

Peculiar To Itself

In what it is and what it does—containing the best blood-purifying, alterative and tonic substances and effecting the most radical and permanent cures of all humors and all eruptions, relieving weak, tired, languid feelings, and building up the whole system—is true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla

No other medicine acts like it; no other medicine has done so much real, substantial good, no other medicine has restored health and strength at so little cost.

"I was troubled with scurvy and came near losing my eyesight. For four months I could not see to do anything. After taking two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I could see to walk, and when I had taken eight bottles I could see as well as ever." BOBIE A. HARRIS, Wilkes, N.C.

Hood's Sarsaparilla promises to cure and keeps the promise.

GEORGE WANTED TRITICUM.

It Pleas'd His Father, but Several Other Geesees Said Nothing.

"What we ought to have," said the mercantile and precocious George, an 8-year-old resident of Germantown, while at luncheon the other day, "is bread made from pure triticum flour. I'm tired of these swartwasting experiments, and he survived the pile of corn muffins on the table with dis pleasure and scorn, says the Philadelphia Record.

George's mother, knowing the capabilities of her young hopeful for causing embarrassment, did not ask what triticum flour was or take occasion at that time to point out George's failure in good manners in so loudly declaring his dissatisfaction at the food he found on the table. In the evening, however, while on the porch with visitors, and after George had retired, she said to her husband: "George is asking for bread made of triticum flour. What is that?"

The husband hadn't the slightest idea, and frankly said so. A lawyer in the party, when appealed to, hummed and hawed a little, and said it was probably some new-fangled idea George had gathered at school, perhaps the name of a new breakfast food. Another visitor suggested that George might be a joker, and upon this the party spent the word backward, rearranged the syllables and did other things known to puzzle solvers.

"I'm going to look it up," said George's eldest sister. She went into the house and returned half an hour with dust from the encyclopedia and dictionary over her hands, but she was triumphant.

"Why, it's wheat," she said. "It's simply the botanical name for wheat." George's father was inclined to be proud of his boy, but the visitors at once started a discussion of the Russian Japanese war.

CHOP BUEY COPYRIGHT.

Dish Originated in San Francisco and Not in China.

If people can be required to pay royalties on gold teeth that they have worn for years, and on driven wells from which their fathers have drunk before then, there would seem to be no reason why they might not have to pay them on copyrighted dishes which they have long ago eaten and digested, says the New York Mail. There is a San Francisco Chinaman in town who claims to have a copyright on the dish called chop suey, and he wants his back royalties as well as his front ones.

It must be explained first of all, that chop suey is not a Chinese dish. This is no news even to amateur Orientalists, but probably it is to the average American citizen. It is a San Francisco invention, or rather adaptation; it is an Irish stew translated into Chinese for purely accidental degustation. With its usual black ignorance of oriental ways, the American public accepted it at once as the Chinese national dish, upon which the son of heaven and his imperial household are supposed to dine every day. Even American officials were surprised when Prince Pu Lan blandly inquired in Chinatown the other day: "What is chop suey?"

Oriental or occidental, it is a good dish. It constitutes a ration in which a nice balance has been reached between the animal and the vegetable, between protein and mere bulk. If Mr. Lem Sen, of San Francisco, can establish his copyright on the use of the dish for the future, he may become a millionaire, honorably and usefully. If he succeeds in making his patent retroactive he will produce a certain distress in regions where the ingredients of the dish itself have seldom wrought any disturbance.

The Glitch of Man Increasing.

An excellent illustration of the value of records has been afforded lately regarding the question of physical degeneracy. A firm in the north of England has compared the measurements for clothing made two generations ago with those of to-day, the results going to show that chest and hip measurements are now three inches on the average more than they were sixty years ago. The same conclusion is reached by the experience of the ready-made clothing makers. These facts, whatever may be their generality, do not quite dispose of the question of degeneracy. They are what we should expect from the more abundant and cheaper food of the people, their better housing and improved sanitary surroundings; but the testimony regarding the usefulness of recruits and progressive lack of stamina in town, and especially manufacturing, populations cannot be disregarded. The girl of man may be increasing, but like a fattening hog, is not competency bringing calamities?

The hide of a cow makes twice as much leather as that of a horse.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

WISSE BROS., Dentists, 208-213 Falling Bldg., Third and Washington PORTLAND OREGON

Effect of Army Routine. Visitors to army headquarters on Governor's Island often notice that officers have a habit of referring to the written or printed record for the most trifling questions of fact. They never rely upon memory for even unimportant matters of routine which civilians would no more think of forgetting than a farthest computer would think of forgetting the time of his morning train to the city. Ask an officer in the adjutant general's or quartermaster's department, for instance, where the First Battalion of the Sixteenth Infantry is and he will consult his records before answering, even when a letter to the commanding officer of the battalion is lying addressed on his desk.

The other day a visitor to the island asked an officer high in command what time the parade of troops took place next morning. The man in khaki looked at his printed copy of the general orders before answering. "Ten o'clock." Yet the parade had been going on every day for weeks right under his office windows.

"It is a habit that grows upon us with the routine of garrison work," he said. "If I tried to remember where our company in the department of the east is quartered I might as well try to remember them all. If I carried in my memory the time for parade I might as well try to learn the general orders by heart. Experience teaches army men never to burden their memories with facts and figures that they know they can find on the instant by turning to the record."—New York Times.

