WEDNESDAY, FEB. 27, 1907

The citizens and tax payers of our city must select a mayor and council in a short time. Everybody should vote, if they don't they ought to. It is feared that there will be several tickets in the field from which the voters must select their choice, but be as it may, it is a free country, everyone has its friends, but when the battle is over wouldn't it be fine if the winning side could receive the best hand and congratulation of those who lost. It is sometimes the duty of voters to select the man best qualified for the particular office and best interest of the city. An active legitimate, gentlemanly strife for the honors is good and healthy for the city. It is believed that on these lines the spring campaign will be conducted in Cottage Grove.

The young men of Cottage Grove have shown a commendable spirit in their move to secure for our city a company of the Oregon National Guards. It is their loyalty to home, state and our country that has inspired their action, more names were signed to the application than is required to form a company and all were secured without solicitation and at short notice. The roll contains the names of a list of young men that any community might be proud of. In build, character and bravery many of these applicants have already been proven fit timber for stalwart officers. The Nugget compliments the state officers on their opportunity to secure for the state an additional company such as is offered by Cottage Grove.

The Oregonian don't like the personnel of the Railroad Commission. The Oregonian has had to swallow several things they didn't like the past few years.

In the obituary notice of the late lamented Yoncalla Courier, Editor Brown frankly confesses he had only nine paid up subscribers, and adds: "As to circulation the paper had none." We would like to know if this statement conforms to the affidavit Mr. Brown filed in the U. S. land office at Roseburg when he asked for and received a number of land notices that rightfully belonged to this paper and the Drain Nonpareil.—Oakland Owl.

Those "statesmen at Salem who desire to see the state go back to cannibalism by tearing down the schools have't as much intelligence as a grasshopper. A grasshopper has sense enough to jump forward, but if all the sense those fellows have, combined, were put into a grasshopper, it would jump backwards instead of forwards.—Drain Nonpareil.

The Roseburg Review has just issued a splendid 16-page special edition, containing a world of valuable information about Douglas. It is rather misleading, however, to use an old boom cut of Roseburg showing the Coos Bay railroad being built from Roseburg, instead of from Drain.—Nonpareil.

THE EYE AND ITS CARE

By Dr. Franc Lucile Hard. Rooms 1-4 Chrisman Building, Eugene.

3. Crystalline lens. PRESBYOPIA OR FAILING VISION. With advancing age many changes take place in the eye. This is most apparent in the eye. Beginning very young the near point, that is, the closest point at which one can clearly see, gradually grows farther from the eyes. This change is called Presbyopia and is not perceptible to us until the age forty-five or later, when we notice that to see print or sewing the work has to be held farther from the eyes than is convenient or comfortable; and even then objects do not seem quite as clear as they should. This is not a disease but purely a physiological condition.

At birth, the crystalline lens is very soft but as age advances it grows harder until a time comes when it gets too hard to be relaxed by ciliary muscle, which was explained in one of the preceding articles, so it cannot become more convex and adjust itself for near work.

The age when this change becomes apparent varies in individuals. Hyperopic or far sighted people require glasses for near work much sooner than the Myopic or near sighted.

The inconvenience or Presbyopia can become very satisfactory by having the eyes carefully examined and proper glasses fitted and worn for near work.

One thing that must be impressed upon Presbyopic people is the danger that lies in using other people's glasses and also in using glasses for which the eyes have been properly examined. Glasses belonging to other people may be too strong and thus strain the eyes even though they can be seen through very nicely. And glasses which are bought without having the eyes examined for are, never made of good material and therefore are not perfect. Often one lens of this kind will have two or three different strengths in different places when it should be uniform, thus doing the eye great injury. Reading glasses should not be just anything that can be seen through but should be made of the best quality. Optical glass should be carefully fitted to each eye by one who thoroughly understands the eye and its anomalies.

Knights of Pythias.

On Saturday there assembled in the parlors of the Commercial Club a large gathering of the members of the local lodge Knights of Pythias for the purpose of greeting the Grand Chancellor of the state, Mr. M. F. Davis.

Mr. Davis is known all over the state as a speaker of more than ordinary ability and the address given by him was a most able one.

After the session of the lodge closed adjournment was taken to the assembly room of the club where refreshments were served followed by cigars and short talks made by a number of the boys of the lodge here.

Unless a member of an order keeps in close touch with the order by taking the papers relative to the order, it is sometimes a revelation to them to have facts and figures given, and it was so with the Grand Chancellor's address, and the lodge here will no doubt take on new life from the effects of his visit.

The local lodge wish to extend to the Commercial Club their thanks for the use of the rooms on this occasion.

At The Presbyterian Church.

The pastor's subject Sunday morning was, "Memory, Hope and duty," the text being Psalms 78:7. "That they might set their hope in God, and not forget the works of God, but keep his commandments."

No doubt the original intent of these words were to inspire the charge of duty. The busy cares of this present often make us forget that we owe duty to God or even have a hope in Him until we are jolted by some calamity. This text calls us to reason letting memory do his perfect work, hope pointing to the promises and duty will be encouraged. Memory is one of God's greatest blessings. It is true that in looking backward there are some things that stalk like grim specters across the dial plate of life that nature like point the finger of condemnation at us, and conscience say of us, "thou art guilty," but to him who has trusted in God memory turns the page and we see in beautiful garments the goodness of God who for Christ sake forgave the past and we are made to rejoice.

