Mrs. A. W. Kime lavishly entertained last Wednesday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Miss Mamie, whose engagement to Mr. Harvey Roy Romaine, of Portland was announced, the wedding to take place in this city December 3. The parlor was beautifully decorated with lavender chrysanthemums and ferns received from Portland, while the color scheme in the dining room was pink and white. The tables were profusely and artistically decorated. Streamers of pink hearts were suspended from the chandeliers and a wreath of pink carnations surrounding a small cupid served as a center. There were bouquets of roses, carnations and ferns and the place cards were miniature bride and groom. A three course luncheon was served consisting of oyster patties, chicken salad, sandwiches, pickles, olives, marshmallow pudding, cake, coffee and salted almonds. Misses Mattie Landess and Jessie Smith assisted in serving. A fortune telling game and story writing was an amusing feature of the afternoon. A HORSE'S PULLING POWER DETERMINED BY GRADES

Dean Raymond of Iowa University Brings Up New Question.

A totally new element has been brought into the good roads question by Dean William G. Raymond, head of the college of engineering of the State university of Iowa, in an address before the Johnson county good roads convention.

Although Dean Raymond is working for permanent roads, he wants the state to go in with its eyes open and consider all the problems. This one relates to grades.

"With dirt roads," said Dean Raymond, "the pulling power of a team of horses is limited more by the condition of the surface of the road than by the steepness of the grades. But with concrete, brick or macadam roads the pulling power of a horse on the level is immensely increased, and it is the grades which determine the size of a load that can be pulled. Consequently in order to get the benefit of permanent roads it will be necessary to cut down the grades."

"The practical effect is about as follows," says the dean:

"A team of horses can exert steadily on a dirt road a pull of 250 pounds, which is enough to pull a load of two and one-half tons on the level, and the team can pull the same load over short hills of a rise of from five to eight feet in the hundred by extra exertion."

"But on a concrete road the team of horses can pull a load three or four times as great on the level. When it comes to a hill, however, the team cannot pull this added load over the same grade that it could travel over with the lighter load on dirt roads."

Dean Raymond figures that the maximum load for level concrete roads can only be pulled over a 2 per cent grade—that is, over a hill that rises two feet in the hundred.

In his address he went into the cost of permanent roads, urging short time bonds, and said he considered permanent roads more of an investment than an expense. The $5,000 or $10,000 a mile invested in a permanent road is not lost, he said. The money is spent, but the community has the road, and before the road is worn out it has its value in use and in increased value of property.—Iowa Homestead.

Example Better Than Precept.

John Wesley, accompanied by one of his preachers, was once dining at the house of a rich Methodist. The tables were spread with a liberal meal, but Wesley's companion no sooner saw it than he said:

"Oh, sir, what a sumptuous dinner! Things are very different from what they once were. I fear there is but little self denial among Methodists in these days."

"My brother," said Wesley, pointing to the table, "there is a fine opportunity for self denial now."

The hint was not taken, but the rebuke did its work.
