French Steamer Goes Ashore on Coast of Uruguay,

VESSEL AND CARGO WILL BE LOSSES

Heavy Gale Makes Rescue Difficult, but Efforts Are Still Made to Rescure Survivors.

Heddesdals, Uruguay, May 6.—The French steamer La Gloire, with 700 passengers on board, ran aground here last night and it is feared that at least 100 lives have been lost. The steamer was on her way to Montevideo, and is said to have had 200 passengers and 500 crew on board. The ship was so far out of sight of land that the passengers and crew were assured they were safe, and it is said that at least 100 lives have been lost.

The news that the ship had been driven on shore was not known until the evening. The ship was estimated to be in the middle of the gulf, where there are many inlets and channels.

At the American consulate, efforts are being made to rescue survivors, and the dispatches from the La Gloire to New York are expected to be delayed.
