Doctor Shows Judge Some Fast Driving, but the Latter Is Game.

Dr. McBryer, who was very fond of speedy horses, had purchased a new one that had a mark of 2:10 and also possessed some very headstrong ways. Nevertheless the doctor was proud of his new trotter and was anxious that his friends should enjoy with him its bursts of speed. So about a week after the thoroughbred had been added to his stable he invited Judge Rodgers to take a drive with him. The judge said he felt the need of some fresh air and would go gladly. They started out of town at a lively clip. In the country the doctor gave the horse his head, and the buggy rattled over the road at a hair raising rate of speed. The judge clinched his jaws and manfully determined not to ask the doctor to slow down, knowing that if he did so he would be accused of lacking nerve. At last, about five miles out, the doctor pulled up and turned around preparatory to starting home.

"How do you like him, judge?" asked the doctor.

"Fine! Best goer I ever saw. Great pleasure to ride behind him," declared the judge.

"Well, on the way back I'll just show you what real trotting is."

The horse covered the first mile as if it were spurring down a homestretch to win a $10,000 purse. The judge's hat was jarred off, and his hair blew straight back from his head. Still he would not cry quits. Then an automobile whizzed by, and the horse was frightened. With the bit in its teeth it took immediate charge of the driving party and neither doctor nor judge ever traveled so fast as they did behind that horse. Still, the judge, noting that the doctor merely pulled taut on the reins and occasionally chattered soothingly to the horse, would not show any signs of alarm. They reached the edge of town, and the horse seemed to put on more speed. From side to side of the street they bounced, and then the judge leaned over to the doctor and gasped:

"Doc, if you'd just as soon, I'll get out at my office. I've just thought of a client whom I promised to see at this hour!"—Chicago Tribune.

He Was Worried.

A Frenchman who is staying at a hotel in Edinburgh asked at the cashier's desk for his bill and was astonished to find it so large.

He felt that he had been plundered, but he paid the bill and asked to see the proprietor. The landlord came down in response to the call, beaming with smiles. The Frenchman rushed up to him, exclaiming:

"Ah, let me embrace you. Let me kiss you!"

"But why do you want to embrace me, sir? I don't understand."

"Ah, salve, but look at this bill."

"Your bill? Yes, but what of it?"

"Of it? Why, it means that I'll never, never see you again, salve!"—London Answers.

His Ears Were Frozen.

One frosty morning a Gorman man called to his son to go and harness the donkey. It so happened that night, the door being left open, a young bullock had strayed into the stable and driven the donkey out. Johnnie, in his hurry, took no matches with him to provide a light and could not see the difference. Being a long time away, his father came after him to see what he was about, saying, "Johnnie, what are you doing?" Johnnie replied: "I can't get the collar over his head. His ears be froze."—Birmingham (England) Post.

Supply and Demand.

"I wonder why there are so many mendacious people in the world," says the person who is always more or less grieved.

"It is merely a question of supply and demand," answered Miss Cayenne. "There will always be people to tell falsehoods so long as there are foolish people to believe them."—Washington Star.

A Serious Case.

"Say, did you hear that Cholly Softed had had a serious operation performed on him lately?"

"What was it, appendicitis?"

"No; worse than that. His rich uncle cut him out of his will."—Baltimore American.

The Laborer Worthy of His Hire.

Magistrate and M. P.—After mature and careful consideration of your case I have come to the conclusion that you are a lazy, good for nothing rogue. May I ask if you ever earned a shilling in your life?

Prisoner—Oh, yes, I have, yer 'onor. I voted for yer 'onor once.—Sketch.

SUNLIGHT.

One of the Most Potent of All Germ Destroyers.

There have been sun worshippers through all the ages, and the sun has always been recognized as the source of life and light, of health and happiness on the earth. Yet it is only recently that science has found the explanation of this world feeling and has learned how and why the light of the sun is life giving and life saving. It is only within the last quarter of a century that the medical profession has discovered that the cause of the great plagues of mankind—consumption, typhoid fever, pneumonia, cholera, smallpox, yellow fever and all the infectious and contagious diseases—is due to the presence within the human body of micro-organisms. These organisms constitute the lowest forms of animal or vegetable life—single cells, invisible to the naked eye, which are reproduced with frightful rapidity when sown on a favorable soil.

By itself the knowledge of this fact would cause despair if there were nothing to arrest the increase of the germs. But fortunately it was found at the same time that there are forces in man and in nature warring against the minute enemies and that one of the most powerful of such protectors is the light of the sun.

