THE WRITING OF HISTORY

Every individual who does things helps to make history, but it is not given to many to prophesy how that history shall be written, for the enlightenment of future generations.

So long as there is no danger of false prophets being stoned to death, how will this do for a statement for the future to cherish as history:

"About the beginning of the second year of President Wilson's administration, the trouble in Mexico became serious, and the sentiment of the people was strongly in favor of prompt and stern measures of correction, but the president and his secretary of state were so imbued with the idea that the trouble could be settled without going to war, that the matter was allowed to drag along through weary weeks of "mediation" by friendly powers, only to be settled by an appeal to arms after the Mexicans had been given time for strengthening their positions, storing up provisions and war supplies and getting in shape to make their resistance as costly to us as possible.

President Wilson had been given repeated assurances that the "Constitutionalists" would remain friendly to our country, but this profession of friendship was only a ruse for getting more arms and ammunition, and when they were expected to demonstrate their friendship by deeds instead of words, they turned their guns on our soldiers.

About this time Ex-President Roosevelt returned from a sojourn of several months in South Africa, and with characteristic vigor denounced the hesitating policy of the government; a stand that struck a responsive note in the breast of the red-blooded, up-standing men of the nation.

So strong was Colonel Roosevelt's appeal to American pride and patriotism that, a movement was at once started to reunite the disrupted Republican party under his leadership.

With the war sentiment at fever heat, the aggressive stand taken by the Ex-President at once restored him to his old place in the affections of the people and the reunion of the party was effected with little opposition.

Two years later Mr. Roosevelt was the choice of the Republican party for president, and was elected by a tremendous majority."

A news item from Medford says "Insane woman refuses to talk to men." Then she is insane.

Rev. Horace A. Hand, pastor of the Eugene Unitarian church, preached Sunday from the subject, "The Rockefeller War," in Colorado. His talk was on the labor troubles of the miners—a live topic certainly, but hardly a religious one.

Forest botanists recognize only one cypress in the United States. Its range extends from Delaware southward around the coast into Texas and up the Mississippi valley to Illinois and Indiana. It is one of the few cone-bearing trees which drop their leaves in winter. The heartwood of cypress is noted for its decay-resistant properties.

A FEW LITTLE THINGS YOU MAY HAVE OVERLOOKED

Roseburg people are up in arms at the threat of Governor West to annul construction of barracks for the Soldiers' Home as provided by the last legislature.

The Great Northern railroad has placed orders for ten million feet of lumber and 1000 refrigerator cars.

Oil lands are being taken up very rapidly in Malheur county and many wells are being developed.

Hominy is said to be the only important food product not manufactured in Oregon.

The made-in-Lane county exposition was a great success, and concluded with a made-in-Oregon banquet Saturday night at the Osborn hotel in Eugene.

Farmers and fruit growers of the state generally are organizing against the proposed eight hour law.

Arrangements have been completed for the construction of 27 miles of logging road out of Sutherlin toward Coos Bay.

The farmers do not appreciate selling products on a falling market to pay increasing taxes to shorten the workday of public employes to eight hours.

The wool industry of eastern Oregon is passing through a season of the greatest activity, prices going as high as nineteen cents.

San Francisco advertises the lowest tax rates of any city from Stockton to New York and is getting many factories.

In how many different ways may the president of the United States treat a bill passed by congress and submitted to him?

(1) He may sign it; (2) sign it with a protest, though that is merely a matter of record; (3) if presented more than ten days before the close of the session of congress and he takes no action at the expiration of ten days it becomes a law without his signature; (4) if presented within ten days of the close of the session and he fails to return it it does not become a law, and this is termed a pocket veto, the bill being quietly killed without reason assigned; (5) he may veto it, giving his reasons to congress. The pocket veto always has been held in disfavor as an exercise of rather arbitrary power and has been little used in recent years. Jackson pocketed seven bills. Neither Cleveland nor Harrison pocketed any, though both vetoed many bills, giving reasons therefor.

What was the date of the Brownsville (Tex.) riot in which colored soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry killed a citizen?
Aug. 13, 1906.

Under what presidential administration was the civil service reform law passed? Under what administration was the Chinese exclusion law passed?

The civil service law began with President Arthur's administration in 1883. The Chinese exclusion law was passed first in 1882, under Arthur's administration, to operate for ten years; in 1892, under Benjamin Harrison's administration, for ten years longer, and in 1902, under the first Roosevelt administration, for a third period of ten years.

