The Special Election.

The town is liable to be deluged with a continuous run of special elections under this new initiative and referendum law, as any person can get up some law and get enough signatures to call a special election. Its workings are just beginning to be felt. The object of the coming election is primarily to give the city power to call an election to decide whether the town shall have prohibition or not. It aims to avoid any conflict with the Local Option Law, but gets around it so that the city may decide such matter irrespective of county or state legislation. If the coming election gives the city power to vote on the wet or dry proposition, then another call for election will be issued and it will be up to the citizens to vote to have prohibition or not.

If prohibition is defeated (so those on the inside say) no licenses will be granted, nor saloons opened until the matter has been passed upon by the supreme court.

There will not be a test case made, nor any violations, but they will await a ruling of the Supreme Court.

The point at issue is whether the ordinance proposed will give the city power to regulate these matters, irrespective of the local option law. It avoids the technicality of the liquor law being a criminal law by including the local option law in its workings and hopes thus to avoid the adverse decision which is thought will be rendered against the cases being tested, of Coquille and Freewater.

If the Southern Pacific Co. would permit it, it would certainly be a good investment for the town and Commercial Club to put a large cabinet on the wall in the depot, filled with grains and fruits raised around the Grove and with an exhibit of the various ores from Bohemia and Black Butte. Such an exhibit would not cost much and would certainly be an advertisement of the town for everyone that entered the depot.

Fine Pen of White Wyandottes.

Robt. Griffin has been working for a couple of years or more raising White Wyandotte chickens, and he succeeds splendidly, and is doing better right along. He is making a careful study of his work, and keeps sorting his chickens over, so as to keep only the best for breeding purposes. While as yet he has not made much money out of them, he is only getting his experiments reduced down to the point where he is sure of the best way to forge ahead. He has a large number of very fine pullets from which he expects to get good returns this winter. He is not altogether satisfied with his Rhode Island Reds, and will probably put in their place Barred Rocks.

Mr. Griffin is making of the chicken business a pastime for his later years, and hopes too in the course of a few months to make it pay splendidly.

If a few more of the chicken growers of this vicinity gave some such attention to their chickens as Mr. Griffin, the town would become known for its fine chickens after a time.

Mrs. William Calvin Chilton Monday.

Mrs. William Calvin Chilton (nee Able) is the daughter of the late Joseph Able and Patricea Able, who were among the pioneer settlers of Oxford, Miss. The Ables were descended from an old English family, for generations distinguished in the political affairs of England. Mrs. Chilton has inherited, from this branch of her ancestry, a decided English cast of features, golden hair, and the fresh, beautiful complexion for which the women of Great Britain are famous. She attended for several years the New York school of Expression, from which institution he graduated with honors. She also took special lessons under masters in Boston and in London, England. Being a thorough mistress of all that pertains to the development of grace and ease of expression and gesture, Mrs. Chilton possesses in a remarkable degree the power of winning her audiences and kindling in them her own enthusiasm. She has enjoyed the distinction of being the recipient of invitations to read before the National Association of Elocutionists in New York and other cities. In 1898 she attended upon invitation, the first annual Shakespearean Symposium at Stratford-on-Avon, England. Upon this occasion Mrs. Chilton rendered a selection from "King John," which was heartily applauded and highly complimented.

Weather Report Week Oct. 2

The week, on the whole, was very favorable. There were several good showers in the northwest counties, and although the weather at times was cloudy and threatening in the southern and eastern counties, no rain of consequence occurred in those sections. The mornings were unusually cool and frosts frequently occurred in exposed places; in some of the higher valleys the frosts were heavy, but in other sections they were light and harmless. The afternoon temperatures were generally above normal, without the heat being excessive. The winds along the coast were high at times, but in the interior they were generally light.

Wagon Runs Over Boy

Percival Limebaugh, the 6 year old son of J. D. Limebaugh met with a bad accident Tuesday morning. The family were all in a farm wagon just starting from town in front of Jobs office when the boy tried to climb from the back seat, where he was sitting with his father, on to the front seat with his brother, and lost his balance and fell to the ground on his back on the left of the wagon just in front of the front of the front wheel. The front wheel went on to the boy before the horses could be stopped and then the wheel stood right over the boys stomach for an instant before the horses were started up and the wheel pulled off of him. His father picked him up and carried him into the doctors office where it was found no bones were broken, but it has not been possible to determine whether he is severely injured internally or not. The boy is bearing up well and if there is not some bad injury to his internal organs he will soon be all right.

Thomas M. Doyle has purchased of John Graber 160 acres in sec 26 consideration $2500.

Among many pleasant recollections of the visitors to England are those of the recitals of Mrs. Chilton, on the stage of the Memorial lecture room, Her delivery of one of Shakespeare's most dramatic scenes was full of power and pathos, a piece of very able work. But I am not sure that even this was not surpassed by her handling of more modern and domestic themes—little things in themselves, but in-rested with a beauty and interest that told of loving sympathy and earnest study.—H. Snowden Ward, London, England, editor lecturer and author of "Shakespeare's Town and Times."
