The Funny Corner

A good Samaritan, passing an apartment house in the small hours of the morning, noticed a man leaning limply against the doorway.

"What's the matter?" he asked.
"Drunk?"
"Yep."
"Do you live in this house?"
"Yep."
"Do you want me to help you upstairs?"
"Yep."

With much difficulty he half dragged, half carried the drooping figure up the stairway to the second floor.

"What floor do you live on?" he asked.
"Is this it?"
"Yep."

Rather than face an irate wife who might, perhaps, take him for a companion more at fault than her spouse, he opened the first door he came to and pushed the limp figure in.

The good Samaritan groped his way downstairs again. As he was passing through the vestibule he was able to make out the dim outlines of another man, apparently in worse condition than the first one.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Are you drunk, too?"
"Yep." was the feeble reply.

"Do you live in this house, too?"
"Yep."
"Shall I help you upstairs?"
"Yep."

The good Samaritan pushed, pulled and carried him to the second floor, where this man also said he lived. He opened the same door and pushed him in.

As he again reached the front door he discerned the shadow of a third man, evidently worse off than either of the other two. He was about to approach him when the object of his solicitude hunched out into the street and threw himself into the arms of a passing policeman.

"For Heaven sake, officer," he gasped, "protect me from that man. He's done nothin' all night long but carry me upstairs 'n throw me down th' elevator shaft."

He Remembered

A restaurant-keeper hung out this sign:

"Coffee:
Such as Mother Used to Make."
A customer asked, pointing to the sign:
"Is your coffee really such as mother used to make?"
"It is," replied the proprietor.
"Then," said the man with a reminiscent look, "give me a cup of tea."

Snooks, visiting at a country house, was put in the haunted chamber for the night. He did not feel the slightest uneasiness, but nevertheless, just as a matter of precaution, he took to bed with him a revolver of the latest American pattern.

He slept peacefully enough until the clock struck two, when he awoke with an unpleasant feeling of oppression. He raised his head and peered about him. The room was illumined by the full moon and in that weird, bluish light he thought he discerned a white hand clasping the rail at the foot of the bed.

"Who's there?" he asked tremulously. There was no reply. The white hand did not move.

"Who's there?" he repeated. "Answer me or I'll shoot."

Again there was no reply. Snooks cautiously raised himself, took careful aim and fired.

From that night on he's limped. Shot off two of his own toes.

The usual large crowd was gathered at the New York end of the Brooklyn Bridge waiting for trolley cars. An elderly lady, red in the face, flustered, and fussy, dug her elbows into convenient ribs, irrespective of owners.

A fat man on her left was the recipient of a particularly vicious jab. She yelled at him, "Say!"

He winced slightly and moved to one side. She, too, side-stepped and thumped him viciously on the back.

"Say!" she persisted, "does it make any difference which of these cars I take to Greenwood Cemetery?"

"Not to me, madam," he answered, slipping through an opening in the crowd.

When Pat Laughed Last

A short time ago two Englishmen on a visit to Ireland hired a boat for the purpose of having a sail.

One of the Britons, thinking he would have a good joke at Pat's expense, asked him if he knew anything about astrology.

"Be jabbers, no," said Pat.
"Then that's the best part of your life just lost," answered the Englishman.

The second Englishman then asked Pat if he knew anything about theology.

"Be jabbers, no," answered Pat.
"Well," the second said, "I must say that's the very best part of your life lost."

A few minutes later a sudden squall arose and the boat capsized. Pat began to swim. The Britons, however, could not swim, and both called loudly to Pat to help them.

"Do you know anything about swimming?" asked Pat.

"No," answered both Englishmen.
"Well, be jabbers," replied Pat, "then both of your lives is lost!"

Strong Water

Mr. Edison was once asked to send a phonographic cylinder to a fair. He sent this reply:

"You ask me to send you a phonographic cylinder and to say a few words to the audience. I do not think the audience would take any interest in dry scientific subjects, but perhaps they might be interested in a little story that a man sent me on a phonographic cylinder the other day from San Francisco.

In the year 1873 a man from Massachusetts came to California with a chronic liver complaint. He searched all over the coast for a mineral spring to cure the disease, and finally he found, down in the San Joaquin Valley, a spring the waters of which almost instantly cured him. He therefore started a sanitarium, and people all over the world came and were quickly cured. Last year this man died, and so powerful had been the action of the water that, before they could bury him, they had to take his liver out and kill it with a club.

Mark Twain on Etiquette

Mark Twain, at a dinner in New York, talked on etiquette:

"I once read a book of etiquette," he said, "and I still remember many of the rules. The most important rules were these—

"How to accept a proffered cigar—Slip the right hand into the box, draw forth two, place one absently in the upper pocket of the vest, insert the other between the lips, look inquiringly around for a light.

"How to leave a room properly—Open the door, place one foot over the sill, follow it up closely with the other foot, and then, turning slightly, shut the door.

"How to accept a dinner invitation—Eat a light breakfast and no lunch.

"How to accept an invitation to drink—Look careless. Say, 'Don't care if I do,' and fix the gaze on the other side of the room while the liquor is being poured into the glass. This will assure you a full portion."

Blissful Ignorance

A kind old gentleman, seeing a small boy who was carrying a load of newspapers, said, "Don't all those papers make you tired, my boy?"

"Naw, I don't read 'em," replied the lad.

Help Wanted—Male

Weary Willie (reading ad.)—Man wanted to chop wood, bring up coal, tend furnace, take care of garden, mind chickens, and children—

Frayed Fagin (groaning)—Gee! dem matrimonial advertisements made me tired.—Judge.
