There was a great deal of furs in the town. Some of them were of bears, some of them were of cougars, and some of them were of foxes. The fur trade was a big business in those days, and the traders were always trying to get the best deal possible. The traders would often travel great distances to find the best furs.

Some of the furs were kept for trade, while others were used to make clothes. The traders would often trade the furs for other things, such as beads or blankets. The furs were also used to make things like gloves and hats.

The furs were also used for other purposes, such as for making money. The traders would often sell the furs for a good price, and then use the money to buy other things.

The furs were also important for the local people. The furs were used to make clothes for the people, and they were also used to trade with other people.

The furs were also used to make things like money. The traders would often sell the furs for a good price, and then use the money to buy other things.

The furs were also important for the people who lived in the area. They were used to make clothes, and they were also used to trade with other people.

The furs were also used for other purposes, such as for making money. The traders would often sell the furs for a good price, and then use the money to buy other things.

The furs were also important for the people who lived in the area. They were used to make clothes, and they were also used to trade with other people.

The furs were also used for other purposes, such as for making money. The traders would often sell the furs for a good price, and then use the money to buy other things.

The furs were also important for the people who lived in the area. They were used to make clothes, and they were also used to trade with other people.