up a policy in either the Extra Insurance Co. or the Oregon Fire Relief Association of McMinnville, Oregon.

THE DEATH PENALTY.

A little thing sometimes result in death. Thus a mere scratch, insignificant cuts or puny boils have paid the death penalty. It is wise to have Buckle's Epsom Salve handy. It's the best Salve on earth and will prevent fatality, when Burns, Sores, Ulcers and Piles threaten. Only 25¢, at Morgan & Breaham Drug Store.

THE CO. TO "THE."

A voluntary contributor to magazines and newspapers had a desirable article returned to him the other day because he began the opening paragraph with the definite article, "the." The editor wrote, "If we should allow all of our authors to begin with 'the' every article would so begin." There is at least one newspaper in New York which will not accept a story of any kind if it begins with "the." The editor in charge, seeing the "the" at the opening, immediately throws the story into the wastebasket.—New York Press

THE ACME

Is the most Comfortable Shoe Made

LADIES' ACME SHOES

Are becoming more and more popular each season. From the fact that their value is becoming better known. They are much more comfortable than a shoe with regular sole. The all-wool felt sole lining forms. A flexible and elastic pad for the sensitive part of the foot to rest upon, made in turn, welt, and McKay sewed. We have them in all widths.

Closing them out at $2.75

Regular $4.00 per pair Shoes

Made by Utz X. Dunn, Rochester N. Y.

At Pacific Timber Co's Store

Under Odd Fellows Hall

COTTAGE GROVE, OREGON.

ANT PECULIARITIES.

Each Species Has a Distinct Odor Distinguishable by Other Ants.

Each ant species appears to have its distinctive odor, discernible by other ants. Within each species there are also differences of odor dependent on the age of the colony and the age of the queen from whose egg its inmates are produced. The ant's organs of smell are its antennae, and the antennae consist, as it were, of a series of noses, each of which has a special task. One nose tells the ant whether it is in its own nest or that of an enemy. An other nose discriminates between odors of ants of the same species, but of different colonies. The third serves the purpose of discerning the scent laid down by the ant's own feet, so that it may retrace its steps along its own path. Another nose smells the ant larvae and pupae, and the fifth nose detects the presence of an enemy. Thus if an ant is left with only the four noses it will live peacefully with alien ants, but while it has its fifth nose it will fight the alien to the death. If ants make one another's acquaintance before they are twelve hours old they will thereafter live amicably together, though of different species or subfamilies. But in three days after hatching their criterion of correct ant odor is established, and they refuse to affiliate with ants whose odor is not in accord with their standard.

PROSPERITY.

What a hearty, happy ring the magic word has! What a picture it presents of teeming fields, and granaries filled to the bursting; of deep mines, where every blow of the pick brings forth copper or iron or silver or gold; of the lumber woods, and the stately monarch of the forest crashing to earth under the blows of the woodman's axe; of laboring locomotives, and white-winged ships, bearing to the markets of commerce the products of field and forest and mine; of expanding towns and cities, alive with human activity in shops and factory, office and counting house!

Work for everyone, and maximum return for toll, that is what brings prosperity. Peace, contentment, the joy of living; these are the results. The Pacific Coast is enjoying such prosperity as can be found in no other locality in the United States. Nor is it the result of any abnormal circumstance, but the natural outgrowth of natural conditions. Nowhere can be found such natural resources—such fertile soil, such mineral deposits, such gigantic forests, such fisheries, such waterways, such a climate.

These things are the material of prosperity. All that is needed is men and women to avail themselves of the approachable advantages. And they are coming. In tens and hundreds and thousands they are following the course of Empire to dwell in this land of plenty. There is room for all, and for millions more, for the productivity of this marvelous land has been hardly guessed.

Here is the promised land—prosperity's headquarters. Gird yourself, rise, and come to enjoy its blessings.—From The Pacific Monthly for August.

LINCOLN'S POETRY.

Verse That Were Brought to Light Only to Be Destroyed.

It is a sentimental habit of speech to regret the "songs never sung." Yet the dispassionate critic knows there is quite enough poetry unless it is of the very best. He has no fears for "mute inglorious Miltons." But there is no true American who would not pay a price for a certain batch of poems probably long ago destroyed.

Gibson William Harris, who was a law student in Lincoln & Herndon's office from 1845 to 1847, has written for the Woman's Home Companion some of his recollections of Abraham Lincoln. In putting the offer in order one morning he came upon two or three quires of letter paper stitched together inside a desk. He turned the leaves and found that they were covered with stanzas in Mr. Lincoln's neat running hand.

When Mr. Lincoln came in, the young man took the manuscript out of the desk again and held it up with the unnecessary and impertinent inquiry whether the poems were his.

"Where did you find it?" asked Mr. Lincoln.

He took the manuscript, rolled it up and stuffed it into his pocket. It was never seen again. The theory of the writer who tells the story is that it was taken home and put into the fire.

"Who did you find it?" asked Mr. Lincoln.

He took the manuscript, rolled it up and stuffed it into his pocket. It was never seen again. The theory of the writer who tells the story is that it was taken home and put into the fire.

Even the feeding hour, when pandemonium breaks loose among the big cages, when hungry roars and squeaks mingle with impatient snarls and impacts of heavy bodies against steel bars, is apt to have no effect on him. He may lie eying his chunk of raw beef suspiciously and not venture forth until day has waned and the last visitor left to tear meat from bones with his long, white fangs.

In fact, so ugly and vicious is this beast that frequently he turns on his own kind, and in many instances it is impossible to cage him, even with a cage.—McClure's Magazine.

THE BLACK PANTHER.

Fierce That Even Lion Trainers Dare Not Handle Him.

Of all the big, dangerous beasts, none is more unapproachable and more treacherous than the black panther. Hailing from the heart of the deepest African jungle, lithe and supple of body, alert and nervous, this stealthy marauder excels in ferocity even a Bengal tiger. He is the only big felinethat the lion trainer does not venture to train, and he is the only cat that is absolutely distrustful that he sleeps even the light of day. Often he will lie all day long in a dusky corner of his cage, his yellow slit eyes shifting and gleaming restlessly.

Even the feeding hour, when pandemonium breaks loose among the big cages, when hungry roars and squeaks mingle with impatient snarls and impacts of heavy bodies against steel bars, is apt to have no effect on him. He may lie eying his chunk of raw beef suspiciously and not venture forth until day has waned and the last visitor left to tear meat from bones with his long, white fangs.

In fact, so ugly and vicious is this beast that frequently he turns on his own kind, and in many instances it is impossible to cage him, even with a cage.—McClure's Magazine.

SICK HEADACHE.

For several years my wife was troubled with what physicians called sick headache of a very severe character. She consulted with several eminent physicians and at a great expense, only to grow worse until she was unable to do any kind of work. About a year ago she began taking Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and today weighs more than she ever did before and is real well," says Mr. Geo. E. Wright of New London, New York. For sale by New Era Drug Store.

FREE.

Special sample copy of the Only Daily Mining Newspaper