Begs to Differ

Dr. Henry Waldo Coe of Portland, who is a candidate for delegate for Roosevelt, has written a letter to President Nottingham of the Republican State Committee, in which he says:

"Your committee appointed a delegation to attempt to nullify in courts the principle feature of one of the people's laws passed by a large majority under the initiative and referendum relative to the selection of delegates to the National convention. This in order to restore in effect the method by which the bosses may send a list of delegates to the local leaders throughout the state, and tell the people whom they must select for the National convention.

"It has also been stated in the public press that both regulars and progressives of all shades are with your committee in this fight.

"You will pardon me, therefore, for respectfully stating that the Roosevelt element in the party is overwhelmingly opposed to any attempt to overthrow or modify in court this or any other law passed by direct vote of the people. If the law is deemed improper, the place to take the matter is before the people again in another direct submission of the question. Let them decide. Any other course would be another blunder of the party.

"The Supreme Court of the United States has finally declined to declare illegal the initiative and referendum, and the Oregon system is now constitutional. It is time that the Republican party should officially get into line.

"Some of the elder of us with earlier prejudices have been slow to take this position. We must cautiously admit that some of us have been whipped into line.

"Today we stand squarely upon the platform of Theodore Roosevelt, and with him are opposed, and will oppose in court if necessary, any attempt to take from the masses any power they have wrenched from the bosses."

Import What We Could Make

Oregon Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore., Mar. 8.—That not one barrel of the 1,500,000 barrels of Portland cement, valued at $3,- 000,000, used in Portland territory last year, was manufactured in the state is one of the startling statements in the new bulletin on "The Economic Mineral Resources of Oregon" by Prof. H. M.
Parks of the O. A. C. school of mines, who is also director of the State Bureau of Mines, which is publishing the new work at Salem.

Although Oregon produced approximately $4,000,000 worth of geological products in 1910, more than $12,000,000 worth were imported from other states and foreign countries, over three-fourths of which could have been produced within the state. More than $4,- 000,000 worth of clay products, such as brick, tile, pottery, terracotta and fire clay materials were used in the vicinity of Portland alone last year, and but $1,000,000 worth of these were manufactured in Oregon.

California and Washington have for some years spent thousands of dollars investigating the mineral resources of their territory, while Oregon has done practically nothing in this direction. Prof. Parks advocates a more thorough knowledge of the geological resources of the state, through a careful investigation the results of which may be published to the world.
Thus the cement man, for instance, will be attracted here to develop the limestone deposits just as they have hitherto been developed in the states north and south of us through the dissemination of accurate information regarding such deposits.

ARCTIC INDIAN LIFE.

A Heroic Mother and Her Reward
When Her Son Was Grown.

In "The Arctic Prairies," by Ernest Thompson Seton, a gruesome picture of Indian life is given in the following incident:

"One winter, forty or fifty years ago, a band of Algonquin Indians at Wya-blinka all starved to death except one squaw and her baby. She fled from the camp, carrying the child, thinking to find friends and help at Nipigon House. She got as far as a small lake near Deer lake and there discovered a cache, probably in a tree. This contained one small bone fishhook. She rigged up a line, but had no bait.

"The wailing of the baby spurred her to action. No bait, but she had a knife. A strip of flesh was quickly cut from her own leg, a hole made through the ice, and a fine jackfish was the food that was sent to this devoted mother. She divided it with the child, saying only enough for bait. She stayed there living on fish until spring, then safely rejoined her people.

"The boy grew up to be a strong man, but was cruel to his mother, leaving her finally to die of starvation.
Anderson knew the woman. She showed him the scar where she cut the bait."

ODD OLD CHOCTAW LAWS.

One Made the Selling of Their Land a Capital Crime.

In an old set of laws of the Choctaw Nation there is a clause which relates to the killing of witches. For witchcraft the penalty was death, and for alleging oneself to be a witch or for saying that any other person was one was punishable by sixty lashes on the bare back.

Another declared that no doctor could take money or any of the belongings of a patient he treated if the patient died. If the patient were raised up from a sickbed the doctor could accept what was offered to him, and if nothing was offered then he could take in goods what was his just compensation.

In 1834 the Choctaw council passed an act which made a person who bargained to sell any of the Choctaw land a traitor and punishable by death.
Any white man who encouraged such action was deported. An Indian who sold or disposed of land either to individuals or to the United States in toto should be considered a traitor and shot on conviction. This was just preceding the beginning of the work of the Dawes commission.

Instinctive Mimicry.

Why if one man on the street takes out his watch do others do the same?
Among the very early instincts recognized in the human mind are mimicry and curiosity. Mimicry develops into habit, as when we see many persons walking faster than we do we gradually fall into their gait and in time this faster gait becomes habitual with us. Every instinct emanates from one or the other of the fundamental instincts, self preservation and race preservation. Every action that benefits the human being can be traced back to the instinct of self preservation, and among these actions are the acquisition of knowledge, even the knowledge of the time of day.

Instinctive mimicry creates an impulse which in the case of the man looking at his watch upon seeing another do the same, is supported by another instinct, curiosity, and by the human faculty, reason. We therefore follow the impulse and look at our watch.—New York American.

Moroccan Toilet Accessories.

The native ladies of Morocco are very particular about the preservation of their complexions. They wash their faces in rosewater in which apricot kernels baked and powdered are introduced as an aid to preserve the natural tint of the complexion.
Some ladies employ a wash which contains red radish scrapings powdered.
They have also a peculiar method of removing superfluous hairs. A paste is made of lemon juice and sugar.
This is applied and allowed to dry and then removed, taking it is said, the hair with it. A hair preparation seems no less strange to Europeans. It is composed of aloe leaves, henna and reed grass. This is applied to the head, and when dry it is washed off with soap.

As to Clocks.

"What an elegant timepiece that is," said the old time friend.
"Yes," replied Mr. Cumrox: "that's about as elegant a clock as money will buy."

"You were once content with a much simpler affair."
"Of course. Nobody wants to waste more than a dollar on a clock that wakes him up and tells him when to go to work. But when it wakes him up and reminds him that he doesn't have to go to work he feels more friendly and liberal."—Washington Star.

A Woman's Reason.

"Why," asks the inquisitive person, "do you enjoy having some one tell you that you are pretty when you know you are not? Does it make you believe that you are?"

"No," she answers readily. "But it makes me believe that he believes I am."—Judge's Library.

Escaped.

Gillet—So you've just come from Henpecked's funeral. How did the old boy look? Natural?
Perry—No; relieved.—New York Times.

those who cannot enforce them.

Plan Series of Product Shows

Advertised with advance notices like a circus, playing five day stands in the largest auditoriums that can be leased in cities of from 10,000 to 50,000 inhabitants thro'- out the east and middle west, the Northwest Development League is planning to send out next fall a special train filled with exhibits showing the resources of the American Northwest.

This is probably the greatest advertising scheme ever promoted and it is said by men who have spent practically millions in development work, to be capable of securing better results than any campaign ever planned to aid the settlement and development of any section.

The shows will be known as "See America First" Expositions and will aim not only to attract tourists and induce them to travel through the seven northwest states, but by displays of products the expositions will also claim the attention of the homeseekers and show them the opportunities and inducements offered on western lands.

The trip will last four months and starts from Minneapolis early in December, following the Northwestern Products Exposition to be held in that city November 12 to 23.

The states which will participate in these expositions will be the same as those represented in the exposition in Minneapolis, which are Minnesota, South Dakota, North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon.