In the lives of many the plough shares of trouble and disappointment have made deep furrows but we now can see that its the preparation for the golden sheaves of the harvest time.

In remembering the past there should be lessons of profit to us. From our weakness and our humiliation we learn dependence on God. From our failures we learn prudence, and we time our ambitions by remembering that we break down. I know that there are some who remember the past only to burn incense on the alters of their past achievements, though some of these records are as black with infamy as hades. Some remember the past only to sink deeper into despair but to such a one let me say let these cause you no longer to rely on your own power but trust in God who has said that to the weary he would give rest. Let us let the yesterdays with their failures cause us to lay the hand in God's hand and he will enable us come off the victor over the trials of the tomorrows.

It has been said that "hope is the last star of life to set." Memory and hope are very closely related. Memory furnishes the coloring with which paints her picture on the canvass of the future expectancy. If in our look backward we see only selfishness, sinfulness and only the aspirations of the sensual, and see there no desire for deliverance, then the picture that hope paints will be as devoid of light, life and love as the past is black, barren and fruitless. He whose past has only run on the law lover of the earthly and whose future ambitions have no place in them for God can never say "I hope for better things" with any certitude of fruition. He who heeds the Psalmist's exhortation and sets his life in God pierces the black curtain of uncertainty and the light from the altar fires of Godly service shines about him and he has possession of the future rewards, and to him they are as real as the memory of the past.

Memory and hope are hand maidens to inspire all to their duty to God and our jealousy in the performance of that duty will be in proportion to the appreciation of a hope that is begotten of the memory of the pit of sin from which we have been dragged. And if hope is only on the low level of past sensualism, there will be no aspiration to duty toward God.

State Game Warden Has New Officers.

J. W. Baker, State Game and Forestry Warden has taken the offices above the Nugget office where he will deal with all evil doers hereafter.

"I was literally coughing myself to death, and had become too weak to leave my bed; and the neighbors predicted that I would never leave it alive; but they got fooled, for thanks be to God, I was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery. It took just four one dollar bottles to completely cure the cough and restore me to good sound health," writes Mrs. Eva Unepcher, of Grovetown, Stark Co., Ind. This King of cough and cold cures, and healer of throat and lungs is guaranteed by Benson's Pharmacy, 50c and $1.00. Trial bottle free.

Commercial Club.

The Commercial Club held regular business meeting Monday evening, attendance was good. Regular business was transacted and bills paid. The committee on advertising reported that they had received the special copies of the Bohemia Nugget, that they had collected the money and paid it to the publishers as per contract; that they were pleased with the edition, and it was up to the club for distribution and mailing. The report was adopted. Messrs. Phillips, Thompson and Martin were appointed a committee to investigate what might be required and take steps to get the present rate of fire insurance reduced.

Messrs. Jones, Comer and Hard were named as a committee to ascertain why the timber on a certain section of the reserve had been withdrawn from the market and secure from the Department a reconsideration in the matter if possible.

Messrs. Wheeler and Thompson were selected to see that the name of Cottage Grove be conspicuously placed on both sides of every car of lumber shipped from this point.

Real Estate Sales.

Through the agency of Fingal Hinds, C. W. Caldwell sold his 80 acre place close to the Grove to J. V. Foster of Coos county for $2500. Mr. Foster owned a dairy farm which he sold before purchasing here. He has gone to his former coast home for his family which consists of a wife and ten children, nine beautiful girls and a smart young lad.

AMERICAN IDEAS

An Ellis Island Tract.

While we extend a cordial welcome to the thrifty and industrious of all nations, and bid them take their place among us as workers and producers, we mean to teach them that this is not a country made up of principalities and Juchies, where each community may have its own language and its own government; but is one nation from the Atlantic to the Pacific, a nation to which every citizen owes supreme allegiance, and whose laws must be obeyed without favor or exception. This duty is imperative and must be taught at whatever hazard. And the sooner we begin the better; for there are those who are demanding that their native tongue be taught in our public schools, and that foreign potentates have claims upon loyalty and devotion. Such ideas as these if once allowed would endanger the republic, and jeopardize every interest that is sacred and dear to us. It ought to be understood once and for all that this is not a new Ireland nor a new Germany, nor a nation tributary to Rome, but the United States, with one flag, one Constitution, one government, and that neither king, queen, pope nor potentate has any claim to service or recognition. Anything short of this is treasonable and dangerous, and must be met in the same spirit that fought in the War for Independence, and that conquered in the bloody days of the Rebellion. We want neither red flags nor green flags. We want neither French Anarchy nor German Socialism. We want neither Irish politics nor papal processions. When we give a man a home, and allow him the opportunity to win ample provision for himself and his family; when we put in his hand the ballot and admit him to fellowship in the councils of the nation, we expect that in return he will absolve himself from every alliance, whether political or religious, that bound him to his former life, and that he will give his best and do his best for the nation that has done so much for him. If he will not accept citizenship upon these terms, let him return to the land of his birth; such a man has no place among our people. It is full time that our legislators and politicians gave more attention to this matter. We have been far too careless, and have not enforced such laws as common prudence and public safety require.
