

THE CHARITY GIRL

By EFFIE A. ROWLANDS

CHAPTER XXI.

Nature had given her her most desirable features. She was not tall, but her figure was well-rounded, and it gave her an air of womanliness she never possessed before. She was not pretty, but her face was attractive, and it would be of great service to her in the world. She was not clever, but she had a good memory and could learn anything she wanted to learn. She was not strong, but she had a strong will and could overcome any obstacle. She was not rich, but she had a strong desire to earn her own living and would work hard to get it. She was not handsome, but she had a good figure and could attract attention. She was not graceful, but she had a good balance and could walk and stand gracefully. She was not educated, but she had a good mind and could learn anything she wanted to learn. She was not learned, but she had a good memory and could remember anything she wanted to remember. She was not beautiful, but she had a good figure and could attract attention. She was not intelligent, but she had a good mind and could learn anything she wanted to learn. She was not clever, but she had a strong will and could overcome any obstacle. She was not strong, but she had a strong desire to earn her own living and would work hard to get it. She was not rich, but she had a strong desire to earn her own living and would work hard to get it. She was not handsome, but she had a good figure and could attract attention. She was not graceful, but she had a good balance and could walk and stand gracefully. She was not educated, but she had a good mind and could learn anything she wanted to learn. She was not learned, but she had a good memory and could remember anything she wanted to remember. She was not beautiful, but she had a good figure and could attract attention. She was not intelligent, but she had a good mind and could learn anything she wanted to learn. She was not clever, but she had a strong will and could overcome any obstacle. She was not strong, but she had a strong desire to earn her own living and would work hard to get it. She was not rich, but she had a strong desire to earn her own living and would work hard to get it. She was not handsome, but she had a good figure and could attract attention. She was not graceful, but she had a good balance and could walk and stand gracefully. She was not educated, but she had a good mind and could learn anything she wanted to learn. She was not learned, but she had a good memory and could remember anything she wanted to remember. She was not beautiful, but she had a good figure and could attract attention. She was not intelligent, but she had a good mind and could learn anything she wanted to learn. She was not clever, but she had a strong will and could overcome any obstacle. She was not strong, but she had a strong desire to earn her own living and would work hard to get it. She was not rich, but she had a strong desire to earn her own living and would work hard to get it. She was not handsome, but she had a good figure and could attract attention.