The U.S. land office in Seattle was moved this week into larger quarters, the bureau having made the move to ease the congestion that the government office was experiencing. The new office is located on the second floor of the Portland Building, and will be ready for occupation by the officers of the bureau on the first of the year.

Oregon Selects Site

First State to Choose Location for Building of the Alaska-Pacific Exposition

=special correspondence=

Seattle—The first site for a building to be erected here for the exposition was selected December 15 by the chairman of the board of the Alaska-Pacific Exposition Association, Charles E. Chamberlain, at a meeting of the council of that organization. The site selected is on the north side of the center of the city, near the harbor.
