THE END

A YEAR OF DISASTER.

THE RECORD OF 1928 IS A DARK AND SOMBER STORY.

A natural catastrophe of the prehistoric kind, which has been averted by the heroic efforts of the United States Coast Guard, brings home to us the need of a closer cooperation between nations in the matter of disaster relief.

The United States Coast Guard, in cooperation with the United States Navy and the United States Marine Corps, has been working day and night to prevent the spread of the typhoon that has swept the Pacific Ocean.

President Roosevelt, in a message to Congress, said:

"I am deeply concerned about the welfare of our fellow citizens in the Far East, and I ask for the most earnest cooperation in providing relief for them."

The United States Coast Guard has already rescued thousands of lives, and is working to rescue more. The President has called for a national effort to provide relief for the victims of the typhoon.

The United States Coast Guard has also been working to prevent the spread of the influenza epidemic that has swept the United States.
