In the National Hall of Congress

Monday, March 4

Washington, March 4—The Department of the Interior was not the only department that got a good start Tuesday. Mr. Smith with the Department of the Interior had the privilege of standing and addressing the body, and Mr. Wilson, the President, in turn during the same session. Mr. Wilson made a most effective speech, and the body was greatly interested in the facts that he gave. The President made the announcement that he had received the cordial congratulations of the body, and that he was satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body. The President was also satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body.

Mr. Wilson made an effective speech, and the body was greatly interested in the facts that he gave. The President made the announcement that he had received the cordial congratulations of the body, and that he was satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body. The President was also satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body.

Mr. Wilson made an effective speech, and the body was greatly interested in the facts that he gave. The President made the announcement that he had received the cordial congratulations of the body, and that he was satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body. The President was also satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body.

Mr. Wilson made an effective speech, and the body was greatly interested in the facts that he gave. The President made the announcement that he had received the cordial congratulations of the body, and that he was satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body. The President was also satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body.

Mr. Wilson made an effective speech, and the body was greatly interested in the facts that he gave. The President made the announcement that he had received the cordial congratulations of the body, and that he was satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body. The President was also satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body.

Mr. Wilson made an effective speech, and the body was greatly interested in the facts that he gave. The President made the announcement that he had received the cordial congratulations of the body, and that he was satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body. The President was also satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body.

Mr. Wilson made an effective speech, and the body was greatly interested in the facts that he gave. The President made the announcement that he had received the cordial congratulations of the body, and that he was satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body. The President was also satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body.

Mr. Wilson made an effective speech, and the body was greatly interested in the facts that he gave. The President made the announcement that he had received the cordial congratulations of the body, and that he was satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body. The President was also satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body.

Mr. Wilson made an effective speech, and the body was greatly interested in the facts that he gave. The President made the announcement that he had received the cordial congratulations of the body, and that he was satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body. The President was also satisfied with the facts that he gave in an address to the body.