THE OTHER KIND

A good deal has been written in praise of "divine discontent." But a great deal of the discontent one sees is not that kind. The average variety of discontent is born of a hankering for what belongs to the other fellow. We are dissatisfied with what we have because the other fellow has something different. The dull boy in school is discontented because the bright boy goes up into another grade, while he remains in the same old class; not because he cares a whoop for the higher grade, but he wanted the bright boy held back with him. Millions of women admire pretty calico, and could be perfectly happy in a new calico dress, if other women wore them too. There are men who really love their jobs and naturally would wish for nothing better than a comfortable cottage, with three good meals a day, and an easy chair on the porch at evening. But the other fellow has a big house and an automobile, so it makes the man in the cottage discontented. Discontent which stirs a man to make the best of opportunities, to fight bad conditions that may be remedied, is an excellent thing. But discontent that merely breeds dislike for the good things that are ours, that spoils the pleasure we might take in what comes our way, that makes us envious, irritates sores that cannot heal, and breeds a morose, hopeless, bitter attitude toward life and our fellow men, is far from being a divine discontent.

"Nothing counts but success," said a man the other day in the hearing of the Leader editor. This man might merely have been expressing his personal opinion, in which case he may be right. But if he meant the declaration for a statement of fact, he is altogether wrong. Success really means a favorable termination of any undertaking. As the world interprets the word, it means the accumulation of wealth or the doing of things that attract the public eye. If there were no effort put forth but by men who succeed in the end, the world's progress would soon stop. It is the accumulated work of the men the world calls "failures" that makes advancement possible. I take off my hat to the man who tries, and he is entitled to as much credit as the man the world calls a "success." The man who puts forth the best effort that nature and opportunity have made possible, has done his best, and a Napoleon, a Rothschild, a Spurgeon could do no more.

Mr. Business Man, the Leader is read by hundreds of people who do not see any other local paper. If you want to reach these hundreds of people, you must advertise in the Leader. They will appreciate an invitation from you.

The Leader leads, others follow

I heard a stalwart Republican growling the other day at the Democratic administration because our athletes are losing all the championships, titles and cups to British sportsmen. Said he, "Since Woodrow gave them the capal, everything goes their way. Why, by the end of the Wilson administration, there won't be an athletic trophy worth picking up in the road, this side of England."

All the railroads are patching up old rolling stock that has laid idle for months, getting ready for the big business this fall. The southbound freight on the Southern Pacific yesterday at one o'clock was hauling three dead engines to the Frisco shops to be put in shape to help haul the road's increasing business this fall.

Straight Talk a Virtue.

Everybody respects the man who talks without circumlocution and who means what he says, whose tongue is not twisted and who goes right to the mark, never seeking to mislead or to misrepresent. Straight talk is a virtue that is practiced all too little. Imagine what a different world this would be if there were no other kind in business, in domestic affairs, in society, in diplomacy—between employers and workers, politicians and people, government and governed and in the professional and the business world! How large a part of many men's occupations would be gone if there was never anything but perfectly straight talk between man and man!—Christian Herald.

Funeral Festivals.

The Greeks and the Romans never prescribed chilling silence at funerals. On the contrary, they regarded them as festivals and entertainments and chose these occurrences for the productions of their great plays. Every comedy of Plautus was first produced at a funeral celebration.

The King Is Fled!
Long Live the King!

By MOSS.

SYLLA, the Roman dictator, abdicated in 79 B. C.

From that time down through the whirl of history's pages many sovereigns have joined the DOWN and OUT CLUB.

For instance, just to brush up your memory, Charles V. quit as emperor of Spain in 1555, King James II. of England fled in 1688, and Napoleon was tumbled off his pedestal in 1815.

Some rulers went VOLUNTARILY; some were FORCED OUT.

ABDICATION generally COMES HARD. There's the case of HUERTA, for example.

But the hardest monarch to eradicate is HABIT.

HABIT may be a GOOD ruler of one's life or the WORST possible.

The CARELESS, RAPID FIRE METHOD of READING NEWSPAPERS is a SLOVENLY HABIT. If you have it STOP IT.

Read this paper THOROUGHLY. It takes EARNEST THOUGHT, TIME and MONEY to PRODUCE IT. Our business men spend THOUSANDS in it to keep you POSTED and EARN YOUR TRADE.

Turning a CARELESS HABIT into a CAREFUL HABIT will prove a PAYING REFORMATION.

"Going to England."

The Isle of Wight inhabitants are not alone in speaking of "going to England" when they leave their own fragment of the kingdom. A patriotic Cornishman also "goes to England" when he crosses the Tamar. Similarly inhabitants of the Balkan peninsula talk of "going to Europe" when they leave their own corner of the continent—in curious contrast with the people of our own island. We regard ourselves as both of and in "Europe," and accordingly it is only "the continent" that we visit. The record in the splendid isolation line is probably held by that minister of the Cumbres, in the Clyde, who prayed for a blessing upon "the inhabitants of Great and Little Cumbrae and the adjacent islands of Great Britain and Ireland."—London Mirror

NATIONS OF FAR EAST TO EXHIBIT IN 1915.

The commission sent by the United States government to the nations of the far east to request their participation in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco next year returned to New York May 12, bringing news that eight of those governments will be represented.

The commissioners, including ex-Governor Alva Adams of Colorado, Thomas G. Stallsmith, chief of the agricultural department of the Exposition, and Welton Stallsmith, secretary, gave out the following list of countries, with the appropriations made by each:

China	$1,000,000
Philippine Islands	500,000
Japan	500,000
Australia	400,000
Siam	250,000
Dutch East Indies	250,000
New Zealand	250,000
Cochin China	150,000

This brings the total number of foreign countries which have decided to participate officially up to thirty-six. Austria being the latest to swing into line, with an appropriation of $400,000, half of which is contributed by commercial organizations.
