Besides being one of the best printers in the state Johnie is also a prince of good fellows.

On the Leader table was found recently a small jar of fine, home canned mixed pickles, the following being attached to the jar: "Man cannot live on candy alone; try a pickle." Well, now, it is oftentimes averred that the country editor feeds on milk and honey, but this is the first time he has ever been accused of subsisting solely on sweetmeats. However, we accepted the invitation, "try a pickle," and pronounced them first class. Thanks, and come again.

SHIPPING BLOODED CHICKENS TO JAPAN

H. S. Yokota, a well known Japanese porter at the Hotel Gross, Eugene, left on the train Tuesday for his home in Japan. He is taking with him fourteen coops of blooded chickens, including nearly all the breeds found in this valley, and will engage in the chicken raising business when he reaches home. Yokota will take the steamer at Seattle in a few days and will land at Kobe. He expects to return in two or three years.

The expressage on the fourteen coops of chickens from Eugene to Seattle is $17.50, but it is not known how much it will cost the Jap to get them across the ocean. The chickens were purchased from Elbert K. Brown, E. J. McClanahan and Nattie Martin.

"We Are King"

The Oregonian of November 23rd says: "We are king" is one of the best and cleanest comedies seen in Portland in a long, long time, and while having a suspiciously close resemblance to "The Prisoner of Zenda" is yet different enough to save a charge of plagiarism. The company is excellent, the stage settings elaborate, and altogether "We Are King" is put on and acted in a manner one expects at the high price theatres. The management guarantees a thoroughly high-class production and the best seen in Cottage Grove in a long time. At the armory theater this Friday evening.
