Her Mistake.
The young woman was hastening to the subway station en route to the railway train. Looking about for a boy to carry her heavy suit case, she espied a stalwart youth and asked him if he would take it for her to the station. He hesitated a moment, as he had been headed in an opposite direction, and then complied. At the ticket window there was an unusual crowd. The boy pushed forward, bought a ticket for the young woman, put it in the box and handed her the suit case. As she proffered him the dime which seemed adequate for his services he smiled at her peculiarly, shook his head, lifted his hat gracefully and was gone before the young woman had time to protest or really to understand what had occurred. Then the appalling thought came to her with conviction that he was undoubtedly a collector who putting in vacation time at some kind of employment which necessitated his wearing quite ordinary working clothes.
"And how dreadful," she thought, squirming with mortification, "he actually paid my fare, too!"

Ask your doctor about the wisdom of your keeping Ayer's Cherry Pectoral in the house, ready for colds, coughs, croup, bronchitis. If he says it's all right, then get a bottle of it at once. Why not show a little foresight in such matters? Early treatment, early cure.

SYMBOLISM DID NOT APPEAL
Belinda Rejects Proposal of Charlie to Be Joined Together Like Hands of Clock.
"Charlie," sorrowfully sighed the young lady in the parlor of the concrete house, on Washington avenue, "it is nearly 12 o'clock."
"Yes, Belinda," was the breathing response of her poetical companion, who was sitting on the sofa beside her, "the minute hand is drawing closer and closer to the hour hand, and when the time of midnight is chimed the two hands will be even as one. Oh, darling Belinda," he continued, as he literally simulated the action of the minute hand, "may not the coming together of those two hands be symbolical of us?"
She broke away and stood firmly on her feet. "No, Charles Henry Smith," she retorted, angrily, "those two hands will remain as one but a single second, and then the minute hand will divorce itself and go on its way alone. No, Mr. Smith, a minute hand that doesn't stick isn't the kind of symbolism I want!"

OUR COAL SUPPLY.
Simplifying the Labor of Procuring It Increased the Output.
It was feared at one time that the rate of coal consumption would soon outgrow the rate of production and there was talk of curtailing the use of coal in many industries, says a writer in Lippincott's. But the inventor proceeded to make coal mining machinery which lessened the labor of extracting the raw product from the earth and increased the output tenfold. England today bases her hope of extending the period of her profitable coal mining upon the invention of machinery that will compensate for the added cost of deeper mining. In America coal mining machinery has doubled and tripled the output. A coal digger cuts and extracts the coal from its bed as fast as three or four skilled miners could formerly do; it falls automatically upon cars, which swing upward like elevators to the light of day, and deposit their contents into chutes.

Down the sooty mass tumbles to the breakers, where it is pounded and broken into sizes suitable for commerce. Thence it slides on to the washery, and comes out at the other end to be dumped on cars. The cars quickly cross the country to some river or bay, where canal boats are waiting. The transference from the cars to the boats, and from the boats to the wholesale and retail dealers' coal yards is performed automatically. Even when the coal comes into our homes it is shot down chutes into the cellar, and not carried there in buckets and baskets as of old.

And yet, for all this simplifying of labor, this invention of machines to reduce the dust and ashes, nobody likes coal, and we all pray for the time to come when its use may be abolished. It is not a popular article of commerce; it is a clumsy and dirty fuel, and in this age of invention and discovery it seems woefully out of date. It is not new machinery to increase the output that we are longing for, but the discovery of some new method of obtaining heat and power.

TOLESTOI AND THE PRINCESS
Invalid Noblewoman Who Was Convinced About the Great Political Reformer's Religious Belief.
When I was in St. Petersburg I had an introduction to a certain princess, who was said to be interested in prisons and prisoners, and though I knew that she had absolutely no concern with any political reforms, I hoped she might help me to an interview with Mme. Breshkowsky. The princess was an invalid, and I was allowed to go directly to her room, where she lay on a lounge, with a little stand beside her on which lay religious books. She received me with great cordiality, winning my heart with her first words. She spoke excellent English and we needed no interpreter.
"I am an old, old woman," she said cheerfully, "but I find my old age the happiest part of my life."
"That is almost what Count Tolstoi said to me," I replied. "Oh," she cried, "do you know my old friend, Tolstoi? We were young together, and how I love him! But, alas, he trusts too much to his own merits. I pray for him every day. I pray not only once, but many times a day, that he may learn to trust to the merits of Jesus. He is good and noble and kind, but he must give up his own idea of righteousness and accept the gospel. I have been so anxious about him that at last I wrote out a prayer that I wanted to have him use, for I told him I offered it daily. So I sent it to him. In reply he sent me a prayer which he says he prays daily."—Isabel C. Barrows in the Christian Register.

