Merchants Protective Association.

Motto—Credit where credit is due.

Object—Protection.

1st—To the merchants who may care to extend credit.

2d—To the patrons who may care to ask for credit.

RULES—AS APPLIED TO COLLECTIONS.

1st—All accounts are due and payable at the place of business where the credit is given, thirty days after date, or the first day of the month, unless other terms are arranged at the time of such deal.

2d—No collector will be sent out after book accounts, neither will statements be rendered until account is overdue, and such notice will be evidence of delinquency.

3d—Accounts not paid as per agreement will be closed and no further credit given by any member of the Association.

4th—All accounts must draw interest at the rate of eight per cent per annum from the date due until paid. Such accounts to be secured by note.

5th—Any party receiving an Association letter from a member of this Association and not responding to or acknowledging receipt thereof shall be deemed unworthy of credit. Notice shall be given the secretary and he shall inform all members of the Association.

It is not the wish or intention of the Association to make credit difficult, but to make credit safe and dispense with the inconvenience and expense of monthly collections.

Lumbermen Meet in Chicago.

At a large, well attended meeting recently held in Chicago under the auspices of the American Lumberman, the national lumber paper, for the purpose of taking steps to alleviate the car shortage which is extending all over the United States a bill was drafted and will be presented to Congress for action.

A committee of the lumbermen present at this meeting were appointed to call upon the president and present the situation to him and he stated that he was in hearty accord with any measure looking to the relief asked for. With Congress after them, assisted by the Oregon legislature, surely some method will be devised by which the railroads can be made to come to time.

Worth Investigation.

On a recent trip east a prominent mill man of Portland on his return made the statement that the lumber yards of the Mississippi valley were having extreme trouble in getting sufficient cash and doors to supply the trade. In this connection a splendid opening is presented right here at home for the establishment of such an industry as in no part of the country is timber more suitable for this purpose found.

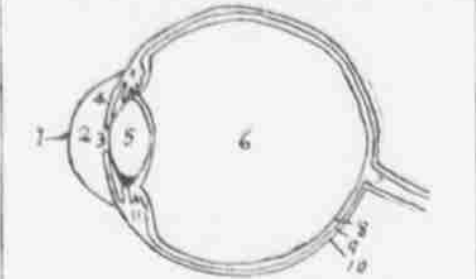

Some day an outsider will come here and establish a plant for this purpose and then the cry will be raised that the people here did not see such an opening and opportunity.

Frank C. Baker Will Not Be Forgotten.

Frank C. Baker left an estate valued at $250,000. His will gives $2500 each to the Portland Baby's home, Boys and girls Aid Society, the Children's Home, Florence Crittenton Refuge Home, Patton Home for the aged, the Y. M. C. A., Y. W. C. A. and Salvation Army. There is set aside $15,000 for a monument to the memory of Oregon pioneers, and $1500 each for eight drinking fountains; also $50,000 to beautify the parks. The balance of his fortune goes to his relatives.

THE EYE AND ITS CARE

By Dr. Frank Lucile Hard, Rooms 1-4 Chrisman Building, Eugene.

1—Cornea 5—Vitreous Humor 2—Aqueous Humor 7—Optic Nerve 3—Pupil 8—Retina 4—Iris 9—Choroid 5—Crystalline lens 10—Sclerotic

The eye-ball has three coats. The sclerotic or outer coat, the choroid or middle coat and the retina or inner coat. The sclerotic coat is a thick, tough, white fibrous structure. The front part of it is that part commonly called "the white of the eye." This is covered with a very thin transparent membrane called the conjunctiva, which gives to the white of the eye a brilliant luster. The sclerotic joins the cornea in front and the optic nerve in back where it is the thickest. The next or middle coat, the choroid, is composed of a dense network of capillaries and veins. Between these are many cells containing dark pigment. The choroid extends as far forward as the ciliary muscle and there forms a little plaited frill around the crystalline lens, the retina is a direct continuation of the optic nerve which comes from the brain. The retina lines the whole interior of the eye as far forward as the ciliary processes, where it ends in a jagged margin. This is the nervous membrane of the eye and may be compared to the sensitive plate of a camera because the picture of the object looked at is imprinted upon it, from there the message is conveyed to the brain by means of the optic nerve.

