The Grippe

An ache in the back, and a pain in the head—
That's the grippe!
A choke in the throat, and a yearning for bed—
That's the grippe!
A river of heat, then a shiver of cold. A feeling of being three hundred years old.
A willingness even to do as you're told—
That's the grippe!
An arrow of pain, now in this place, now that—
That's the grippe!
A feeling of doubt as to where you are at—
That's the grippe!
A stupid sensation—of course wholly new!
A foolish depression—why should you feel blue?
A doubt as to whether this really is you—
That's the grippe!
Strange visions at night that deprive you of rest—
That's the grippe!
A taste in your mouth and a weight on your chest—
That's the grippe!
A tired sensation that runs through your veins,
A queer combination of aches and of pains,
A rapid admission of absence of brains—
That's the grippe!
—Somerville Journal.

Cottage Grove is on the eve of a lively boom. Not of an inflated boom brought about by speculators who covered the coast from the northern line of Washington to the southern line of California, along in 1890-93, in which only the promoters reaped a reward, but a boom which has been brought about by natural causes, and the demand for the improvements which are being made and contemplated.

Since the first of the year it is claimed by those who have kept posted,—the exact figures not being obtainable at this writing—that property to the value of over $50,000 has changed hands, all being on the principal business street. This property has been purchased with the idea of moving off the wooden buildings now on the site and erecting in their place handsome brick blocks, and it is but a matter of time when Main street will probably present on both sides, a solid line of brick and stone, with modern stone pavements.

New sawmills near by are talked about, and the installation of a brick-making plant is an assured fact. Other industries can undoubtedly be prevailed upon to locate here if we only go at it with a vim and all pull together to get them here. The more industries we get, the more people employed; and the more people employed, the more to feed and clothe, and the more homes needed.

The natural advantages that Cottage Grove also has in its surroundings. Contiguous to it is unsurpassed grain land; thousands of acres of grazing land and for fruit and hop growing, no section in the state perhaps, can excel in quality. Then there is great mineral wealth and an almost inexhaustible supply of fine timber, the whole trade of which is tributary to our little burg, and by united effort on the part of our citizens we see no reason why our slogan should not be "5,000 in 1910."

Senator Fulton claims that the settlement of the western states has been seriously retarded by the creation of so many reserves, and that the settlers are scarcely able to maintain themselves on account of the limitations imposed by the forest reserve regulations. He says that the government rules relating to the use of water in the forest reserves for irrigation and water power as aggressive. His amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill has been adopted. It provides that hereafter no forest reserves in Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Colorado, Montana or Wyoming shall be created without an act of Congress. It is very doubtful if it will pass the house or even be reported from the conference committee when the bill goes to conference. It is regarded as one of the most radical acts of the senate at this session, as it is distinctly antagonistic to the policy of the administration as to the disposition of the forest area of the public domain.

Heretofore reserves have been created by executive proclamation with no limit on the authority of the president who has 100,000,000 acres now in forest reserve.

There is a good deal of talk in Linn county about invoking the referendum upon the appropriation for the University of Oregon. Beyond this, however, the dissatisfaction voiced by the Granges has not extended. It is a movement, if such it can be called, without leadership and unless this quality is developed it will spend itself in vapors.—Oregonian.

Abe Ruef, the hoodling boss of San Francisco, now threatens to "tell something." He probably realizes that Heney is pretty well posted, and seeing the penitentiary staring him in the face, and would be willing to trade his friends to make it easier for himself.

J. J. Hill and E. H. Harriman, the two railroad magnates, both predict a panic. They may have got together somehow and laid a scheme to corner what few dollars the shippers and traveling public have saved from their clutches.

High School Notes.

As the Sophomores have finished their classic "Idylls of the King," they were given a test on it Tuesday morning. They will now begin the study of Shakespeare's "Merchant of Venice."

The American literature class will begin the study of Emerson's Essays next month.

The seniors are hard at work on their senior themes, the subjects of which were decided upon last week.

Ernest Wyatt and Hugh Currin took a trip to Bohemia. They left last Friday and returned on Monday reporting a very pleasant journey.

The English literature class are busy looking up the subject of Modern Dramatists upon which they are to report this week.

