There was a lively runaway here on Sunday, which was only kept from being a very serious one by the coolness and skill of the driver, Mr. Milton Bally, a blacksmith of Springfield. In the back were Mr. Bally's wife, two children and Mrs. Boutin, the mother of Mrs. Bally. The team was first frightened at the train, and in turning the corner at the depot became entirely unmanageable after seeing the rock crusher on the corner. This same team ran away here last year.

Last Sunday evening about 6 o'clock, as Mr. J. B. Thompson and son and Mr. Johnson, who had been up the Coast Fork about four miles, were coming home, a bicycle frightened the team near the home of Will White, whereupon they ran away. The tongue of the wagon broke, causing it to upset and throwing the occupants to the ground, which caused Mr. Thompson a black eye and a bruised hand and a broken arm near the shoulder for Mr. Johnson. The team was caught at Latham.

Dr. Alex. Corpron lectured to the "Men of Tomorrow Club" of the Methodist church Friday night on Chemistry. The boys greatly appreciate these evenings as evidenced by their steady attendance and careful attention. Dr. Corpron gave them not only an interesting lecture but one of helpful and necessary knowledge. The older people often forget that boys like to hear of scientific work and investigations, when put into such words that they can understand them, and that they often get some little notions or ideas therefrom that later on in their lives come out to great works and purposes. Let the lectures keep on.

Two young men passed through here on Saturday that have been out on a camping trip for three months. They had a couple of saddle horses, and three borros for pack animals. They went up through the Siskiyou mountains and have had a great time, not only from the enjoyment of it, but have been refreshed both in strength of body and mind. The best way to get the most of a vacation is to get off in the mountains or country, entirely away from people, from business and social duties, and give your body a chance to rebuild. One of these young men was Mr. A. Meydenbauer of Bellingham, Washington, the other Mr. John Hemrich, a son of Senator Hemrich of Seattle, Washington.
