PLAY THEIR FIRST GAME

The H. T. B. vs The High School Team at the Opera House

The H. T. B. club and the Cottage Grove High School team gave a very interesting exhibition of basket ball at the Opera house last Saturday evening. This was the first game for both teams, and although the girls were out of their class they made the boys look to their laurels and were successful in keeping their stronger opponents down to a remarkably low score. In the last half the girls played entirely on the defensive and in spite of the efforts of the boys one goal was all they were able to score.

The H. T. B. club is composed of Agnes Wooley; center, Nellie Martin and Lizzie Veatch; forwards, Katie Knowlton, Fannie Johnson and Liddy Welch; guards, they will have to meet older and more experienced teams but they showed by their brilliant work in Saturday's game that they will be able to give a good account of themselves against any team they may play. They are arranging games with Drain, Corvallis and Salem.

The High School team have their first game with Drain on Thursday. Some good players have been developed. Harry Brown, and Merle Seovel as forwards, Dan Thomas and Merton Earl, as guards and Chester Vandenberg as center, make a strong combination and stand a good show of winning from their more experienced opponents at Drain in the coming game.

The Logician vs Egotist.

The egotist who warped in fancy form, May think himself a highly blessed man, Believing by God's appointment he is lord, on earth, by God's creative plan. But timid lest he is who sears above. This blinding mist of purely fancy's plan, And false and whimsically doth rest on fact. That really he is lord, but only man. He feels an obligation to a God, Content with goodness of his fellowman, Resting implicitly on what he knows, Nor troubles what he cannot span. If God made him, he reasons wisely, then God must provide and have a cure for me, He is incumbent on him for his own end. If he did not, His work would cease to be, The egotist troubles 'bout stewardship, To give account to his superior Lord, But he whose mind is versed in God's lore Is free, untrammelled by this mystic word. The first tries not to cure the cause of wrong, Blinded by superstition, aims to blight, And sees the world's back bare to God's tyrant's throng. Studies at folly, cries God's ways must be right. The latter seeks the cause of all the ills, He sees them not in a supposed wise God, He seeks and finds the means to ward them off And strives to make this earth a best abode. His eyes are ranged on every hand, Great and vast shown by nature's mighty plan, His task is to adjust the stream to flow, With fair providence to each son of man. He has no God to serve for selfish gain; He does not bend and cringe for a reward, Superstition blind in his own consciousness. No other lord's only his own Lord, Fears not to go where fate or duty calls, To meet a God-oblivion if he must, No God, or future date disturb his mind, Grieves not, to turn to the uncompassionate. JOHN MILNE. Lorain, Nov., 22, 1904.

NORMAL NOTES.

CLIMATIC CURES.

The influence of climatic conditions in the cure of consumption is very much overlooked. The poor patient, and the rich patient, too, can do much better at home by proper attention to food digestion, and a regular use of German Syrup. Free expectation in the morning is made certain by German Syrup, so is a good night's rest, and the absence of that weakening cough and debilitating night sweats. Restless nights and the exhaustion due to coughing, the greatest danger and dread of the consumptive, can be prevented or stopped by taking German Syrup liberally and regularly. Should you be able to go to a warmer clime, you will find that of the thousands of consumptives there, the few who are benefited and regain strength are those who use German Syrup. Trial bottles, 37c; regular size, 70c. At all druggists. Gorman Hemenway