How do scientists know or why do they think the moon is not inhabited? One conclusive reason is that the moon has no atmosphere and another that it has no water. These facts, established beyond doubt, make the existence of animal life or plant life on the moon impossible.

Is it necessary to say "nautical" miles when describing distances on the ocean?

Miles at sea or describing sea routes mean nautical miles of 6,080 feet each, instead of the land mile of 5,280 feet. Therefore it is so more necessary to say "nautical" miles when speaking of a sea distance than it is to say "statute" miles when speaking of a land distance. The nautical mile is 800 feet longer than the land mile.

What was the value of the corn, wheat, hay and cotton crops respectively of the United States in 1912?

The corn crop of the United States in 1912 was valued at $1,750,000,000, the wheat crop at $500,000,000, the hay crop at $801,000,000, the cotton crop at $800,000,000.

PANNIER DRAPERIES.

They Are Favored by Smart Dressmakers.

NEAT AFTERNOON GOWN.

Pannier effects grow rapidly in favor. Already they have passed the fad stage and are no longer eccentric, but pretty and graceful. The long clinging ones are rather ignored. They have given place to the extremely puffy and more bunched ones.

The panner tunic is gracefully carried out on the afternoon gown of white net and plaited silk which is pictured here. Pearl beads were used in its decoration. The wide satin grille was crossed by strands of the beads and finished in front with an ornament and tassel. Loops of the pearls also adorned the skirt.

SPARKLING ORNAMENTS.

Rhinestones Glitter on the Hands and in the Hair.

Brilliant, usually in the form of rhinestones, are the chief decorations on all the newest hair ornaments. But the bandeaux having them are not the mode, and yet it was in this form that they were first used to give a finishing touch to the coiffure.

Now one sees rhinestones ornamenting the hinge top hairpins, the small barrettes, the base of the crowning headpiece (which is but a couple of inches wide instead of bandeau size) and the decorations that hold guara fasteners.

One of the most striking features of the newest hair ornaments that rise upright, fountain-like, from the coiffure is that they have an imitation of a precious or semiprecious gem, large as the oval of a pigeon's egg, near their base in the center. These are most effective, for they catch and reflect in a most delightful way the brilliancy from the flashing facets of the rhinestones. Some of these have sprays of uncurled ostrich feathers rising from them, but the majority have tendrils of aluminum with small rhinestones sparkling on them.

Rhinestones are not confined to hair ornaments alone. There are rhinestone bracelets, dinner rings and lace pins. Pearl necklaces should now be in three strands, graduated in size.

Illustrated here is a loznette with a watch attachment which makes a modish and striking accessory to lady's toilet. The loznette is mounted in gold to match the tiny timepiece in the handle.

To the Republican Voters

In calling your attention to my candidacy for the Republican nomination for state senator, I invite your consideration of my record:

I have always tried to be fair, and during my service in the legislature, I worked for what I considered the people's interests. I probably made some mistakes—any one who does things is liable to err.

I secured the passage of our present county depository law, which requires depositories to pay interest on county deposits. This law produces a revenue where none was ever produced prior to its passage; it brings in sufficient money to defray the expenses of the treasurer's office, bringing annually to the counties of the state nearly $100,000.

The log boom company on the Siuslaw River is using its influence against me, because I propose to have such boom companies declared to be public utilities and have them regulated by the Railroad Commission, so that if they monopolize business, their enormous charges may be regulated so that they may only make a reasonable profit.

I am a tax payer and own and operate a farm on the Long Tom River, and favor tax reductions, by cutting out present extravagance. I have practiced law for six years.

I appreciate the confidence the people have heretofore placed in me, and if I am nominated and elected, I will hold the office as a public trust, and perform the duties of the office to the best of my ability, without fear or favor.

As It Was Revealed.

Dr. Hale declared once that he had had a special revelation. He was down in Maine with an agreeable company of fishermen, and he must needs leave the trout brook in order to get to Boston in time to prepare his sermon. As he thought of the old trout rod and the new sermon, the "revelation" suddenly came to him something like this: "It is far better to preach a good old sermon than a poor new one. Edward Everett Hale, stay where you are and go a fishing!"—Boston Cooking School Magazine.

How It Happened.

"True, the night was dark, but he appeared to jump deliberately in front of the automobile."
