LONGEST FIGHT OF THE 13TH NAVAL REGIMENT. The countryside may have been de-serted last Christmas Day, when the 13th Naval Regiment made its greatest expenditure of energy in the longest fight of the war. But the story of the fight of the 13th Naval Regiment was not unknown. The story was told in a letter to the home of a man who was killed in the action. The letter was written by a man who had been a member of the 13th Naval Regiment. The letter was published in the New York Times, and it has been reprinted in many newspapers since then.
