NO "HOLES" IN THE AIR.

Such a Condition Is Wholly Impossible In the Atmosphere.

The phrase "holes in the air" came with the advent of the great science of aviation. But the coining of this term has been unfortunate. It is totally impossible for a "hole" to exist in free air.

The only hole in air known is the highly vacuum space within a Crookes vacuum tube or bulb or similar glass bulbs, such as those inclosing carbon and tungsten filaments in electric incandescent lamps. And the height of human skill has been exerted to secure these vacuums, which is a "hole" surrounded by walls of glass.

What has been named "hole" is a place where the air and the airship are both moving in the same direction at the same speed. But an aeroplane must move to acquire any lifting or sustaining power whatever—that is, move through the air, not with it. If wind blows against the lower surfaces of the planes the lifting force per square foot depends on the velocity of the air. If air is at rest, then lifting force against gravitation depends on the speed of the airship. But if air and ship are both moving in the same direction with identical speed, then the ship must fall.

Early fliers in ships heavier than air naturally thought that they had fallen into a hole or a well. But there is just as much air under the planes as elsewhere.

In the central vortex of a whirlwind where rotation around a vertical axis is rapid the air is partially thrown out by centrifugal tendency, but there remains plenty of air.

To remove all air from an inclosure has never been attained by the most accurate air pumps; there still remain a few millionths of the original quantity.—Edgar Lucien Larkin in New York American.

Society Notes

Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Broadbooks will entertain several of their friends at their home this Wednesday evening. The program of entertainment will be an indoor track meet.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Conner will celebrate their twentieth wedding anniversary at their home on West Main street this Wednesday evening. They were married in this city February 25, 1894.

Mrs. Pearl Atkinson entertained the Emanon club at the home of her grandmother, Mrs. Frances Gray last Thursday afternoon. Needle work and music were the amusements for the afternoon and a dainty two-course luncheon was served.

Mrs. Karl Mills was hostess to the M. P. G. club yesterday afternoon at her home. Only members were present, needlework being the leading amusement followed by a unique Japanese luncheon with appointments and menu a la Japanese.

The Odd Fellows and Rebekah lodges of this city held a joint meeting Saturday night and an enjoyable re-union was spent in games and music, concluding with an elegant banquet. Grand Master Taylor of Independence was present and the hall was crowded to its utmost capacity.

The Royal Neighbors were entertained at the home of Mrs. Nixon Tuesday afternoon. After a social hour spent in needlework, Mrs. Nixon assisted by Mrs. Roy Baker served a two-course luncheon consisting of peanut sandwiches, banana pie, doughnuts and coffee. Besides the members present, invited guests were Mesdames Wm. Hall, N. E. Compton, J. D. Quillen and Roy Baker.

The U. G. L. Y's and X. Y. L's were entertained at the home of Geo. Wilson Monday evening in honor of Mr. B. Morgan who left on the night train after a two months visit in the city. The evening was interspersed with games and music, and refreshments were served. Invited guests were: Misses Helen Banta, Myrtle Purvance, Lavilla Buell, Edna Russ, Lena Holcomb, Janette Davison, Emma Schilling, Laura Smith, Mesdames, Dunton, Beager, Purvance, Daskam; Messrs. Dunton, Purvance, Daskam, Bond, Barnhart, Currin, Anderson, Boyd, King Goddard.

The 50th anniversary of the organization of Knights of Pythias was celebrated by Juventas lodge in a royal manner. After the Golden Jubilee opening with Fred Bartels, C. C. presiding, the following splendid program was rendered: Violin solo, Miss Lorane Ross; address "Pythianism" Dr. Oglesby; vocal solo, Mrs. Beager; reading, Mrs. Jas. Hemenway; solo, Marian Hooper; reading, "Tragedy," Miss Mary Bartels; solo, Lloyd Stratton reading, Miss Lorane Ross; stump speech, Mr. McAdams; address, Rev. Aldrich and remarks by Judge Shinn. A sumptuous banquet was then served in the Odd Fellows hall interspersed with impromptu speeches and music.

The Military Look.

When Sir John French was in command of the cavalry at Canterbury he chanced one day to meet a rather slouching young recruit.

"Tell me, lad," said the new chief of the general staff, "does this city belong to you?"

The military fledgling saluted and blushing replied: "No, sir."

"Never mind," said French genially, "straighten yourself up, pull yourself together and look as though it did."—Chicago American.

Her Presence Desired.

"How fortunate! Mrs. Snobleigh is here tonight."

"But I thought you said she always snubs you when you meet."

"She does, but now I shall get the chance to snub her first and in such distinguished company too."—Detroit Free Press.

Preparedness.

"Here we are with the motor, dear! Is grandma ready?"

"Not quite, ma'am. Grandma is upstairs putting on her best underclothes in case she gets killed."—Newark News.