It is now known that sunlight is one of the most potent of all the destroyers of disease germs. It kills them more certainly than do the strongest disinfectants. The bacteria that cause pneumonia, for example, are destroyed within less than an hour when exposed to the direct rays of the sun and live but little longer in the diffused light which fills a room on a bright day.

This knowledge has been turned to practical account in the treatment of many diseases, especially of the skin and superficial parts of the body. In lupus, for example, which is a form of tuberculosis of the skin, a positive cure may result from exposure of the diseased part to the direct rays of the sun.

The healing of wounds is promoted by light, and boils, erysipelas and various inflammations of the skin have been cured by the same means. The curative effect is sometimes obtained by simple exposure to direct sunlight, but the best results are brought about by means of lenses which concentrate the chemical rays and exclude those of heat.—Youth's Companion.

Ceylon For Clever Doctors.

The native medical profession of Ceylon is envied by half the population of the island, as it comprises the highest their learning can afford. But it is deplorably becoming extinct owing to lack of encouragement and shortly will be as much a thing of the past as the Egyptian embalming system. Ceylon dentists never extract a tooth. Their medicines are strong enough to arrest corruption, giving vitality to the gums. Surgeons never amputate an injured limb, but cure the break, fracture or dislocation by powerful vegetable oils. There is no union among these mysterious doctors, however. They are jealous of one another, are continually running each other down, and so the Europeans and high class natives seek European advice, and the native science is being gradually ruined.—Pearson's Weekly.

Dolly Madison's Trunk Rescued.

In the treasure room of the White House is an old trunk that belonged to Dolly Madison. This trunk had been battered from the attic to basement until Mrs. Roosevelt discovered its historic worth. She had the relic renovated, and now it is one of the receptacles of the White House silver. The old trunk held the wardrobe of the beautiful Virginia girl, and on the side it bears the words, "Missess Dorothy Madison, care of James Madison, Esq." Just how old fashioned it is may be gleaned from the fact that it is not covered with a smooth leather, but with reddish cowskin, with the fuzzy hair showing. The trunk is in remarkably fine condition, considering the hard knocks it has undergone. It was in the White House at the fire and bears signs of scorching in several places.

An Emigration Scheme.

Villagers of Boda, in the province of Salamanca, Spain, who number 1,146, have applied to the Argentine republic to be allowed to emigrate to that country in a body. They ask that their present social organization may be retained, so that they may take with them in their present position their mayor, justice of the peace, priest, doctor, druggist, farmers, smiths, masons, carpenters, shoemakers, and so on. The present distressed condition of Spain is causing widespread emigration.

A Shell From the War.

A singular accident occurred lately near Franklin, Tenn. A poplar tree was cut down on the McGavock farm, and a tenant on the place put a stick of wood on the fire in his household, when a tremendous explosion took place, painfully injuring a little negro. It was found to be a shell which had been fired by the Federals at the battle of Franklin forty-one years ago and which had lodged in the tree without exploding.—Jackson (Tenn.) Sun.

France's New President.

M. Fallieres, the newly elected French president, was born in Mezin. There is a church dating from the ninth century in the little city. Against its walls once nestled the smithy and home of a blacksmith. It was in that house—for his grandfather was a smith—that the president was born. The property was sold to the church in 1872, but the smithy was carted away and set up again, stone for stone, in the outskirts of Mezin, where it still stands.

Governor Edwin Warfield of Maryland laughs at the thirteen superstition, though, according to the common view, he ought to regard it with respect. He is the thirteenth governor of Maryland to occupy the executive mansion at Annapolis. He was elected by a majority of 13,000 votes, has thirteen letters in his name and was inaugurated Jan. 13, 1904.

H. E. Huntington is preparing to establish a permanent Indian exhibition in southern California. It will have a group of every tribe of Indians in North America permanently quartered there, besides an art gallery containing Indian photographs. MODES OF THE MOMENT.

Grenat is a new name for vinegar color, which will be worn.

The very latest models show tight fitting medium length coats on the riding habit order, in cheviot, tweed and serge.

There is a new flannelette, soft and silky and shorn of its disagreeable fuzz, which is admirable for sacks, robes and even shirt waists.

The plainer the short skirt the smarter it is thought to be. Rows of machine stitching are always a good finish in the plaids, checks or mixed chevils. Many of the new hat shapes have the brim turned up on the left side. Others have flat brims or brims shelving downward from their base or merely turned down half an inch at the edge. According to authorities, these bell shapes promise to be much favored.—New York Globe.

