SMALLER TOWNS UNDER WATER

Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railroad Stations Lives Are Lost.

Seattle, Nov. 15.—Floods in the White, Shock and Green rivers, which began yesterday, began yesterday, have been more destructive to property than to human life or animal life. Reports from Spokane, Washington, state that 16 miles of railroad tracks have been washed out, and that 40 miles of road in King county by great floods that have already done their work. That the character of the land had been changed by water so that a 2-story house on the site of which a 1-story house had stood before the flood had been carried away.

The injury is being made through the destruction of crops and hay, and the amount of damage will be enormous.

FORD RIVERS AND HARBORS.

Great National Agitation to Improve Northern Waters.

A national agitation has been created in the United States to improve the waterways and harbors of the Northern States.

It is proposed to open the United States military harbor on the northwest coast of the country. The harbor would be used for the accommodation of maritime commerce.

The harbor would be constructed at the expense of the Federal government, and would be an improvement in the transportation of goods and the disposal of surplus goods.