At the entrance of the optic nerve, or the Foramen Opticum there is no vision and this is called the blind spot. In a direct line from the pupil is a depression in the retina and here vision is most keen. This is why, when we are looking at an object it stands out more clearly than do the objects to the side, above or below it. The retina is extremely thin, semi-transparent and composed of many layers.

Next week the Emmetropic or normal eye-ball will be talked about.

Planting Cedar Timber in Japan.

The Japanese have planted thousands of acres of waste land in cedar timber. These are set out in regular rows but for the first three years it is necessary to keep the bamboo grass which grows very rank cut in order to give the trees a chance to make a good stand. It is said they grow as straight as arrows and are used for telephone and telegraph poles.—American Lumberman.

BEACH SAND MINING IN SOUTHERN OREGON.

Diggings Profitably Operated About Rogue River's Mouth and Other Points—Great Hopes That Dr. Day Will Solve All Problems.

Gold Beach, Ore., Jan. 16. Interest is being revived to a considerable extent in the gold-bearing beach sands along the Oregon coast. This interest has been created by the good returns derived during the past year by those who have followed practical methods. The experiments made by Dr. David T. Day and his assistants of the United States geological survey have also had much to do in reviving the beach sand mining. Diggings are being worked at various points along the beach, near the mouth of the Rogue river, at the mouth of the Chetco and at points farther north.

The sands sought and mined are much like ordinary beach sands, but darker. They carry values in flour gold and platinum. This sand as it is called, is really, so Dr. Day affirms, a magnetic iron that forms at least half and in many instances three fourths of the bulk of the black sands of the beach.

The gold of these beach sands is very fine, light and flaky. A very large percentage of the particles will float on water and for this reason and the fact that they will not, or at least but scantily, adhere to mercury the process of catching and saving them is difficult. The best of the beach sands do not run over $30 a ton, while the average is but $3 and $4 a ton.

Dr. Day and his assistants have not only been experimenting for values but have also been seeking some practical method of separating and saving them. Dr. Day hopes to be able to give within a short time a method that will be far better than the crude system now employed and that can readily be adopted by all who are interested in beach sand mining.

Governor Chamberlain in His Message to the Legislature States That Mining is One of the Most Promising Industries in the State and Goes After State Mining.

Mining is one of the most promising industries in the state, and those engaged in the legitimate work thereof ought to be protected against imposition and impostors.

The American Mining Congress appointed a committee of distinguished gentlemen to prepare a bill for the punishment of mining fakers and promoters of illegitimate mining enterprises, and I presume it will be submitted to you. A law has recently been passed by the California legislature along these lines, and reports are that it has worked an almost complete eradication from that state of spurious mining stock and that lecherous parasite on the mining industry—the fake promoter. The state has been seriously injured by the sale of spurious mining stock throughout the east, and this is done under glaring headlines of pamphlets published here and elsewhere. Any person who undertakes to sell or assent to the publication, privately or publicly, of a fraudulent or exaggerated report tending to give any person or the public the idea of a greater value than such stock really possesses, with intent to defraud, ought to be deemed guilty of a felony and punished accordingly.

The Bureau of Grades.

The Bureau of Grades of the Oregon and Washington Lumber Manufacturers Association came into active existence Jan. 1st at which time A. N. Hagen entered upon the duties of chief inspector. In the selection of Mr. Hagen it is conceded that the right selection has been made. Mr. Hagen is well qualified for the duties of this office having seen active service both in lumber yards and office work, there is no doubt his work will give satisfaction. Mr. Hagen made a trip to this part of the valley on the 15th inst. but finding nearly all the mills closed down returned to Portland stating he would be here in February when he will make an official visit to all of the mills connected with the Lumber Association.