CHINA AND JAPAN.

The maritime customs revenue of China for 1905 shows an increase of $2,500,000 over that of 1904.

The trouble in Japan about the Chinese students in that country has been settled, but not without 1,000 of them returning to China.

Last summer, owing to floods, 80,000 Japanese soldiers in northeastern Korea lived for fifteen days on one-third rations while building bridges all the time. There was not a murmur of discontent.

The North China Herald says that the Ch'uan Han railway, the line from Chengtu to Hankow, is to be built jointly by the merchants and the government of the two provinces concerned, backed by the several provincial governments.

Special Correspondence.

Portland, May 17.—The Republicans are becoming desperate in their campaign methods, have abandoned all the long cherished principles of their party and are making the remainder of the campaign on two lone planks. These are a willful and gross misrepresentation of the positions of the Democratic nominees and an impassioned appeal to old party adherents to rally around the organization. The Republican spell binders become almost frantic in their cries "don't vote for a democrat."

Chas. V. Galloway, the brilliant young democratic candidate for Congress from the first district is making such a favorable impression wherever he has been to discuss the issues of the day, that his Republican opponent has taken up a very prudent and unwise course to get the party vote for himself. In his speech in Tillamook county he deliberately made very unjust and reprehensible misrepresentations of Mr. Galloway's position on the tariff.

Mr. Galloway's platform contains this: "If elected to Congress I shall vote at every opportunity to reduce tariff rates and schedules that grant protection to special interests and rates and schedules that by prohibiting imports decrease national revenue." After Mr. Hawley reached the word protection he stopped, implying that the sentence was complete, thus willfully changing the meaning of Mr. Galloway's platform. It is believed that Mr. Hawley lost the votes of many fair-minded Republicans in Tillamook county who believe in a "square deal." This conduct of Mr. Hawley is in such glaring contrast with the honorable and upright methods of Mr. Galloway that it is believed he will drive the better element of his party away from him.

Dr. James Withycombe and his campaign managers are making misrepresentations that are just as false and glaring. For instance, Dr. Withycombe, who was born in England, permitted himself to remain an alien for seventeen years before it occurred to him to take out naturalization papers. He is posing as a martyr and crying that he is persecuted because he was born in England and received his veterinary training in Toronto. The whole story is simply this. Several newspapers called attention to the fact that Dr. Withycombe remained in Oregon for nearly a generation without becoming an American and when he had a chance to get an office he evinced a large amount of new found patriotism and fell all over himself in his frantic rush to the courts to secure naturalization papers. That is all there is to it; but it does not show Dr. Withycombe in a very favorable light.

Still nobody has ever attacked the doctor on the grounds of having been born under Queen Victoria's flag, but rather for his unseemly delay in becoming amalgamated to his new surrounding. He was the last of the family to do so. He had numerous opportunities to unite himself to the American people, but like the gentlemen in Gilber & Sullivan's well-known opera, "Pinafore." In spite of all temptation to belong to another nation, he remains an Englishman.

News is being received that the campaign of Governor Chamberlain in the interior of the state is proving to be very successful and that everywhere he visits he is warmly received by people of all parties. His success in a certain sense is entirely non-partisan as he has made a governor that has pleased the people regardless of party politics. In all the places the governor has visited he has been given almost an ovation. The arguments in favor of retaining him in office are unanswerable.

He shows that he has greatly reduced taxation and that if all his recommendations had been carried out the taxes would be still lower. He is running the state government at a smaller cost than previous administrations in spite of the fact that the population of the state has greatly increased. Governor Chamberlain has granted the people the rights of referendum in spite of the desires of the republican machine politicians and in fact has made a model governor.

It is probable that United States Senator Gearin will come home from Washington long enough to make three or four speeches, if the vote on the rate bill is taken in time. Mr. Gearin's career in the senate is meeting with the approval of all people who believe in clean and honest government. His course has just been strongly recommended by LaFollette of Wisconsin. The sole objection that has been brought forward against comes from the little coterie of Jonathan Bourne followers in Oregon that "he is a democrat."

Regardless of what the chief republican paper in the state says, the people of Oregon have spoken in favor of a choice of United States senators by the people, and the next senator from Oregon will be either John M. Gearin or Jonathan Bourne.

Mr. Gearin has been tried and is making a splendid senator, regardless of the fact that "He is a Democrat." What Mr. Bourne will do can perhaps best be judged by his quasi public acts in Oregon for the past decade or two. No sensible voter should hesitate long in his choice of the two men.
