A stockholder in a mining corporation cannot relocate a mining claim owned by the company in which he is a stockholder because of the failure of the company to perform the annual assessment required by law on unpatented claims.
Nor can he perform the work himself and "advertise the company out." If, through neglect to attend to the assessment, the company loses the claim, the stockholders who lose thereby may sue the company for the damages sustained. Any other person not a stockholder in the company may relocate the claims for such failure to perform the annual assessment work, and there is no law which prevents such third party from giving an interest in the relocation to a stockholder who has sustained loss through negligence of his company.

Miss Franc Hard, the daughter of F. J. Hard has four hens up at Bohemia that are record breakers.
Thursday she found a nest with 24 eggs in it, one of which measured 8 1/2 by 7 1/2 inches. Bohemia seems to agree with the hens.

Enos Crowley met with a severe accident Monday while running the milk shake machine for Mr. Gill.
He got his thumb caught in the gear and tore the end very badly mashing the bone. The doctor thinks that the thumb may be saved all right and that no serious results will follow.

Where plows and scrapers can be employed on ditch work, the cost of excavation can be reduced considerably over shoveling by hand. In digging a ditch along a hillside, under ordinary conditions, a man will loosen with a pick and shovel out from 7 to 9 cubic yards of material in 10 hours. In mountainous places narrow and deep ditches are more satisfactory than broad and shallow ones. The former cost less and require generally less repairs.
Surprisingly little damage is due to washing of the sides on steep grades in the mountain sections of ditches.

The question of the disposition of slab wood by the Portland mills is becoming a subject of consideration.
The steady inroads which have been made in the use of fuel oil has materially reduced the demand already for slab wood, and the fuel contractors are looking around for other sources of profitable utilization.

Mr. John Hull had a rather startling experience Sunday night. He was going down to Eugene on business, and did not know the train was running in two sections, so when the first section pulled in, which was entirely composed of Pullmans he jumped on. After the train started the conductor asked for his Pullman ticket, and when he said he didn't have any and that he was going only to Eugene, the conductor told him to jump off and take the next train. Mr. Hull misunderstood, and thought he said the next car, so he jumped off and caught the railings of the next car only to find the doors of the vestibule shut and by this time the train was going too fast to jump off.
He did some lively thinking about that time, was afraid he would be crushed at the bridge and many other unpleasant thoughts, but decided to break in the door, the conductor hearing the racket let him in and finally let him ride after his explanation. Mr. Hull was rather badly shaken but consoles himself that while he read on the "special" Mr. Lurch had to wait for the second train.

Provo, Utah, Aug. 17.—Thousands of persons were here to witness the drawing for the Utah lands this morning. The drawing took place on an elevated platform supervised by a committee appointed by the secretary of the interior. Envelops containing the registrations at Provo, Vernal, Price and Grand Junction were placed in a box and 5,772 names were drawn.

The first five names in order drawn were: Ray Daniels, Provo; Noah M. Badcock, Vernal, Utah; Cary L. Ball, Salt Lake; John H.
Partridge, Goshen; Frank C. Moyle, Salt Lake.

Daniels is 21 years old. It is reported that he has been offered $100 a year for five years and $5,000 for his selection when he proves up.

It was a noticeable feature that Mormons predominated in the early selections.

A Pleasant Picnic

The Sunday School of the Christian Church of Cottage Grove gave a very pleasant picnic Tuesday out on Mosby Creek, near what is known as the "V" on the O. & S.
E. Ry; the officials of the road generously granting a single fare for the round trip.

When the conductor called "all aboard" at 7:30 a. m. there was a scramble for tickets by those who were too busy thinking of the joy of the day to remember that tickets were needed, and when the train left the happy party which had been deposited near the pleasant groves, there was a promiscuous heap of buckets, baskets, boxes, sacks, hammocks, swing ropes, chairs, and bicycles, which were quickly gathered up by willing hands and hurried to a place of safe deposit.

Soon the woods were ringing with sounds of joy and laughter, which was kept up almost incessantly until the 5 o'clock train whistled for the return. Refreshments were served at most all times of the day, by each fellow helping himself as he was suddenly struck by the pangs of hunger.

Games, jokes and various amusements were indulged in by all alike both old and young; it being necessary at times to place some in "Durance vile" ropes being utilized and the fractious ones being lashed to trees until they became subdued, or made their escape.

Several of the Fair Maidens took his opportunity of giving their feet a cooling bath, and Mosby Creek furnished them a generous supply of water.

All wended their way home well satisfied with the pleasures of the day.

He had a good time both in the says he sold a carload of water in keep on the road all the time things would certainly be doing at the bottling plant.

PREACHERS ENTERTAINED.

CHAS. Otterson, H. O. Thompson and F. J. Hard were showing the Revs. W. H.
Marble of Mass. and Grant Stewart of Cottage Grove the "narrow ways" the Bohemia miners have to travel, and to make it more emphatic, while the preachers were congratulating themselves on being able to follow the steps of the miners, as sudden as if on signal, the horse being ridden by Chas. Otterson became apparently frantic and dashed to take the lead of the procession, the Rev. Stewart took the side of the hill and Rev. Marble wished his horse could climb a tree.
Rev. Stewart having escaped saw instantly the predicament of his Brother Clergyman and dashed to his relief and the way the two preachers stuck their toes into the side of the mountain and hung to the rope of the crazy horse until he was subdued was a caution. Hard and Thompson held their sides almost splitting with laughter the preacher thought a joke had been played on them, until Chas. Otterson gave it away by saying that "Lundberg will never get me on that horse again". No bones were broken only a few scratches, so the procession proceeded singing the Doxology.

June 6, 1902: "I take pleasure in re-matism. It is the only remedy I have found that gives immediate relief."
