London Briefs.

The sawmill operated by W. C. Shortridge, at Wallace is doing well; ties and lumber are being turned out in good shape also prices are good and the community is busy at work, wages are very good and work plenty, so the full dinner pail is beginning to stack up above the common low water mark and we look joyfully ahead to several years of great prosperity not only for this, but all the counties of Oregon. The first tie run will begin about the first of the month from the Wallace mill to be followed up by a second as Mr. Shortridge has two logging camps in operation.

Mr. Rouse is also operating the old Stanley, one and one half mile south of London. This mill with its present manager is sure to bring the orders in as Mr. Rouse is among the best mill men in the state when it comes to fitting up bridge and house building material. Owing to a large amount of repairing and refitting the work has been delayed some. A logging donkey is being operated with good success in one of Oregon's fine timber belts, so you can figure on a first class line of all grades of lumber this season. A shingle mill is also placed in position and in connection with lumber shingles can be had which will be of great value to the whole community. This is Oregon's great source of wealth and thousands of eastern men representing both labor and capital are not only turning their minds towards Oregon, but are actually arriving on the ground and investing their money to help develop one of the greatest wealth deposits on the Pacific Coast in a general line of lumber and shingles both for home and foreign wants and also its fruits, berries, vegetables, grain and hay crops, with its great acreage of fine mountain range for all kinds of stock, are among the undeveloped possibilities of one of the richest and loveliest countries known to any civilization. The Blackbutte, Cinnabar belt is perhaps the largest known among miners, which in the near future will take rank among the the liveliest camps on the American continent which will help largely to swell the rising tide of Oregon's wealth and greatness and from this scene we turn our eyes to the east and behold the towering peak of the Bohemia mountains whose stately form is being penetrated with black shovels and dynamite being shown to mineralogy, chemistry and geology, and thus these rich ores of gold bearing quartz are being reduced to pulp by the uniting energy of the steam engine and we point with pride to the name Champion, Music, and many others of the Bohemia district whose glittering contents some day in the near future will also swell the stream of Oregon's golden harvest, and next we visit Blue River with its various claims both to feet and richness we behold the Lucky Boy mine whose ample veins have furnished bread and to spare both its owners and laborers and thus thus the work goes on and we are made believe from a retrospect and prospective view of the possibilities of London Mineral Springs, which we think some day in the not far off future will take rank among the most valuable pieces of property on the Pacific slope and will be a factor in developing a source of comfort and enjoyment to the people of Oregon, that will equal if not surpass any of its other industries in value or actual benefit.

The only great nation in the world which buys less of us than it sells is France. Our exports to France for the fiscal year of 1905 in round figures amounted to $76,000,000, while our imports from France during the same period were valued at $90,000,000. This is explained by the fact that most of our exports are bread-stuffs and provisions, and France does not import these. France produces a large proportion of her own food, and she gets the rest principally from her colonies.
