Something Entirely New.

Prof. B. P. Stout is superior and different to any other gospel singer who has ever labored in Cottage Grove. His "sermons in song" are unique features of his work. He takes up an entire evening in relating some theme entirely in song. His opening Sunday evening service in the Methodist church Sunday Feb. 12, is called "Mother Home and Heaven." To illustrate these three blessed words he sings the following selections: "No Night There," "I John saw the Holy City," "Think of What Mother has said," "My Mother's Prayer," "The Latch of Father's door," "The old Fashioned way," "He is just the same today," "The Trundle bed song," "Tell Mother I'll be there," "I've a Mother now in Heaven," "The Holy City."

One does not wonder after reading such a musical program for one evening—as many songs as some evangelists sing in a week—that churches are always too small to hold the crowds which flock to hear such a consecrated Christian worker.

During the evening a bountiful lunch was served. The guests retired wishing that the next quarter of a century might be as full of pleasure and success to Rev. Groat as the past three quarters have been.
