ABOUT BOOSTING.

The Eugene Guard, speaking of the hiring of John H. Hartog by Roseburg, says.

We predict that professional boosting of cities will not become a permanent custom, and believe that it is already on the wane. Of course, there will be, and they are necessary, commercial organizations, whose object will be to look after the common welfare of the city, and bring the business interests together on occasions where united effort is required to accomplish a certain object.

After all, the best way to boost is to get together and do things; build good streets, make public and private improvements, every individual realizing his duty to the community in a substantial way, and above all having pride in his town and faith in its ultimate greatness.

Company E Loses Lieutenant.

H. H. Petrie, second lieutenant of company E, O. N. G. has resigned his position, after serving since November, 1907. He is unquestionably one of the best informed officers in the Oregon guard, and to him a large degree of the proficiency attained by the Cottage Grove company as marksmen is due. He has been a member of every rifle team that has participated in state contests, and in 1907 was a member of the national team at Camp Perry. He is an earnest technical student, and the loss is one that will be felt by the guard of the entire state.

A MEMORIAL DAY REFLECTION.

By ROBERTUS LOVE.

1861.

Ah, there was thrill in the bugle note of the days of sixty-one!
To stifle, to smother the shell of the file —to stifle of sword and gun!

And "Come, oh, come!" was the call of the drum—come into the crowding ranks And march away to the martial fray by the Rappahannock's
banks!

We were young and erect as we marched then for the great republic's cause,
And we dreamed of fame and a deathless name and the hero's high applause.

1910.

Ah, there is dignity in the funeral note of this Memorial day!
And "Death, oh, death!" is the bugle's breath as the music melts away.

But "Come, oh, come!" is the call of the
graveyard lone
And the blossoming spray as a tribute lay on the soldier's crumbling stone.

We are old and bent as we march now in the days of our nation's peace,
And we dream no more of the cannon's roar, but of stiles and life's success.

MORE "YOUNGEST VETERANS."

Recent Discussion Brings Forward
Two Under Sixty.

That highly interesting hero, the "youngest veteran" of the civil war, continues to bob up serenely now and then. He seems to be almost if not quite as numerous as the last survivor of the charge of the Light brigade at Balaklava. This surprisingly large number of men still living who enlisted when mere lads helps to uphold the statement frequently made by individuals and proved by the records of the war department that the great conflict was fought and won by boys-young fellows who enlisted in their teens. The records show a preponderance of such early enlistments.

Last March a New York paper printed a brief obituary of the "youngest veteran," who had just died at the age of sixty-two. The editor received a flood of communications from claimants to that distinction. One modest veteran from Brooklyn, signing himself simply "Cavalry," wrote, "I served two years and six months and am not yet sixty-two." Then F. Blemly, living in another part of Greater New York, giving his birth date as Jan. 31, 1849, came forward with this statement: "I served under Sheridan and Custer in the Shenandoah valley until the close of the war, and I have a year yet to hang on to the saddle before I reach sixty-two."

Youngest Veteran Blemly was checkmated by Charles Carr of Brooklyn, formerly of Company G, Fourth Ohio cavalry, who said he was born March 13, 1849, nearly six weeks later than Blemly, and "served throughout the Atlanta campaign under General Sherman."

From New Jersey came the claim of David W. Ryan, only fifty-nine years old, who served as bugler in Company H, Second New Jersey cavalry. Youngest Veteran Ryan seemed to have the pennant, but Michael Donoho of Auburn, N. Y., assaulted his position and captured the standard, being still under fifty-nine. Born May 27, 1851, Donoho joined D'Eppendorf's zouaves and went to the front in 1861. Afterward he served with the One Hundred and Forty-ninth New York regiment, being mustered out at Syracuse Aug.
19, 1865. Youngest Veteran Donoho, according to this record, was only a ten-year-old when he joined the zou-aves and began to wear the baggy breeches and the soft sash belt of that branch of the service.

It is highly probable that if this friendly controversy had extended to the west there would have been several youthful veterans somewhere around the edges of sixty to lay claim to the honor.

CENTRAL WILLAMETTE CHAUTAUQUA AT ALBANY

One of the striking evidences of the development and prosperity of the central Willamette valley is the launching this year at Albany of a full fledged Chautauqua Assembly. It has been the history of Chautauquas in Oregon that they have begun modestly and worked up gradually to their present enviable positions.

The Albany Chautauqua purposes to come into the arena, July 8th to 17th, full grown and fully equipped with every attraction of grounds, scenery, pleasurable surroundings, tenting privileges, athletic and aquatic sports, lectures entertainments, educational features, etc., to compare favorably with the best.

In common with the Gladstone and Southern Oregon Chautauquas the Albany Chautauqua has contracted with the Chautauqua Managers Association of Chicago for some of the finest talent on the Chautauqua platform.

First and foremost in the list of orators is ex-Governor Joseph W.
Folk of Missouri, who on the last afternoon of the chautauqua, Sunday, July 17th, will give his great address "The Era of Conscience," in the delivery of which he has stirred the nation, East, West, North and South. The course includes a score of other specialists in their line of work.

This site of the Chautauqua is Bryant's Park within almost a stones throw of the business district of the city where by a short walk of five minutes the most delightful conditions of shade, waterfall, sylvan retreat, picturesque walks, boating, etc., may be reached. The Calapooia and Willamette rivers skirt the grounds on three sides. Fresh water from the city water works will be piped over the grounds for the use of campers, and the roadways, tent grounds and assembly tent will be beautifully illuminated with electric lights.

For sale—house, barn, outbuildings, all new, two acres, one in fruit trees and small fruits, just outside city limits. Ten acres, with house, barn, modern improvements, running water and household goods, three quarters of a mile from city limits. Two A1 lots on Wall street. Address P.
O. box 424.
