NEWS FROM THE NATIONAL CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, D.C., April 17—President Roosevelt today issued a proclamation declaring the 22d anniversary of the Spanish-American War a National Holiday. The President in his message to Congress today stated that the United States was "the only power that ever came into being as a result of a war." He also declared that "the United States has no need to apologize for being a nation...which has, in its history, accomplished so much for mankind." The President's message was greeted with enthusiasm by both Republicans and Democrats. The United States Senate passed a resolution expressing its appreciation of the President's declaration. The House of Representatives also passed a similar resolution. The proclamation may be read in full in the Congressional Record on page 124.

THE ATOMIC AGE IN NATION'S CAPITAL

Washington, April 17—The United States today entered the atomic age as President Roosevelt today declared the 22d anniversary of the Spanish-American War a National Holiday. The President in his message to Congress today stated that the United States was "the only power that ever came into being as a result of a war." He also declared that "the United States has no need to apologize for being a nation...which has, in its history, accomplished so much for mankind." The President's message was greeted with enthusiasm by both Republicans and Democrats. The United States Senate passed a resolution expressing its appreciation of the President's declaration. The House of Representatives also passed a similar resolution. The proclamation may be read in full in the Congressional Record on page 124.

THE ATOMIC AGE IN NATION'S CAPITAL

Washington, April 17—The United States today entered the atomic age as President Roosevelt today declared the 22d anniversary of the Spanish-American War a National Holiday. The President in his message to Congress today stated that the United States was "the only power that ever came into being as a result of a war." He also declared that "the United States has no need to apologize for being a nation...which has, in its history, accomplished so much for mankind." The President's message was greeted with enthusiasm by both Republicans and Democrats. The United States Senate passed a resolution expressing its appreciation of the President's declaration. The House of Representatives also passed a similar resolution. The proclamation may be read in full in the Congressional Record on page 124.

THE ATOMIC AGE IN NATION'S CAPITAL

Washington, April 17—The United States today entered the atomic age as President Roosevelt today declared the 22d anniversary of the Spanish-American War a National Holiday. The President in his message to Congress today stated that the United States was "the only power that ever came into being as a result of a war." He also declared that "the United States has no need to apologize for being a nation...which has, in its history, accomplished so much for mankind." The President's message was greeted with enthusiasm by both Republicans and Democrats. The United States Senate passed a resolution expressing its appreciation of the President's declaration. The House of Representatives also passed a similar resolution. The proclamation may be read in full in the Congressional Record on page 124.

THE ATOMIC AGE IN NATION'S CAPITAL

Washington, April 17—The United States today entered the atomic age as President Roosevelt today declared the 22d anniversary of the Spanish-American War a National Holiday. The President in his message to Congress today stated that the United States was "the only power that ever came into being as a result of a war." He also declared that "the United States has no need to apologize for being a nation...which has, in its history, accomplished so much for mankind." The President's message was greeted with enthusiasm by both Republicans and Democrats. The United States Senate passed a resolution expressing its appreciation of the President's declaration. The House of Representatives also passed a similar resolution. The proclamation may be read in full in the Congressional Record on page 124.