OREGON'S GREATEST SHOWING

The fruit crop of the Hood River district for 1910 is valued at approximately $1,000,000.

One monster log, the biggest ever sawed in the Coquille Valley, Coos County, was 9 feet in diameter and made 11,000 feet of lumber.

Eight acres near Eugene produced 103 bales of hops, which is over 2,500 pounds an acre.

The Mount Hood Railway & Power company has started a saw mill near Bull Run with a capacity of 30,000 feet daily. It will saw ties almost exclusively.

Much interest is manifested in walnut culture in Oregon, and the fact that trees of bearing age are loaded with nuts of fine quality gives great encouragement to growers.

Crook County contains one of the largest bodies of irrigable land in the West, having 350,000 acres.

Oregon's apple crop is gaining on the original estimates and the State Board of Horticulture places the 1910 yield at 1,520,000 boxes.

Postal receipts for Portland for October show an increase of 22.65 per cent over the corresponding month of last year. Moreover the latest figures are the biggest in the history of the city.

Two great conventions of national interest are already scheduled for Portland next year. They are the gathering of the woolgrowers of the country next January and the session of the Christian church here next July.

Portland has completed about 50 miles of new hard surface street paving this season. In smaller cities throughout Oregon it is estimated that 250,000 yards of paving have been laid during the same period.

Lake County lands, a few years ago considered worthless, are now producing splendid alfalfa seed selling at 15 cents per pound.

Exports from Portland during October totaled 11,511,476 feet of lumber and 1,173,240 bushels of wheat.

PORTLAND STATE POULTRY SHOW

Portland, Dec. 9.—The beautiful cut glass punch bowl, twelve silver cups, gold-lined and hugh silver tray offered by The Journal for the best exhibit of White Wyandotte chickens was won by H. Ringhouse of Clackamas for the second successive time, which unqualified by clinches his title to it.

This award was announced this morning when the totals were summed up in this class. Mr. Ringhouse won first cock, first and second cockerels in addition to a number of other points. He did not have at this exhibit, his two best birds, which have been sent to Seattle and therefore not allowed in competition.

Other winners in this class are D. N. Lash of Woodlawn, B. Lee Paget of Oak Grove, J. A. Griffin of Eugene and W. B. Kelly of Portland. The Calkins Poultry yards of Lents will probably be awarded the first prize in the White Leghorn class, but others who are close bidders for the honors are the Industrial Poultry farm of Richfield, Wash. Marcum Bros., of Marcum, Or., William Shands of Vancouver, Wash., W. B. Brown of Portland and F. P. Fisher of Oregon City. Herman Sheive won everything in the Partridge Cochins class.

Ed. Shearer of Milwaukie wins all the awards in the light Brahma class, also sharing equally with William Taylor of Winona with all the awards in the Black Langshan class. There were 50 cups up in this show, five of the finest of which were offered for pit game birds.

Judge Coats, who is a specialist in game birds, announced that one game pit rooster on exhibition there was the finest specimen he had ever judged.

Big crowds visit the show at Front and Salmon street in one of the Lilly Seed store rooms and it was a big success financially. A new feature of the show was exhibit of several pheasants shipped from Corvallis by J. L. Simpson.
