A big land slide in California just above Shasta Springs stopped all the trains so that Saturday's noon train consisted of an engine, a freight car for baggage and one passenger coach, which was loaded even before it struck here, full to the doors. All the trains until Sunday noon from the south were locals, and then the train came through in four sections. The yards at Cottage Grove are being taxed to their full capacity these days and before long the S. P. will certainly have to put in some more sidetrack here. The turn table from Divide ought to be moved here, and the helper put on the trains here, and then the local would also be able to take advantage of it. Our merchants say they are not going to forget nor let a moment slide in working for the local.

The past years school session has been an unusually successful one for the Cottage Grove schools. The teachers have all been well fitted for their places and have done their best by the children. The nine months have been a constant round of steady hard work, and the students have much to show for it. The teachers have reason to be proud of their work and the citizens have good cause to speak highly of the teachers and of their capability. Prof. Strange, although a young man has made a success of his years work as Superintendent of the schools and has the respect and the thanks of the people for the good work done. It is to be hoped that the coming year will be able to show as good a record at its close, a year as free from friction, with as much good done, and with as high a standard kept up.

Friday evening the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Wheeler was thrown up to entertain the Methodists of the city. A fine evening was had. Rain Means Thousands to Farmers

While the rain of the last few days has been excessive it has meant many thousands of dollars to the farmers and dairymen of this section. Everyone is rejoicing greatly at the rain which has come just at the right time. Many of the streams rose very suddenly Sunday night but as yet little damage has been done.

More Deer Hides.

Game warden Baker is rather provoked at the escape of Walter Frost a violator of the game laws from his deputies, last Monday.

In February the cabin of two brothers, Walter and Arthur Frost, at Glendale was raided by deputies and 45 deer hides were found and confiscated but the boys had gotten away. A close watch has been kept for the men, but not until recently did they find that the two were in Camas Valley at their old tricks. Deputies Hodson of Roseburg and Nels Jones of Glendale investigated and raided the boy's cabin early in the morning and captured them both, after quite a fight with the eldest boy Walter.

The officers found 51 deer hides and a goodly supply of dried venison in the cabin. After handcuffing their prisoners, they started for Roseburg, Hodson riding on horseback, while Jones led his horse and walked behind the prisoners. As the party was crossing a small creek attention was diverted from the prisoners by the actions of one of the horses, and Walter, taking advantage of the opportunity, plunged into the brush and disappeared. Jones immediately gave chase, but was unable to find the handcuffed prisoner. Arthur, who is but 21 years of age, was brought to Roseburg and arraigned before Justice Long, when he pleaded guilty to violating the game laws and was fined $250 in default of which he was committed to the county jail for 125 days. Walter, who is 25 years of age, is still at large.

Game warden Baker says that they are out after the oldest boy and will get him sure now, and that he will get at least a $400 fine as he has been convicted once before of the same offense.

FOR THE CHILDREN

Easy Tricks.

Take a coin in each hand, then hold both arms out straight to left and right. Now say that you will get both coins into one hand without changing the position of your arms in the least. After everybody is holding a coin to know how you are going to do it walk to a mantelpiece, lay the coin from one outstretched hand on it and turn around and take it up in the other.

Then tell another person that you have hypnotized him so that he is unable to take off his coat alone. He will take it off immediately by your command to prove that you are wrong, but the moment he starts you take off your coat also, and thus you prove to him that he couldn't take off his coat alone.

Then you announce that you will show the guests something that no human being ever saw before and that no human being will ever see again. You crack a nut, show the kernel and say, "No human being ever saw that before." Then you pop it into your mouth and say, "And no human being will ever see it again."

History of the Cent.

The cent was first proposed by our own Robert Morris, the great financier of the Revolution, and was named by Jefferson two years after. It began to make its appearance from the mint in 1792. It bore the head of Washington on one side and thirteen stars on the other. The French revolution soon created a rage for French ideas in America, which put on the cent, instead of the head of the Goddess of Liberty, a French liberty, with neck thrust for ward and flowing locks. The chain on the reverse side was displaced by the olive wreath of peace, but the French liberty was short lived, and so was the portrait on our cent. The next head of figure that succeeded this—the staid, classic dame with a fillet around her hair—came into fashion about thirty or forty years ago, and her finely chiseled Grecian features have been but slightly altered by the lapse of time.

Muslin Will Not Burn.

Who ever heard of muslin not burning when it is brought into contact with fire? Every one knows that muslin is the very easiest cloth to burn, and yet under certain circumstances you can put a piece of muslin right on top of a bed of live coals without its being even scorched. It is an interesting phenomenon, and we advise you all to try it.

Just take a piece of metal which has been highly polished copper, for instance—and bind the piece of muslin around it as tightly as possible. You can now place it on coals at white heat and blow them to keep them aglow. Still the muslin will not burn. The reason for this seemingly remarkable fact is that copper is a good conductor of heat, and all the heat from the coals passes directly into the copper, leaving the muslin unharmed.

A Problem.

A man bought sixty chickens at the rate of five for $2, making them cost $24. A week later he wished to sell them and divided them in two equal lots. The first he sold at the rate of three for $1, which equaled $10, and the other half he sold at the rate of two for $1, which amounted to $15. By this transaction he sold them five for $2 and yet made $1 on the whole.

Solution: He bought sixty chickens at the rate of five for $2, making $24; sold half at the rate of two for $1, making $15, and the other half three for $1, making $10, thus selling five for $2, and making $1 profit.

Baste the Bear.

To play the game of baste the bear one of the players is chosen bear. He sits on a stool, with a rope about four yards long tied around his waist, the other end being held by the bear-master. The other players run around him, flicking at the bear with their handkerchiefs. The master trying to catch them without letting go the end of the rope or pulling the bear over. Should he do so he must give his place to the player he last touched. Each player captured takes the bear's place.

A Story About the Rainbow.

The Indians have a lovely thought about the rainbow. They love flowers even as we do. The roses, lilies, pansies and goldenrod they hate to see leave. When they see a rainbow they fancy that in the lovely colors spanning the sky all the wild flowers, lilies, violets, etc., and the moss of the woods are still living and blossoming anew in the heavens.

What Noah Was Doing.

"What was Noah supposed to be doing," asked Dot's Sunday school teacher, "when the animals went into the ark?" After several answers Dot's hand went up. "Well," asked the teacher, "what do you say?" "Taking tickets, ma'am," answered Dot.

Looking Ahead.

When I grow up I don't know just exactly what I'll be. Sometimes I think I'll go to war. Sometimes I think of sea; most times I think I'll pick out war; There's so much glory there. But then I think of getting shot. And then I don't quite dare. There's Bill; he says he'll go all right and that he'll be so quick. That long before they get an aim he'll make the foemen sick. I suppose that is the bestest way. And yet the other day I'll stumbled on a hornets' nest and didn't get away. Not till the hornets all came out and stuck him full of stings. And, if he couldn't dodge the bugs, How could he guns and things? So after all it might be best To go away from shore And be a noble pirate or Perhaps a commodore.
