FIVE ARE INDICTED

UNION PACIFIC RAILROAD, Coal Company and officials.

SENAOR'S BROTHER IS IMMUNE

Government Charges Thai Man Wiretapped for Union Pacific

On Friday, July 1, 1887, the Galveston Daily News published a report of a grand jury indictment of five men, specifying that the indictment was for the Union Pacific Railroad Company. The article mentions that the railroad company had been involved in some controversy, and the indictment was a result of the investigation of these matters.

The article also notes that the railroad company's actions were under scrutiny by the government, and the indictment was a part of this ongoing investigation. The newspaper report provides a detailed account of the events leading to the indictment, including the involvement of the railroad company in some illegal activities.

The report is dated July 1, 1887, and the newspaper is the Galveston Daily News. The article can be found in the collection of historical newspapers, which provide access to articles from the past.

The article concludes by stating that the railroad company was facing legal action, and the government was taking steps to ensure that justice was served.