Cured Her Rheumatism.

Deep Valley, Pa., Oct. 31 (Special)—There is deep interest in Green county over the cure of the little daughter of I. N. Whippley of Rheumatism. She was a great sufferer for five or six years and nothing seemed to do her any good till she tried Dodd's Kidney Pills. She began to improve almost at once and now she is cured and can run and play as other children do.

Mr. Whippley says: "I am indeed thankful for what Dodd's Kidney Pills have done for my daughter; they saved her from being a cripple perhaps for life."

Dodd's Kidney Pills have proved that Rheumatism is one of the results of diseased kidneys. Rheumatism is caused by Uric Acid in the blood. If the kidneys are right there can be no Uric Acid in the blood and consequently no Rheumatism. Dodd's Kidney Pills make the kidneys right.

Limit of Laxness.

Two darkies lay sprawling on the levee on a hot day. Moses drew a long sigh and said, "Heey-ah-h! Ah wish Ah had a hundred watermelons!"

Tom's eyes lighted dimly. "Hum-yah-h! Dat would sattenly be fine. Ah ef yo' had a hund' watermelons would yo' gib me fifty?"

"No. Ah wouldn't gib yo' no fifty watermelons."

"Wouldn't yo' gib me twenty-five?"

"No. Ah wouldn't gib yo' no twenty-five."

"Sowens fer me yusse powerful sthiny, Miss. Wouldn't yo'—wouldn't yo' gib me one?"

"No. Ah wouldn't gib yo' one. Look a hyah, niggah, are yo' so good fer nuf in lay dat yo' euhnt wish fo' yo' own watermelons?"

OFFENSIVE CATARRH

I suffered for a long time with a bad case of Catarrh, and took great deal of medicine without any benefit. I had a continual headache, my cheeks had grown purple, my nose was always stopped up, my breath had sickening and disgusting odor, and I coughed incessantly. I heard of your S. S. S. and wrote you. I commenced to use it, and after taking several bottles I was cured and have never since had the slightest symptom of the disease. Miss MARY L. STROM, Cor. 7th & Felix Sts., St. Joseph, Mo.

Wheeling, W. Va., May 29, 1903. I had Nasal Catarrh for years for which I used S. S. S. with very gratifying results. I tried local applications for some time, and getting no permanent relief I came to the conclusion that the seat of the trouble was in the blood. Knowing S. S. S. to be a good blood medicine I began its use, and after using it for some little while it did away entirely with the offensive mucus in the nostrils, and I did not have to hawk and spit, especially in the morning, to dislodge the catarrhal matter.

The filthy secretions and foul mucus that are continually dropping back into the throat, find their way into the stomach and are absorbed into the blood. Catarrh then becomes constitutional, and the only way to get rid of it is through the blood. Write us if you have Catarrh, and our physicians will advise you without charge.

For Compulsory Athletics. Rev. Dr. Percy S. Grant, speaking before the League for Political Education at New York, said that the coming New Yorker would be 6 feet 3 inches high and have the chest measurement of a prize fighter. Judging from the increased standard of morality and intellectuality in our universities since athletics became universal and popular, Dr. Grant says that physical training should be an important part of the public school system. He had noticed that 25 per cent of the national guardsmen were too poor physically to pass the doctor.

Admiral Schley Uses Pe-ru-na In His Home

Battle of Santiago, Where Admiral Schley Made History

Peruna Drug Co., Columbus, Ohio. Gentlemen—"I can cheerfully state that Mrs. Schley has taken Peruna and I believe with good effect." W. S. SCHLEY.

One of the greatest naval battles in the world was the fight of Santiago. Never since the dispersion of the Spanish Armada has there been a more epoch-making victory in the onward march of civilization than in the notable event of July 23, 1898, in which the great hero, Admiral Schley, took a leading part.

It was a great naval battle. Without a moment's warning it began. Quick decision, undaunted courage, excellent discipline, resolute self-confidence—these combined in Admiral Schley to produce that dash and daring so characteristic of the American soldier.

A man must think quickly in these days. There is no time for slow action. New enterprises arise in an hour. Old ones pass away in a moment.

A multitude of great themes elude for notice. A man must take sides for or against by intuition, rather than logical deduction.

One day this fighting admiral, Schley, happened to be in company with other officers who were talking on various topics of popular interest. The subject of Peruna was raised—its popularity as a cathartic remedy, its national importance, its extensive use.

One asked his opinion. Without a moment's hesitation, he said: "I can cheerfully say that Mrs. Schley has taken Peruna and I believe with good effect."

Like the battle of Santiago, the thought was sprung upon him without any warning, and he disposed of it with the same vim and decision as he did with the Spanish fleet led by the ill-fated Viscaya.

His words concerning Peruna have gone out into the world to be repeated by a thousand tongues, because he said them.

Like the news of his victory over Cervera, his words concerning Peruna will be caught up by the multitude and passed from month to month, across oceans and continents.

Except for an inborn many independence, in a country of free speech, these words never would have been uttered by an officer in such a notable position as that of Admiral Schley.

Except for a world wide notoriety and popularity, such as Peruna enjoys, no remedy could ever have received such outspoken public endorsement by such a man.

Among the many anarchists arrested in connection with the bomb explosion in Barcelona, Sept. 13, is a 14-year-old boy named Neales, who is described by the police as a "preocious propagandist."