The High School were pleasantly entertained during the assembly period on Tuesday morning by a most interesting address given by Mrs. Ellis, who delivered a course of lectures at the Christian Church this week.

Rev. Olson and Mrs. R. C. Grace visited school on Tuesday morning, being present for the assembly period.

The Seniors were most hospitably entertained by the Juniors last Friday evening at the home of Miss Lulu Currin. An interesting progressive game had been prepared and were enjoyed most enthusiastically by all. The score cards used were small sized penants tied with the class colors. Dainty refreshments were served and it was a late hour before the guests departed. The entire event was a success and the Juniors are to be congratulated upon their social ability. We are sure the seniors are glad that they are seniors for they may now be recognized as most importance and demand attention if at no other time.

"Love, Courtship, and Marriage."

Mrs. Jean Morris Ellis, who has been lecturing on Phrenology every night this week concluded her engagement last night. Her lectures have been both instructive and amusing, the one on Thursday night on "Love, Courtship and Marriage" being particularly so. The married portion of her audience perhaps appreciated her remarks more than the young people, being able from experience to better judge of the truth of her assertions. At the close of her remarks she called for the nomination of three young ladies from the audience for the purpose of more fully explaining the manner in which young people should choose their future husband. Those responding were Miss Edna Kerr, Miss Agnes Langdon and Mrs. Ellis. She proceeded to explain the temperament, peculiarities and habits of these subjects as known by the science of phrenology and then going among the audience selected the three gentlemen whom she declared would be well mated and with the prospects of a happy and congenial life. The lucky parties were paired as follows. Mr. Ed Tullar and Miss Kerr, Mr. Archie Walters and Miss Langdon, and Mr. M. H. Anderson and Mrs. Ellis.

Those who were intimately acquainted with these parties say that Mrs. Ellis made happy selections and the lady undoubtedly has made a number of converts to phrenology who heretofore have been at least skeptics.

Mrs. Ellis goes from here to Drain and the Leader can assure the good citizens of that burg, that she is well worth listening to, and they should not fail to hear her every night.

Home-Made Catarrh Cure.
Any one can mix right at home the best remedy of its kind known. The name "Cyclone" is given to the following prescription. It is supposed, because of its promptness in driving from the blood and system every vestige of catarrhal poison, relieving this foul and dread disease, no matter where located. To prepare the mixture: Get from any good pharmacy one-half ounce Fluid Extract Dandelion, one ounce Compound Kagon and three ounces Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla. Shake well and use in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.
This is a harmless, inexpensive mixture, which has a peculiar action upon the eliminative tissues of the kidneys, assisting them to filter and strain from the blood and system all catarrhal poisons, which, if not eradicated, are absorbed by the mucous membrane, and an open sore or catarrh is the result.
Prepare some and try it, as it is the prescription of an eminent catarrh specialist of national reputation.

CALL TODAY AS THEY ARE GOING FAST
We make this remarkable free offer of a most excellent razor, complete with a convenient and a delicate, even to men having the hardest beard. The razor is a quick, clean shaver and does not lie so much in a good razor as in a good strop. With the RADIUMITE STROPS the most inferior razors are brought up to a fine edge, and the effect of the stroke upon the beard is to keep them all times in the best possible condition, ready to shave. The RADIUMITE STROP is sold under the positive guarantee that if it is not satisfactory money will be refunded. They are for either ordinary or safety razors.
Radiumite Strops, 50c to $2.50; Razors, $1 to $3
DANGER LURKS IN THE USE OF ANY STROP BUT A RADIUMITE!
Horrible skin diseases, such as CANCER, BARBERS' ITCH, ECZEMA and BLOOD POISON, often result from the use of cheaply shoddy stropps that cut, irritate and overburden the skin. Shave with the Radiumite strop that has the natural grain of shaving soaps, hair shaving brushes, and is the best.
THE ONLY PERFECT STROP IS THE RADIUMITE
Take the Radiumite, heavy, double, common row strop to generally sold, and with which one desires out of the way to shave. They are so much old, junk, pure and simple. The word Radiumite stands for perfection in strop stropping. Buy a Radiumite strop and take no substitute—no matter how handsome it may appear. Danger lurks in the use of any strop but a Radiumite.