Mrs. Helen Beryl Graydon, who obtained a divorce from Tom Graydon, the light haired young man who made such a powerful fullback on the Harvard football team several years ago, has gone to Europe to escape a persistent suitor, who says he is a Russian nobleman. Mrs. Graydon, who is the daughter of J. Parker Whitney, has been spending the greater part of her time on her father's ranch in Placer county, California. Employed on the ranch was an expert horticulturist. He was presented to Mrs. Graydon and almost instantly fell in love with her. He sought to follow up socially an acquaintance that came about simply through his employment. He wrote letters and telephoned constantly to her. Finally Mrs. Graydon left the ranch and went to San Francisco. The "nobleman" followed and continued his letter writing and telephoning. His pursuit became so arduous that Mrs. Graydon left San Francisco and has sailed for Europe.—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Japanese is Hardest to Learn.
The Japanese language is claimed to be the hardest of all to learn. Even the Japanese find it hard, and several American army officers have found it impossible to master it. It takes the Japanese child seven years to learn the essential parts of the alphabet, and one must become familiar with 214 signs to learn this simple part of the language alone. The 214 signs serve as the English initial letters in our alphabet. He is able to read any of the higher class of Japanese newspapers one must be the master of from 2,500 to 3,000 ideographs.—Albany Journal.

"For months I had great trouble with my stomach and used all kinds of medicines. My tongue has been actually as green as grass, my breath having a bad odor. I therefore let you know that I shall recommend them to any one suffering from such troubles."—Chas. H. Harn, 114 E. 7th St., New York, N. Y.

HAYING IN RAINY WEATHER
Not Advisable to Cut Too Much Grass at One Mowing—Will Dry Quickly When Stirred.
It is not advisable to cut much grass at one mowing. If possible wait until the weather settles. Cut in the afternoon of a clear day, the next morning put the horse-drawn mowing machine and the hay lying and whirling in the air. Keep the hay stirring—the grass will dry out and cure much faster when it is flying in the air than when spread out on the ground. If the grass is heavy—and you have no tedder, let half-cured hay over so the bottom will dry; as soon as the hay is partly cured, put in the rake and make small windrows. After the field is forked over commence at the beginning and rake two windrows together by turning the hay over with the rake several times—all of the hand-labor will be avoided. As soon as it settles bunch it. In case there are indications of rain, haul two or three loads of the half-cured hay into the barn or barn rack and deposit one load in each row. Then if rainy weather continues let the hay in the barn be placed on the scaffold over the driveway, where it can get the moist air. Spread one pack of salt over each load of hay. When hay is heavy spread it out thin for a few days. By spreading a layer of straw or old hay between every half load put in the mow most of the moisture will be taken up by the straw. By this means several loads of clover hay may be secured without being damaged by rain. The side delivery rake in rainy weather is a great help in the quick curing of hay in showery weather. The clover and mixed grasses and orchard grass should be secured in the best possible condition, as such hay contains just the nutriment required for the making of milk, beef and mutton.
Timothy and red top should be cut before the seeds become hard. The timothy harvest should be delayed until after the grain is cut and hauled in; two weeks delay with the timothy harvest will not injure the hay seriously. Secure the clover and mixed hay and get the grain in the barn; these are the two important crops.

AMERICAN APPLE IN EUROPE
Desirable That European Market for Fruits Grown in United States Be Developed.
That a desirable European market for American-grown fruits may be developed is the opinion of Orlando Harrison of Harrison's nurseries, Berlin, Md., former president of the American Association of Nurserymen, who made an extensive foreign trip last season. In an address before the Pennsylvania Horticultural society, Wilmington, Del., Mr. Harrison made the following statements:
"In recommending the growing of winter apples, I want to assure you that if you will grow and pack only good fruit, it can be sold. While in Europe last season I visited the fruit markets and found the fruit dealers welcomed our fruit. More fruit from America should be sent over. We should form an apple league of some kind and introduce our apples there, putting the price so the people would buy them."
"I was told the demand for bananas was increased many times over what it was some years ago by a man sending a cargo there and selling them at a very low price, and after that he gradually increased the demand and the price as well. The price of apples should be in reach of every working man. By doing this many times the quantity of fruit would be consumed. The Europeans are not fruit eaters like the Americans, and it is up to us to cultivate that trade."

To Get Rid of Ants.
To rid your garden of ants effectually you must find the location of the nests. They can then be easily destroyed by benzoin, gasoline, bluishphide of carbon or boiling water. The large ants which sometimes make their nests above the surface of the grass on the lawn should be destroyed by bluishphide of carbon. Punch a number of holes in the nests and pour a teaspoonful of carbon down each hole. Throw a dark blanket over the holes for a few moments, then remove it and explode the carbon by means of a light at the end of a pole. The slight explosions drive the fumes down through the underground tunnels and destroy the ants.

Success in Rearing Chickens.
We are having splendid success with our chickens, the best we have ever experienced. In fact, the reports from all over the country are more encouraging than I have ever known them to be before, says a writer in Baltimore American. This leads us to conclude that gradually the poultrymen of the country are becoming more thoroughly informed of the principles involved in the successful rearing of chickens.

Making a Garden.
Keep the hoe going in dry weather and you will not need the watering pot often.
The wheel hoe will save many a backache and do the work of three hand hoes.
Plant the rows all one way—north and south—so the sun can strike both sides.
Do not plant short rows, but let them run the whole length of the garden if need be—why not?
Wild strawberries have the most delicious flavor. They are easily transplanted to the garden.
Rape for Lambs.
A good growth of rape is fine for the lambs, but some say when it is sowed in the corn it does more injury to the corn crop than it has value. How about it?
The Neat Lawn.
A neat lawn and surroundings attract the attention of every passerby and are infectious in a community.
